Lexington, Ky., April 13.—For the first time in several years the might closing law was enforced-here and every saloon in the city was locked tight and the bilinds were open after that hour. Just what caused the warning order is not known, but the downtown saloonkeepers were up in arms Thursday night on account of the order being issued on the eve of a race meeting. Mayor Combs directed that the order be strictly enforced.

THE MYSTERY SOLVED.

Central City, Ky., April 13.—The mystery of the human head found below here several days ago on the railroad track has been solved. Dr. W. E., Cobb, a student in a Louisville medical college, secured the head at Louisville and left it near the railroad track near his home, not wishing to trighten his wife, who was ill: When he returned for the head it was gone.

THE PRINCIPAL ISSUES.

Tariff and the Railway Bate Questions Will Be Foremost

Guestions Will Be Foremost with Democrats.

Should the rate question by any possibility fail of a satisfactory settlement at the present session, the Issue will figure largely in the Democratic fight for control of the Sixtleth congress.
Otherwise the tariff will be the main issue, followed by attacks on the Roosevelt interpretation of the Monroe doctrine. Charges of corrupt contributions to Republican campaign committees will be freely made, as will accusations of failure on the administrations part to punish infinential office-holders who, the Democrats say, have been guilty of violations of the law. The Philippines, too, will figure extensively in Democratic campaign speeches.

"The issues," said John Sharp Willams, minority leader in the house, in outlining the plans for his party's campaign, "will be corruption in the land and post office departments and the consular service, and the corrupt connection between the Republican mational executive committee and insurance and other corporate interests.

"Any Democrat will appreciate that the average Democrat is no more honest than the average Republican, but undoubtedly a Democrat till appreciate that the average Democrat is no more honest than the average Republican, but undoubtedly a Democrat will appreciate that the average Democratic administration could better be trusted to turn the reacais out of service than the very administration which allowed them to get in.

"Another issue will be the enforcement of the laws against those who have been convicted of their violation, but have never been prosecuted. There seems to be an idea that an injunction against continued violation of the law is enough.
"It the senate falls to pass the house rate regulation bill without weakening and destric X-z amcc."—Last, the Democrats will peak that sort of legislation as their own. Should the bill pass in satisfactory form they will refer with the law.

REFORMERS ARE LAGGING. Railway Legislation Neglected by Republicans Who Preach Anti-Graft.

The committee on post offices and post roads of the house of representatives do not see their way to push reform 18 vigorously as they started out to do. The Republican majority of the committee, according to the Washington Post, has "concluded it was helpiless to remedy a condition which a majority of its members frankly admit needs insmediate correction. They say the rate of the compensation paid to the ralitoads for carrying mail is too high, but confess with chagrin that the only way to reduce it is by a separative relative to the ralitoads for carrying mail is too high, but confess with chagrin that the only way to reduce it is by a separative to the relative to the ralitoads for carrying mail is too high, but confess with chagrin that the only way to reduce it is by a separative that there is any disposition on the part of the committee to report such a measure in the immediate future.

"Members of the Committee and measure in the immediate future.

"Members of the Committee and the reductive the compensation of the ralitoads by requiring, the executive departments hereafter to send steel safes, furniture, fixtures and bulk stationery by freight or express.

"It may cause some people to smile to learn that the committee is going to show its deep resentment against the transportation companies in this maner, but the members seem to be in real earnest about it. It has been customary for many years for the departments to send articles such as those mentioned through the mails, and of course this heavy weight added considerably to the compensation of the ralitoads which transported them."

The Standing pat has become so chronic with Republican congressmen that they say at nearly every necessary reform, from tariff to economy, voters should give these laggard reforms the subses and when the appropriation by standing pat and refusing to vote for them and elect Democrate who are pledged to reform this ralifoad graft and who from association are not tied to the railitoads by passes or campaign contributions.

—It will be interesting to see what the Republicans will do with the resolution introduced by Representative Hardwick, of Géorgia, directing the committee on election of the president with the resident with the resident with the committee on the president with the resident with the the committee on election of the president, vice president and members of congress to institute a thorough investigation of the amounts of money contributed to the national and congressional committees in 1994, by whom they were made and how they were expended.

The Republican party is in a mess over the statehood bill whichever way it turns, for if, it defeats statehood for Okiahoma the voters will be mad, and if it passes the bill as a mended by the senate, the Democrats will get all the credit,

THE DAWNING OF HOPE

A STORY OF THE HEBREW PEOPLE'S STRUGGLE FOR FREEDOM

HE morning was just breaking and the tinting of crimson and gold in the eastern sky gave promise of a glorious day, but the beauty of the scene was all unnoticed by the man, who with downcast ever and weary, foot-was all unnouted by the man, who with downcast efeas and weary footsteps left the pathway along which he had just come was along which he had just come was fung open before he reached it, and a voice called out:

"You are late, Moses! What success?"
"Poor, Aaron, poor!" Meses repiled, dejectedly, entering and throwing himself-on the rough bench by the door. Elishams will not come, and others of the elders whom I have seen are only half-hearted in their responses. But how was it with you?"
"Little better, I fear, than with you," was the dubious reply. "None whom I have seen have refused to come, but there is much depression of spirits. The oppression has been so long and bitter that the people have quite given up hope. "But wint of Elishama? Gave he you no encouragement!"
"Noa." "hake "et. "de desdares that hope, died within him years and when his son, Nun, was killed and his grandson, Joshua, was taken from him. The subject was so evidently painful to him that if fore" "sestioning him conserning the matter. Know you the details?"

"He was deeply interested in your "He was deeply interested years ago that you was ordically sains by the Egyptian. You remember Nun:"

Moses nodded, and Aaron went on, slowly,
"He was deeply interested in your discoveries at Joseph's tomb, and after your flight was zealous in teaching the people of his tribe of God and God's promises to His people. Thus the years went by, and in spite of the bitter oppression he continued to hope. In some-way, It reselved this as a continued to hope the bitter oppression he continued to hope. In some-way, It reselved this as a continued from bondage, and seeking him out the Egyptian overreers, that he was encouraging the people to look for deliverance from bondage, and seeking him out the Egyptian overreers, that he was encouraging the people to look for deliverance from bondage, and seeking him out the Egyptian that the letter fiew into a towering rage and slow him on the spot. This proved as severe shock to his father, Elishama, and embittered his heart against God. And when a year later his grandson, Joshua, a noble youth of some 20 years, was selzed and carried off by an Egyptian office the boy and coveted him as a servant in his household, he was inconicable. No word has ever been heard of the boy since, and as the years have come and gone Elishama has grown, more mores and tactum. And I am not surprised that you did not prevail upon him to meet with the elders to-night. But I had hope that he would yield, for as head of the tribe of Ephraim weehall need his help."

"The outlook is not bright, but we when head to do the best we can and leave the rest with God." Moses remarked, breaking the silence which followed the rest with God." Moses remarked, breaking the silence which followed "The outlook is not bright, but we will have to do the best we can and leave the rest with God," Moses remarked, breaking the silence which followed Aaron's story. "I had not expected to find the people so dispirited. Why is it?"

"I have been surprised and puzzled by the conditions, for I had expected that with your return the people would be filled with cathesiams, but last night! think I learned the reason," Aaron replied. "It seems that after my department for you the impression got abroad among the people that during your long absence you had obtained the help of some strong ally and were to return and by mighty hand wrest deliverance from Egypt. And when you came with your staff and simple shepherd's dress of the east, the people lost heart, saying: "How can deliverance ever come with such a leader?"

An anxions, troubled look crossed Moses' face, but it soon gave place to one of hope and cheer, as he said:
"But when they see the signs, they will believe. God is mightler than all the armies of the east."

"What signs?" asked Elishebe, aaron's wife, who had been listening artentively to the conversation of the two men.

"The signs which God gave to me and the mount," Mores replied.
"Sarely, the people will believe," exclaimed Elisheba, after she had heard the story, but many times during the day her heart misgave her as she rhought of Elishama. What if others of the leaders refused to come as did he? And she racked her brain to try and think of some way in which she might overcome Elishamae's obduracy, Sho were that further argument was usethink of some way in which she might, overcome Elishama's obduracy. She knew that further argument was useless, for Mosses had pleaded with him, and Aaron in the afternoon had visited him in last effort to win him over. What could she do? As the afternoon waned and the evening shadows began to gather, she became more agitated over the matter, and the conviction grew upon her that she must somehow get Elishama to the meeting that night. A knock at the door interrupted her troubled thought, and she opened it to find an Expring there. She was startled and frightened, and her first thought was that the knowledge of the meeting for that night had in someway become known to the Egyptians and they had sent an official to forbid Moses and Aaron holding it.

someway decome known to the Egyptians and they had sent an official to forbid Moses and Aaron holding it.

"You want to see Moses and Aaron? she stammered, apprehensively.

The stranger started visibly at the words, and eagerly asked:

"Are Moses and Aaron here?"

The thrill in the voice and the earnest look puzzled Elisheba. Egyptian overseers didn't generally speak or look that way. She searched the face of the man before her, and as she did so she delected the unmistakable features of the man before her, and as she did so she delected the unmistakable features of the man before her, and as she did so she speech in thus addressing an Egyptian, she added, by way of apology: "Your dress proclaims you an Egyptian, but your face is that of a Hebren, but your face is that of a Hebren, but your face is that of a Hebren, but your face is that of a Hebren in the standard of the face of the she was here in Coshen, when a prominent Egyptian carried me off to Thebes and there I have -lived since. I found favor in his sight and he educated me as he might a son, and as the years went by and he grew old he more and more depended upon me. In a spirit of gratitude before his death he gave me my libertly, which freedom I was not slow in improving in getting back to Goshen and my people."

"Are you Joshua?" exclaimed the woman in astonishment, and then turning and rushing into the rear room of the hut she called, excitedly:

"Aaron! Moses! Joshua has come!"

Thus aroused from the snatch of sleep the men were trying to get before the gathering that night, they came hurrying out and soon an excited and enthusiastic group of men were talking and asking questions.

"Now Elishama will come," cried Elisheba, breaking into the conversation. "I will go and tell him," and as he moved towards the door she added, in reply to the remonstrances of the men: "You would not have time to go and get to the place of meeting in time, and besides you want to talk over matters. "Ab, I will go!" did she wis off.

and besides you want to talk over matters. Ab, I will go!" ...did she wis off.

The hour is late. The meeting of the officers and elders of the people is almost over. But still Elishama has not come, and Joshua with growing disappointment searched among the large assembly for him. In the secluded retreat where so often before in the dead of light they had gathered, they have listened to all the words of Moses and Aaron, and in the clear moonlight they have witnessed the confirming signs which God had given. The rod as it was east upon the ground became a serpent and the people turned to fice before it, and then stood in awe and wonder as Moses stooped and picked it up and it became a rod in his hands again. He thrust his hand in his bosom and withdrew it restored like the other hand, as he drew it forth and the people beheld it white with leoprosy, they 'trembled and cried out in dismay. Then as he thrust it again into his bosom and withdrew it restored like the other hand, as he drew it forth and the people cried; "God has heard our cry, Moses is our leader!" ... "Yea, verily He hath." And turning about and facing his brethren who had been watching in silence the touching reunion, he shouted in the vigor of his returning faith:

Red Cross Help for Japan.

The National Red Cross society of the United States has been so demoralized by its own internal strife in recent years that it has not of late been an effective agency of philanthropy. But the reorganization accomplished under-supervision of congress has put its society once more in excellent working trim. Coming forward now to offer its services for reaching and feeding the starving peasantry of northern Japan, it eminently deserves, says the Interior, the benevotent ald of all generous Americans. The statement that the society is ready to receive and distribute funds has brought out from President Roosevelt a strong public appeal for countributions to the society's treasury for this object. The crisis in the stricken portion of the Japanese Islands is as severe as India experienced—a few years—ago, and-equally calls—for international charity. Not less than 680,000 human belings are being reduced to living on roots and bark, and the death rate is already appalling. Offits forwarded to Hon. C. Hallam Keep, assistant secretary of the treasury, Washington, will be applied by the most reliable agents direct to this terrific need.

J. E. Cox, of Owen County, says in the Democrat of last week: "The road question in Owen is a serious one and should be considered in a dispassionate, intelligent manner. The taking over by the County Court in 1897, of all turnpikes, embracing something like 270 miles of road, was done at the demand of a public sentiment that had—not sufficiently considered the responsibility being assumed."

The Pittaburg Provision & Packing Co. bought a load of Angus cattle, 16 head averaging 1372 pounds, at 86 25 today. They were Southern Ohio fed stock shipped by J. W. Conner, of Trenton, Ohio, and were the best seen here in a year outside of the Fat Stock Show. This shows what Pittaburg can do even under adverse market conditions when the right cattle are offered.—Pittaburg Livestock Journal.

The Recorder's Midway correspondent was serving his county, hat week as a juror, and while in Burlington called at this office and posted himself in some of the mysteries of the "art preservative." His final conclusion was that he could do a much better iob sowing grass seed than distributing type.

J. R. Johnson, of Walton, has had his fun since circuit court began, his duties as juror interfering very little with him. He says that Owen Watts; of Bullitaville, who recently became a citizen of Walton, has developed into a first-class allaround business man, but looking after Wills he makes a speciality.

County Clerk Adams refused three applications for marriage licenese last week. According to the applicant in each instance everything was alright, his excuse for soming to Burlington being a desire on his and his intended bride's part to keep their marriage a secret. The parties were—nonresidents, and the reasons for coming to Burlington were not sufficient to induce the clerk to take any chances of getting himself into trouble.

EASY LESSONS IN DRAWING

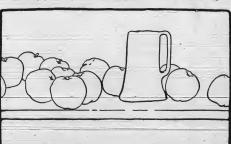

By FREDERICK RICHARDSON

and in Charge of Illust Institute, Chicago.)

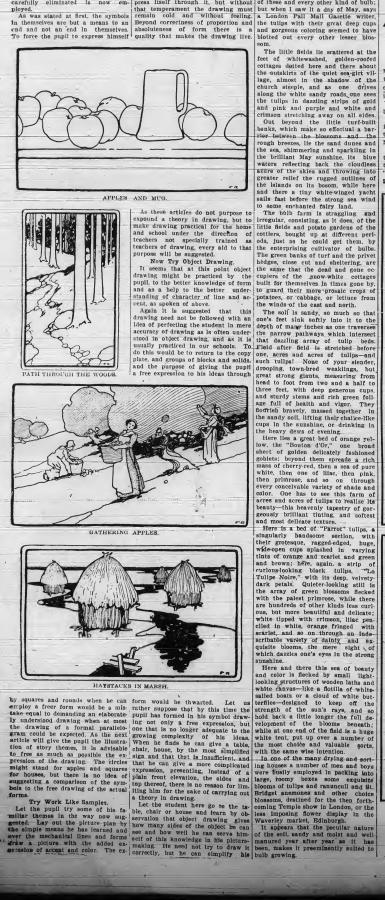

It is the purpose of the present amples here given are variations upon article to elaborate somewhat upon the expression of the drawing itself. While not calling upon a training which it has been the purpose of this work to avoid, it seems justle to any possible talent to give a few examples with freedom from the restraint of too mechanical forms, from subjects already treated. The simple symbol forms are traceable under these freer forms, but the geometric treatment is quite discarded. The suggested from time to time is here and the subject of the subject.

As was stated at first, the symbols in themselves are but a means to an end and not an end in themselves.

It is not exclusively a tulip farm any more than it is a daffodil, or a narcissus, or an anemone, or an Iris farm, since its many acres of gardens and fields are given up to the culture of these and every other kind of bulb; but when I saw it a day of May, says a London Pall Mall Gazette writer, tulips with their great deep cups and gorgeous coloring seemed to have blotted out every other lesser blossom.

Times the Strength of Japan.

The German army of to-day is the largest and most efficient fighting organization that the world has ever seen and it has served as a model for the armise of most other countries. The Austrian army has been organized on methods copied exactly from the German system. The Japanese army also took its methods in Organization as well as in strategy and tactics from Germany and German of the Strength of the Countries of Europe with aspirations to military efficiency have borrowed officers from the German army to lastruct their troops. The Turkish army was so organized. In the rocent war the largest forces mot which had ever opposed one another in any conflict. The German army, however, could put in the field a perfectly equipped military force eight times larger than the victorious Japanese army which gained the battle of Mookden It. consists of more than 4,000,000 soldiers. But in addition to 4,000,000 unique soldiers Germany could equip 6,000,000 more men who, aithough not trained for service in the fighting line, would nevertheless form a valuable reserve for the protection of lines of communications and such duties. A large number of these reserves have had at least some military resercise. Thus the stupendous number of 10,000,000 alse-bodded men could be mustered under the imperial banner of the German empire; hence the statement that all Germany is an armed camp."

war supreme and commander-in-chief or "war lord" of the entire military forces of the empire.

The standing army of Germany consists approximately of 600,000 men.
Nearly half of this number pass out of the standing army every year and are replaced by an equal number of fresh recruits. Germany thus produces year by year more than 250,000 trained soidiers. The first reserve consists approximately of 1,700,000 men, of whom 900,000 are in the second class. The "Landsturm" consists of 600,000 men, making a grand total of 4,000,000.

The organization of the army is as simple as it is efficient. The unit of organization in the Infantry is the "section," consisting of 20 men under the command of a corporal. Two sections form the "semidetachment," or 40 men under the command of a sergeant. Two semidetachments form a "detachment" of 80 men under the command of a lieutenant. Three detachments form a company of 240 men under a capitain. Four companies make a battalion of 860 men under a major. Three battalions form a regiment form a brigade under the command of a major general. The "army corps," which is the largest military unit, consists of two or three divisions.

AMONG ARTISTS.

Ten eminent Japanese artists were busy for months devising a seal for the young crown prince of their country. It is is now put on everything he wears or uses.

A recent exposition in Amsterdam of 20 new paintings by Josef Israels bore witness to the fact that this eminent Jewish artist, at the age of 80, preserves the best traitis of his manhood powers.

Heinrich Vogel, a well-known German portrait painter, who, however, has not done any work for three decades, has lett his whole property, valued at $250,000, for the founding of a charitable institution for artists.

Japanese postage stamps are rated as the most artistis in the world; there is a great demand for them in London at present. The first stamps were issued in 1871. There are few rare once, the highest price ever known to have been paid for one being $50.

The Armenian church in Fresno, Cal., under the lead of the Rev. H. K. Lantiklan, on a recent Sunday made a free-will offering of the people for the building fund. The amount contributed by 61 members of the congregation was $1,340, which they expect to raile to $2,000.

UTARCH No. 3183.

Season

1906

The great GERMAN COACH STALLION, PLUTARCH No. 3183, imported from Germany by J. Crouch & Son, of LaFayette, Indiana, now owned by the Burlington Horse Company, will make the season of 1906, from the 1st of April until the first of July, in the town of Burlington, Boone Co., Kentucky; the remainder of the time at L. A. Conner's stable, four miles south of Burlington, on the East Bend road.

PEDIGREE AND DESCRIPTION.

Plutarch No. 3183, was foaled June 8th, 1901; bred by H. Stukenberg, Hammelwardermoon, Germany.

Dam-Pavone No. 6423, by Tello No. 1190, by Young Othello No. 923, by Othello No. 755, &c. 2nd Dam-Pfalz No. 3087, by Claro No. 890, by Kimme No. 568, by Young Duke of Cleveland No. 200, registered in "The German, Hanover and Oldenburg Coach Horse Stud Book."

This Stallion is a Mahogany bay 16½ hands high, weighs 1300 lbs., has the size, color, and style combined with extreme knee action, lifting his feet high which gives elegance to his pace and action. His points are strong with clean bone under the knee and feet sound, open and tough. He carries his head well with neck very rangy, long and well cut up at throttle, having a fine ear, well set broad forehead with large intelligent eyes and has a fine gentle disposition.

In order to produce good colts it is not necessary to have fine or high bred, ware as the Corner.

In order to produce good colts it is not necessary to have fine or high bred mares as the German Coachers being so long and strong bred will produce high class colts from all classes of mares.

The colts are fine and large and develop quickly. No other breed of stallions will produce as many good colts from all classes of mares.

It must be remembered that this class of horses always demands high prices and to-day they are the highest price horse on the market.

TREMS:—$20.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with. Parties breeding must follow up the season. Care taken to prevent accidents, but not responsible should any occur. Positively no service on Sunday. Pasture furnished and mares taken care of at $4.00 per month.

We will give a premium of $50 for the three best colts the get of this stallion of 1906, to be shown or less of sex at the Florence Fair in the fall of 1907, the premiums will be awarded $25, $15, $10. For further particulars call on or address

THE CHOICE OF PAINT.

Fifty years age a well-painted house was a rare sight; to-day an unpainted house is rarer. If people knew the real value of paint a house in need of paint would be "cacreer than hen's teeth." There was some excuse for our forefathers. Many of them lived in houses hardly worth preserving; they knew nothing about paint, except that it was pretty; and to get a house painted was a serious and coatly job. The difference between their case and ours is that when they wanted paint it had to be made for them; whereas when we need paint we can go to the nearest good store and buy it, is any color or quality ready for use. We know, or ought to know by this time, that to let a house stand ampainted is most costly, while a good coat of paint, applied in season, is the best of investments. If we put off the brief visit of the painter ws shall in due time have the carpenter coming to pay us a long visit at our expense. Lumber is constantly getting scarcer, dearer and poorer, while prepared paints are getting plentier, better and loase expensive. It is a short-sighted plan to let the valuable lumber of our houses go to pleces for the want of paint.

For the man that needs paint there are two forms from which to choose; one is the old form, still favored by certain unprogressive painters who have not yet caught up with the times—lead and oil; the other is the ready-for-use paint found in every up-date store. The first must be mixed with oil, driers, turpentine and colors before it is ready to use; the other need only be stirred up in the can and it is ready to go on. To buy lead and oil, colors, etc., and mix them into a paint by hand is, in this twentieth century, about the same as refusing to ride in a irolley car because one's grandfather had to walk or ride on horseback when he wanted to go anywhere. Prepared paints have been no such steady growth in their use.

Mixed paints age necessarily cheaper than paint of the hand-mixed kind, because they are more firely growth in their own of the paint manufacturer does know in ever iamss of the Dead May Never Known—Systematic Search Je Being Made For Other Sodies.

San Francisco, April 23.—Two hundred bodies found in the Fotrero district, south of Shannon street, in the vicinity of the Union Iron works, were cremated at the Six Mile house by the order of Coroner Walsh. This information was obtained at the board of health headquarters. Some of the dead were victims of falling buildings, some were killed in the dre, but it is believed by the board of health headquarters. Some of the dead were victims of falling buildings, some were killed in the dre, but it is believed by the board of health handprity died from ptomatine poisoning. So many deed were found in his limited area that cremation was deemed absolutely necessary to prevent disease. The names of some of the dead were learned, but in the majority of cases identification was impossible owing to the mutilation of the features. A systematic search for bodies of the victims of the earth-possible owing to the mutilation of the features. A systematic search for bodies of the victims of the health inspectors. The city has been divided into sanitary districts, and squads of searchers have been sent out to every quarter. The ruins of the purned buildings in the business and the old residence section have sumicently cooled to make the search possibile. The body of an infant was found in the center of Union street, near Dupont. There was nothing by which it could be identified. It was learned, however, that a number of people had camped at this piece and it is presumed that the child died and was left when the party was forced to move. Three bodies were found in the ruins of the house on Harrigon street, between First and Second. They had been burned beyond possibility of identification. At noon reports have been made by deputies sent out by the board of health of the finding of 23 bodies in various parts of the city. Few of them could be identified. The bodies were burled in various places and the graves numbered.

Mayor Schmitz was about early and took measures for the relief and protection of the city. Gen. Funston was quickly communicated with and by 3 a.m. 1,000 federal soldiers were guarding the streets and assisting the firmen in dynamiting buildings. Gen. Funston realized that stern measures were necessary and gave orders that looters were to be shot at sight. San Francisco, April 20—Threamed that the center of its misery was reached that the center of its misery was reached at dusk, when flames burst from all sides of the beautiful Hotel Fuirmont, the palace that above every other structure was apparently most stronglyentrenched against the attack of the all-consuming fire. to avoid the flames and reach the ferries.

Many dropped to the street under the weight of their loads, and willing fathers and husbands, their strength almost gone, strove to pick up and urge them forward again.

Probably 200,000 refugees are strugging to get out of the city, and hourly the task is becoming more difficult, as the fire and heat cut for avenue after avenue of escape. The streets are diled with struggling people, some crying and weeping and calling for missing loved ones. Crowding all sidowalks in the threatened area are hundreds upon hundreds of householders attempting to drag some of their effects to places of safety.

San Francisco, April 21.—Plunged into absolute darkness Friday night at 10 o'clock San Francisco had not seen the conclusion of the devastating work of the configration. The fire that started at Nob hill and worked its way to the North Beach section, sweeping that section clean of buildings, was later vered around by a ferce wind, and made its way southerly to the immense sea wall sheds and grain warehouses. The fiames were heading directly for the immense ferry buildings, the terminal point of all central, overland and local trains of the Southern Pacific road. The darkness and the wind, which at times ble for safety, the half-crazed survivors disregard everything but the thought of themselves and their property. In every excavation and holothought them into diches and everything busehold effects, throwing-them-into diches and everything thoughout the north beach household effects, throwing-them-into diches and everything them into diches and everything them into diches and everything them into diches and everything the many survivors that it can be arcovered after the fames are appeased. Sufferers are invading the few buildings that remain in the hope of finding something to eat. They only desist when warned by the soldlers.

At the ferry building a crowd, of a thousand people were gathered beging for food and transportation, across the bay. Hundreds have not even ten cents' car fare to Oakhand. Most of the refugees at this point, were chinamen and Italians, who flet from their burned tenoments with little or no personal property.

The, sufferings of many from hunger is plifful. At 5 ofcoke a mob of a hundred or more robbed a bread wagon of its contents. The police made an attempt to Interface, but were powerless. Bread is arriving from Berkeley and Oakhand and is being distributed in the north end of town by the relief parties organized by Mayor Schmitz.

Thousands of people are sleeping in the hills or standing gazing with grim faces on the lurid scene below. Women and children and little bables in arms are huddled together, with gaaw. The total number of bodies recovered and buried up to Sunday night is 500. No complete record can be had at this time, as many bodies have been buried without permits from the coroner and the board of health. The searchers of the coroner's board and health department found not more than 20 bodies Sunday. They were buried immediately. A few of these bodies could be identified and the graves were marked with numbers. It is impossible at the present time to obtain any sort of death list or even to make a reliable estimate of the number of casualities. Whenever a body is found it is buried inmediately without any formality whatever, and as the burials have been made at widely separated parts of the city by different bodies of searchers who do no', even make a prompt report to headfquarters, considerable confusion has resulted in estimating the number of casualities, and exaggerated reports have resulted.

The health of the scores of thousands camped in the open air is, under the circumstances, remarkably sood. There have, of course, been several cases of pneumonia reported and coids are quite common, but there is nothing like an epidemic of pulmonary troubles. The board of health reports that there is very little contaging the search of the configuration of the configuration and th

Broken by the Rapublican Tricksters.

The trusts and tariff protected corporations are in high glee at the turn pollitical events have taken, by the concentration of public opinion upon rail-did road rate legislation. Mr. Payne, the Republican leader in congress and chairman of the committee on ways and means, which controls all revenue elegislation, has declared in a signed statement that there will be no tariff bill reported at this session of congress. This Republican standpat policy was agreed at last fall by President Roosevelt and Speaker Cannon, and the personnel of the committee of ways and means was selected by Speaker Cannon, so that a majority were ardent protectionists. Thus those Republican voters, who favored the revision of the tariff that fosters trusts and allows them to charge plundering for many Republican candidates for congress who promised to vote to evise those tariff schedules that pretected the trusts. The venture of the committee of the comment of the committee of the content that the election this fail, and the question is, can the votere be fooled again to vote for Republican candidates for congress who promised to vote to receive those tariff schedules that pretected the trusts. That Mr. Cannon will never accede to, for he is an-ardent-protectionist. The membership of the next congress will be more evenly divided between the parties and the result in any district may determine which party shall control. The trusts and corporations will pay money to the Republican campaign fund with the understanding that their interests are to be protected, but

PARAGRAPHIC POINTERS.

—Senator Tillman has made the constitutional lawyers of the senate sit up and take notice, that a cornfield lawyer, who is a Democrat and therefore trying to benefit the people, is some pumpkins.

—That $100,000 appropriation for a private car for the president has been sload tracked until the amount actually necessary can be discovered, for it has been found that however much is appropriated the administration expends it all.

—The Republican "idd" members of the house of representatives at Washington, who came in on the 1904 tidal wave, are looking sad these days on the certainty that Democrats are booked for their places. A further cause of sorrow is their bad luck at the Benning races:

—When the Democratic party was disrupted over the financial issue at the beginning of the second term of President Cleveland, how jubliant the Republicans were and how confident of success in the then coming congressional elections. Now history repeats, itself and the tables are turned, for it is the Democrats who are now jubliant and encouraged and the Republicans discouraged and facing defeat.

—Senator Knox, the eminent corporation attorney, who was electing the remarked the Pennagylania rall.

Senator Knox, the eminent corporation attorney, who was elect-led to represent the Pennsylvania rail-road interests in the United States senate, declares that the railroad bill, as it stands, is unconstitutional. The friends of rate regulation have more fear of the "joker" that Senators Knox, Elkins, Aldrich, Foraker and others will try and conceal in amendments, than they have that the supreme court will decide that the rail-roads are to be protected instead of the people.

ments, than they have that the supreme court will decide that the railroads are to be protected instead of the people.

—All the cabinet but Mr. Moody are said to be out of harmony with President Roosevelt on the control of railroad rates, which shows how the leading Republican statesmen are owned and controlled by the corporations. No similar conditions have prevalled under any former administration, and it is safe to say that a house so divided against itself can hardly endure. It may come to this that President Roosevelt in self-defense will have to compromise with the corporations, or if he is an carnest reformer, he will have to invite Democratic statesmen to join his official household.

—Making the senate dance to his music is an altogether different propocition for the president to tackle from his old exuberant manifestations from its old exuberant manifestations as a cowboy of shooting at a tenderfoot's feet to make him dance.

—When such expert lobbyists as "Judge" Hamilton and "Lou" Payn agree that the admitted amounts paid eyes when they know the whole truth about the connection of the Republican committees with this "yellow

Alone.

The Republicans of Trego county, Kan., adopted a platform at their recent convention which contained this and nothing more: "Resolved, That we leave well enough alone." The Republican politicians of Trego must be part of the political machine that runs Kansas in league with the trusts and combines, but the voters have been kicking vigorously for reform. It is only the other day that. the whole state was up in arms about the Standard Oll trust and the unreasonable railroad rates, yet these Republican, politicians resolve that, we leave well enough alone. Yes, leave the trusts, the railroads, the life insurance companies and all the public grafters alone. They pay the boodle to the campaign fund and the Republican politicians control to the tax payers and the shippers and the policy holders are telling a different story. Instead of leaving the grafters alone they demand they shall be put in stripes.

All over the country the Republican politicians want to be let alone, but there seems to be a general determination to turn the razeals out.

Graft of Republicans.

Graft of Republicans.

One of the life insurance magnates has been arrested for giving a large sum of money, that should have been sacred to the widows and orphans of the policy holders, to the Republican national committee. President Roosevelt declared before election that not tainted money was being used in his campaign, but the evidence shows he was greatly mistaken, for the insurance trust and other corporations "came down" handsomely. The strange part of it is that the administration organs before the last national election declared that, the president was managing the campaign on a "business basis" and receiving ally reports of the finances of the Republican committee from Chairman Cortelyou. Was the president deceived or did he then think insurance money was not tainted? No resitution has yet been made, though it would seem that the etheics of the situation demand that the money be returned to its rightful owners.

FAITH OF COLLEGE CIRLS.

Them Against Locking Up Their Jewelry.

The recent arrest of a young woman for alleged thefts from the Smith college dormitories calls attention to the attitude of college girls in the mattar of safeguarding their belongings, says the New York Sun.
There is an unwritten law among college girls that nothing belonging to them shall be under lock and key, and they leave diamond rings blazing on their dressing tables and their pocketbooks peeking out of bureau drawers. If they mis a trinket er an article of apparel for a day or twothey or not worry, arguing that Elizabeth or Cenevieve or some other bosoin friend has simply borfowed it herself. Scarfs and gloves and handkerchiefs are often lent in this same careless fashion. The girls say that it shows a mean suspicion of their college mates, as well as an unaccommodating aptrit, to keep their valuables locked up.
Room doors are almost invariably

ap. Room doors are almost invariably unlocked, and as the entrance door of the dormitory is always unlocked there is nothing to prevent a woman on robbery bent from ransacking half a dozen rooms in a few minujes. President Seelye has risen in chapel again and again and exhorted the young women to keep their valuables locked up.

dozen rooms in a few minujes. President Seelye has risen in chapet again and again and exhorted the young women to keep their valuables locked up.

The students look grave at his admonitions, and for a week there is a great jingling of keys and a careful stowing away of rings, bracelets, brooches and the allowance which has proceduled and things are thrown around in any old way as before. Rings are slipped over a hatpin stuck in a pincushion, nockethooks are deposited in the chafing dish, laces dangle over a correr of the mirror, watches tick plantidly on the pin trays, necklaces are draped ground a perfume bottle and doors are kept wide open again. When a college girl suffers from robbery she does not regard the matter very seriously at farst, especially if the theft be of money. When the robberles become frequent she begins to think of a dishonest servant or men thleves.

When the culprit is proved to be a woman the college girl is almost as much upset as the criminal herself; but it teaches her no lesson.

Maybe for a month she will not leave her room without locking up everything, but at the end of the month she will argue that the thief has been apprehended, so that there is really no need to be so careful.

Whisky in Australia.

Australians apparently have about decided that if they are to continue trinking British whiskies they must have them pure. Five years ago the annual consumption of Scotch whisky in western. Australia amounted to about 2,000,000 gallons, but now it is not much more than 1,500,000. The decrease is ascribed to adulteration.

Setting Her Right.
Miss Blawsome—Dld you say that when Mr. Ketch came to see me the other evening he was mean enough to go and stop the clock?
Miss Chillion—Not at all. Some spiteful person must have told you that. I said he was ugly enough to stop a clock.—Chicago Tribune.

Governmental Edite.

Recently the Italian government issued an order that there was to be no smoking in business hours by officials whose duties brought them into contact with the public. For those whose intest do not it is left to the discretion of heads of departments to allow or to forbid smoking. But their discretion is limited to the cigar and the cigaritte. No pipes are to be allowed.

Heart Weakness

The action of the heart depends upon the heart nerves and muscles. When from any cause they become weak or exhausted, and fail to furnish sufficient power, the heart flutters, palpitates, skips beats; and in its effort to keep up its work, causes pain and distress, such as smothering spells, short breath, fainting, pain around heart, arm and shoulders. The circulation is impeded, and the entire system suffers from lack of nourishment.

UTARCH No. 3183.

Season

The great GERMAN COACH STALLION, PLUTARCH No. 3183, imported from Germany by J. Crouch & Son, of LaFayette, Indiana, now owned by the Burlington Horse Company, will make the season of 1906, from the 1st of April until the first of July, in the town of Burlington, Boone Co., Kentucky; the remainder of the time at L. A. Conner's stable, four miles south of Burlington, on the East Bend road.

PEDIGREE AND DESCRIPTION.

Plutarch No. 3183, was foaled June 8th, 1901; bred by H. Stukenberg, Hammelwardermoon,

Dam-Pavone No. 6423, by Tello No. 1190, by Young Othello No. 923, by Othello No. 755, &c. 2nd Dam—Pfalz No. 3087, by Claro No. 890, by Kimme No. 568, by Young Duke of Cleveland 200, registered in "The German, Hanover and Oldenburg Coach Horse Stud Book."

This Stallion is a Mahogany bay 16½ hands high, weighs 1300 lbs., has the size, color, and style combined with extreme knee action, lifting his feet high which gives elegance to his pace and action. His points are strong with clean bone under the knee and feet sound, open and tough. He carries his head well with neck very rangy, long and well cut up at throttle, having a fine ear, well set broad forehead with large intelligent eyes and has a fine gentle disposition.

In order to produce good colts it is not necessary to have fine or high brad makes as the Carrier

In order to produce good colts it is not necessary to have fine or high bred mares as the German Coachers being so long and strong bred will produce high class colts from all classes of mares.

The colts are fine and large and develop quickly. No other breed of stallions will produce as many good colts from all classes of mares.

It must be remembered that this class of horses always demands high prices and to-day they are the highest price horse on the market.

THE STRUGGLE IN PROSPECT THE PERFORMANCE IS WEAK

cratic Farty Only Bulwark Ignominious Failure of the Adm'n Against Tyranny of Centralised Power, Campaign,

The eventual struggle in this country will be between individualism and socialism and the Republican party, with its persistent efforts for ceatralization, is to blame for the growth of the—socialistic propaganda. The democracy has always stood for the freedom of the individual and home rule and opposed to the parent freedom of the individual and homerule and opposed to the parent freedom of the individual and homerule and opposed to the parent freedom of the individual and homerule and opposed to the parent freedom of the individual and homerule and opposed to the states and the people, is the fundamental doctrine of the Democratic party. Jefferson, the apostic of the Democratic declared his and no true Democrat socialism, shows by his conservative views in his article entitled, "Individualism vs. Socialism," in the Century Magazine for April his own and the Democratic position. In that article he says: "Much of the strength devioped by socialism is due to the fact that socialists also advocate. Municipal ownership of monopolies, for instance, is advocated by individualists, because it is practically impossible to have most and by the latter on the general product and by the latter on the general principles apply to them, and individualistic secance in the product and the secance of the product of the unthinking to ability, had secured a competence would follow the appropriation of the property of those who had amassed millions.

The Democrats are striving to curb and control by equitable Jaws the trusts, the corporations and individuals who are monopolists, so that the humblest citizen shall have equal opportunity with them, and the first step in that direction is to abolish the special privileges that the Republican party has granted its favorites.

Party of Degeneracy.

The Republican party has brought the country to a shocking state of affairs and there is no end to the scandais and exposures that are constantly being brought to light. That keen observer of affairs, the New York Post, says: "The present is a period of havoc and upheaval. The gale of re-reform that rages o'er the land lays hare most hideous conditions. A do-larized society, insensible to all but pricking selfishness, makes possible corruption high and low. Bribe, syatically exposed to the property of the property

—A woman in Oklahoma has caught and subdued a gray wolf without assistance. President Rosewell should appoint her for that special line of work on the Republican members of the United States senate.

—As public opinion is opposed to attacking the Chinese empire, the administration has stopped sending extra troops to the Philippines for that purpose. Our exuberant president is said to be ruffing for trouble, and only the sound comount sense of the country will prevent an explosion in some quarter.

It has been agreed by the administration that the attorney general must take an appeal to the supreme court from the decision of Judge Humphrey, deciaring corporation officials cannot be reached by the antitust law, who have given information to the bureau of corporations. So far the trust-busting campaign of President Roosevelt has all ended in smoke and the trusts and eoroprations are free to continue their combinations in restraint of trade to prevent competition and plunder the consumers by charging unreasonable prices for their products. President Roosevelt has been about five years trying to curb the trusts and the only one disturbed so far has been the Northern Securities company. Yet that corporation is still in existence and its constituent companies, the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific and the Chicago Burlington & Quincy railroads, are one and all continuing to charge all the traffic will bear and a good deal more than the people using those lines of transportation can well afford, as they did before proceedings were commenced against them.

What a travesty on genuine trust-busting.

Democratic statesmen foretoid this breakdown of the Republican plan of dealing with the giant corporations. They advised that under the common law such unlawful combination could be prosecuted, and the supreme court's recent decision in the tobacce case shows that the incriminating evidence may be compelled from the unwilling lips of trust magnates. But that advice was not adopted by the administration, perhaps, because it was recommended by Democrats, who would thus share in the political advantage. Lat. would accrue, but also: because it was not spectacular enough to fit the strenuous mood of the president. If the decision of the lower court in the beef trust case stands and the trust magnates and their employes, who have given confidentially to Commissioner Garfield or his agents any information, cannot be prosecuted, however much they may have offended against the law, the whole expensive missioner Garfield or hi they must endorse that Republican Kansas platform, "Let well enough aione."

—The Republicans of New York state are divided in the opinion of what to do with Odell, the chairman of the Republican state committee. The faction—that follows the president demands that he be thrown out, and another faction is inviting him to retire gracefully. Still another faction favors his retention. This should be a lesson to the Democrats to get together and put. their best men forward.

—Senator Tiliman may be relied upon to run that railroad rate special he has charge of, in spite of the danger signals the Republican senators are flashing on the track.

—The White House cook, since the beef trust magnates were set free by the court, dare not send up a rear roast to the dinner table, as the memory of the beef trust magnated victory makes the president want them in their products thoroughly roasted.

—The coal trust is very anxious for us to believe that it has not put up the price of coal, but if it wants to appeal to public opinion, it should reduce the freight and advise congress to abolish the tariff duty and the price of coal would come down.

—President Roosevelt rubs it into the people of Washington, who disagreed with him about the Barness way of treating ladies, by appointing Barnes postmaster, although he is a resident of New Jersey.

—Those Republicans of Michigan that want a high protective tariff on wooden shoes, not less than 125 per cent., when nearly everyone eise is clamoring for tariff reduction, can't have as much sense as wooden in dians.

—The Chicago socialists are said to be in favor of the municipal owner-ship of breweries, especially as the have as much sense as wooden Indians.

—The Chicago socialists are said to be in favor of the municipal ownership of breweries, especialty as the prevers have raised the price of beer.

—It is very disquieting to the nerves of Republican senators when Senator Tillman each day reads to his collagagues a letter, memorial or affidavit setting forth some particular instance of unreasonable railroad rates or the abuse of power by the coat trust against the little coal shippers. This is the way Senator Tillman gently sites up the Republicans and reminds them his pitchfork is still in good order.

WOMAN'S RELIEF

Mrs. Sarah G. Butts, of White Plains, Va., writes: "Cardui is certainly a panacea for suffering women. I was sunk in despair. Death is no worse than the pains I suffered periodically. Nothing relieved me, until I took Cardui. Now the pains have gone, and I am stronger than in 15 years." Try it for your troubles.

whale-oil scap solution, made as follows: Dissolve one pound of wale-oil scap in a gallom of bot water, and dilute with about six galloms of cold water.

Another scale insect, that may be classed with the oyster-shell bark-louse os far as its seconomic impertance is concerned, is the scurty bark-louse of the pear and apple. This scale (Fig. 2) is white in color, and, like the oyster-shell pest, is mest apt to work-on-poorly fertilized and poorly cultivated trees.

The scurfy scale is readily recognized on account of its whitsh, octour like appearance, and its oblong sbape. The eggs beneath the scales are in clusters, purplish in color, and they hatch out at about the same time as the oyster-shell aggs.

The remedy is as follows: Same as for oyster-shell bark-louse. In the opinion of the Farm Journal there is no better remedy for all scale insects than the lime and sulphur spray. Those who used it on their trees last month are all right, it is suffer and eagler to fight oyster-shell and accurty scales with whale-oil solution.

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes. 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

A naturalist says: "Men and animals are born with a propensity to fight. Is there in the whole range of the animal creation one animal that does not fight, if it has sense enough and powers of locomotion. Oysters and clams can not fight. If their organ of combatteness is not wanting, they have no use for it. They even devour each other, and may be said to eat themselves, for, changing their shell and stomach every year, these remains are generally the first morsel to gitt their new system.

There are many professions open to women; but there are not many men who have perfected professions for themselves. For that matter there are few men clever enough to originate new lines of work. Yet that is what a Chicago woman has done. She is Mrs. A. Br. McCrae. She has not named her profession and has no official title. She might be called a station beautifier, for her work consists in making more pleasing to the eye the station grounds and buildings which mark the ways of railroads.

Glants play a part in the mythology almost all the nations of Aryan de Giants play a part in the mythology of almost all the nations of Aryan descent. The Greeks represented them as beings of monstrous size, with hideous countenances, and placed them in abodes in violeante districts, whither they were fabled to have been ban-lished after their unsuccessful attempt upon-heaven, when the gods, with the assistance of Hercules, imprisoned them under Actpa and, other volcances. Echoes of the Earthquake.

At 3:15 o'clock, the 25th Inst., at San Francisco, a sbock of earthquake was felt. It lasted nearly a minute. A number of walls of burned buildings which were standing in a weak condition were thrown down. Mrs. Annie Whittaker, 25, was at work in the kitchen of her home in Shotwell street, in the Mission district, when the shock came. The chimney, which had been left in a tottering condition by the first quake, crasbed through the roof upon the young woman and fractured her skull.

A well known engineer states that the area devastated in the fire in San Francisco approximates 10,000 acres, or about 15 equare miles. Within this 15 square miles were nearly 100 banks, thousands of mercantile and manufacturing establishments and more than 230.000 inhabitants, besides 40,000 transients. The aggregate number of dead probably will not exceed 700 and will certainly not reach 1,000. The finance committee at San Francisco reports relief received as follows: The receipts from out of town sources, $2,112,701; local subscriptions, $1,250, faking a total of $2,135. Miscellaneous.

Chalrman Fowler, of the house committee on banking and currency, made a report on the bill providing for the deposit of government money in national banks without security and on which the banks are to pay two per cent. Interest. The report contends that-the-present system of locking up government money in sub-treasuries is harmful to commerce and a losing plan to the government from the standpoint of economy. In 27 years, it says, if the proposed plan had been in operation, the government-would have received from the banks $39,000.000 in interest and would not have lost a dollar through fallures.

DOWIE ENTERS ZION.

He Addressed a Large Audience in the Tabernacle Sunday.

Chicago.—Standing unsteadily and with great effort before an andience of 2,500 persons in Zion tabernacle, John Alexander Dowle, his voice strained to its utmost capacity, charged his traducers, if any were present to rise to their feet and make their accusations before the whole congregation.

The followers of Voliva the new leader, in Zion City's affairs, however, was at that moment attending a rival meeting, set for the same hour at the Zion college building, a quarter of a mile distant. There 5,000 of the city's linhabitants were gethered, together with the famous choir, now divested of its ecclealastical garb, and the Zion band and orchestra. Those who listened to the words of Dowle were for the most part visitors from other towns, brought in by electric cars and trains. For over an hour the crowd in the tabernacie waited for the appearance of the venerable "First Apostic." Immediately in front of the platform and in the choir loft were probably 150 of the faithful. Dowle was borne bodily by two stallwart negro attendants from an anteroom up the stairs to the platform and deposited upon his feet before the elaborate prayer altar.

He was attired in an apostolic robe of white and gold and purple which had never worn—before he plable. Upon his head was a turban of mary-volous pattern, embroidered in purple and gold. He delivered nis address and sermon seated before the altar. Occasionally when roused to an unusual pitch of earnestness, he rose to his feet. Mrs. Dowle, who has severed her alleglance with the Voliva faction, sat hu a wicker chair among Dowle's followers in the congregation. Except for the presence upon the platform of former Mayor R. D. Harper, Dowle was alone. He announced the hymns and led in prayer in a volce, the firmness and strength of which surprised those who have been in attendance upon him. He prefaced his sermon by a spirited denial of the charges that have been brought against him in the course of which he exhibited numb of the ferry impatience which unarked his discourse in times

Refugees of Frisco.

San Francisco. — The second Sunday, since the fateful April 18 has served ss a clearing house in the laffairs of this rilined city. While the old time quietude is missing, the day has witnessed less of the excitement, confusion and clamor of its immediate predecessors and the community at large has been enabled to make a claimer survey of the situation and to enter into a more intelligent and rational preparation for the future.

It being estimated that the city has suffored a loss of at least $200,000,000 by fire, it is conceded that there is not sufficient money in San Francisco to reconstruct the city snd that the people must look cleswhere, for funds to rehabilitate their destroyed fortunes.

Into Dry Community By Express.

Frankfort, Ky., April 28.—The court of appeals, in several cases of the Adams Express Co. against the commonwealth from Knox and Laurel counties, decided that the express company is guilty of fraud and liable to indictiment for shipping whisky from an unknown consigner in Clincinnati to local option districts in Kentucky and that such shipments were not bona fide interstate commerce shipments. The proof showed that pack ages of whisky were shipped to "Lock Rox No. —," and that the express company never notified the men to whom the packages were addressed; that the packages were addressed; that the packages were addressed; that the whisky was not ordered by any one to be shipped to Knox counts, but after it arrived there the lock box people would notify the consignees by mail that a C. O. D. package of whisk had been splipped. The court says these facts showed that no contract for the sale of the whisky was made in Cincinnati at all and therefore it was really sold by the express company in Knox county.

Limiting the pace by police regulations has no effect in the country. The thing is to limit the power of the machine to go beyond a certain speed.

The official reports received at the milistry of the interior on King Alfonso's motor feats on the roads round Blarritz will, I suppose, some day be published. Meanwhile they will lie in the archives of that department.

I hear from an official there that gandarmes were piaced along the roads, on which he had arranged to drive, not so much to guard him from anarchists and Carlists as to preserve the wayfarers from his impetuosity as a motorist.

It was thought that the sight of sundandan—of public order in uniform would remind him of the obligations under which he-lay to observe police rules. This sometimes answered.

But it seems that there is such a thing as a motor demon which is often indifferent to consequences, and that a king may be prompted by it like an ordinary mortal. Alfonso was as ready to risk the safety of his novika as his own life. After the rutty roads of Spain and that stony health, the Campo, he fold in France in a motor paradise and acted accordingly. NO LONGER A CURIOSITY.

Scientists Are Not Now Regarded as Lions by Captains of Industry.

Lions by Captains of.

Industry.

Exit the traditional scientific man with the traditional Yankee of the stage! Prof. Darlow, president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, writes that scientific leaders now sit with the captains of Industry, not as lions to be stared at but as representatives of science not only applied but pure. The canception of a scientific man as a captain of industry means simply the acknowledgment that science has a practical relation with the world and that fortunately the public has advanced far enough to see that pure science sooner of later develops into applied science.

The leaders of science are to be placed in the class of organizers, managers of a sort of sciencia trust. This is science to date. While science is organization its basis is the power of investigating. An organizer is or no use until there is something to organize. And the materials on which the organizer in science must work are not made by machinery, but by the brains of individual workers.

Aaron shook his head doubtfully, and then as a plan occurred to him, he said:

"Let us call the people together and demand of them that they choose new officers over them in place of these men who have gone to Pharaoh without our advice or consent."

"But what if the people would not listen to us or obey our voice? Is it not likely that in their sore distress the people would blame us for their trouble and rebel against our authority?"

There was a long, paintel pause, during which each seemed afraid to be the first to speak. They were face to face with a critical question. Dare they repudiate the leaderalip of Moses and Aaron? Could they forget that meeting of the officials and people when Moses had performed his wonders and shown that the Lord was with him? Could they ignore the message which God had given to him for them? These and other similar questions liable through their minds. And at last one faitering voice spoke up and asked:
"But we have seen the signs and know that Moses has been sent to us from God." Wigns?" Quickly replied Janziel. "Signs?" quickly replied Janziel, "what of the signs? Do not the Egyptian priests do similar wonders? Could it not be as readily claimed that they had authority from God? Who knows but these signs of Moses are but the skill he learned while under the tutelage of the priests when living at the paiace?"

"There is no better time than now to choose new leadership. Let us look

The men before him shifted their positions uneasily, and one after another withdrew behind Jahzlef, who nervously, but defantly, held his ground, and tried to look boldly into the face of the man before him. Again Moses spoke.

"Jahzlel, is thy hand in this? Fearest thou not God? Carest thou not for His promises?"

"Yea, but we will not have thy leadership?" angrily replied Jahzlel. "Will we men?" he added, turning about, and to which question there came but a haif-frightened and feeble "No."

"Considerest thou what thou art saying? Rememberest thou not the signs which God gave me to show thee that He had sent me unto thee?" And Moses held the rod before him as though he would again cast it upon the ground. Every eye was watching him intently, expectantly, but Moses checked the impulse. No man has ever lived long enough to settle that question.

No man has ever lived long enough to settle that question. It is with sorrow that the death of George M. Bedinger is announced. It occurred last Saturday, April 25th at his bome near Bakersfield. California. He was 50 years old, and was a son or the late Dr. B. F. Bedinger, who, in his day, was one of the most prominent citizens in Northern Kentucky, and owned a large area of real estate, a portion of which is the site of the thriving town, Erlanger. Geo. M. Bedinger was a citizen of Boone county for many years, and being a lawyer-by profession, though a farmer by chote, he was elected county attorney shortly after the close of the civil war, defeating R. C. Green the only time he was ever beaten. The duties of the office not being to his liking he resigned after a few months incumbency and Mr. Creen filted out the unexpired term. He was for many years a justice of the peace in Kenton, of which county he was a citizen when he left Kentucky for California about ten years ago. At one time he was an extensive land owner in Kenton county, helonging to him. His wife, who died several years ago was a sister of Thos. Fleming and Mrs. Jane Conner, of Richwood. Seyeral children aurrive him.

A Live Wire

Every nerve is a live wire connecting some part of the cond with the brain. They are so numerous that if you penetrate the skin with the point of a needle you will touch a nerve and receive a shock—pain it is called. Aches and pains come from a pressure, strain or injury to a nerve; the more prominent the nerve the greater the pain. When the pain comes from a large nerve it is called Neuralgia whether it be the facial nerves, or the heart, stomach, sciatic or other prominent nerve branch. To stop pain, then, you must relieve the strain or pressure upon the nerves. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do this.

PLUTARCH No. 3183.

The great GERMAN COACH STALLION, PLUTARCH No. 3183, imported from Germany by J. Crouch & Son, of LaFayette, Indiana, now owned by the Burlington Horse Company, will make the season of 1906, from the lat of April until the first of July, in the town of Burlington, Bonce Co., Kentucky; the remainder of the time at L. A. Conner's stable, four miles south of Burlington, on the East Bend road.

_PEDIGREE AND DESCRIPTION.

Plutarch No. 3183, was foaled June 8th, 1901; bred by H. Stukenberg, Hammelwardermoon

Plutarch No. 3183, was foaled June 8th, 1901; bred by H. Stukenberg, Hammelwardermoon, Germany.

Sire- Ailrat No. 1193, by Magnat No. 860, Agamemnon No. 560, &c., &c.

2nd Dam—Pala No. 3087, by Claro No. 890, by Kimme No. 568, by Young Duke of Cleveland No. 200, registered in "The German, Hanover and Oldenburg Coach Horse Stud Book."

This Stallion is a Mahogany bay 16½ hands high, weighs 1300 bis, has the size, color, and style combined with extreme knee action, lifting his feet high which gives elegance to his pace and action. His points are strong with clean bone under the knee and feet sound, open and tough. He carries his head well with neck very rangy, long and well cut up at throttle, having a fine ear, well set broad forehead with large intelligent eyes and has a fine gentle disposition.

In order to produce good colts it is not necessary to have fine or high bred mares as the German Coachers being so long and strong bred will produce high class colts from all classes of mares.

The colts are fine and large and deyelop quickly. No other breed of stallions will produce as many good colts from all classes of mares.

It must be-remembered that this class of horses always demands high prices and to-day they are the highest price horse on the market.

TREMS:—$20.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with. Parties breeding must follow up the season. Care taken to prevent accidents, but not responsible should any occur. Positively no service on Sunday. Pasture furnished and mares taken care of at $4.00 per month.

We will give a premium of $50 for the three best colts the get of this stallion of 1906, to be shown regardless of sex at the Florence Fair in the fall of 1907, the premiums will be awarded $25, $15, $10.

The present article is intended to give an application of the foregoing of artistic expression is not for disuse of symbol forms to decorative freatment. Decoration is to be understood as the application of form, line or color to surface for its heautification. The form, line or color is appropriate for such application which is considered for the especial use of the surface or object offering a chance for decoration.

Taste in Decoration.

In other words, taste dictates what presentation of a selected form should be chosen for the given-place for decoration. As taste is a variable point of view, differing in time and with peoples, the fixture of any point of view is open to dispute. Criterions of taste may be fixed for a certain people by the classics of that people. A broad catholicity of taste is able to recognize the good in the art of any people, but that is not fixing the style for any of them. Anyone familiar with the widely differing decorative principles of the Orientals or the changes of style that European art have undergone will understand this.

as one showing grace of line and repeat it under artificial conditions, that is, not giving it natural surroundings and individual consideration, but making a pattern or band of its, multiplied form, we have arrived at its decorative possibilities. One snail might be a picture of a snall, the same snall repeated results in a form of decoration. The same is the case with the violet band. The small arguments that may dispute this are walved as immaterial to the present intention. A single form, as the walved as immaterial to the present intention. A single form, as the dandelion, becomes a conventionalized one, and as such, material for certain styles of decoration, when it is multiplied and made io obey certain laws of symmetry which the natural flower would not serve. A naturalistic presentation may be equally serviceable for another form of decorative use, as the bunch of grasses, obeying—by natural infiliation the shape of the round in which it is placed. There the selection of quantity and the proportions of the whole space supply the decorative element.

The Japanese show us how a natural form may obey decorative treatment. The landscape by well considered spaces and reduction to few planes also serves in half-realistic decoration.

to obtain a decorative balance. Of course where it is so contrived as to represent the actual local color or marking ingenuity of design is gained.

Book Plate Designs.

The child's book plate is a figure motif given with freedom of line and almost natural treatment, relying upon the symmetrical readering of the whole mass to give it the character its purpose demands.

It is suggested to give the child forms and spaces to fill with decoration from motives to be decided upon or to be left to the child's salection. Try to direct the child's taste in the way of the hig and simple. Guard against a too realistic or overworked rendition, and where possible keep before the child good models, which in these days of a wider and broader appreciation of esthetics ought not to be so scarce.

Remedy for Disturbers of the Peace.

The devising of adequate remedies against disturbances of the public peace by bowling dogs and meowing cats has never been regarded as an easy proposition. The framing of a legal provision to do away with the cause of such disturbances taxed for a time the minds of those who drew up the present sanitary code. The last clause of this code, section 180, is as follows:

No person, owning, occupying or having charge of any building or premises shall keep or allow thereon or therein any animal or bird, which shall by noise disturb the quiet or repose of any person therein or in the vicinity, to the detriment of the life or health of any human heing.

The disturbance of the peace caused by an 'animal or bird,' a dog, a cat, a parrot or a crow, may justify legal intervention if detrimental to "the life or health of any human be ing."—which it seldom is. Sleep may be prevented by the disturbance caused by a dog without its being directly detrimental either to life or health, and it is this clause of, the sanitary code which gave the most trouble to those who devised it.

1t. was at one time proposed that this provision of the sanitary code should include the protection of citizens on "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," but while that had a patriotic ring, it fell short of fulfilling the requirements of courts that a provision of law involving a penalty should be at least reasonable. The sanitary code falls, therefore, to cover what is perhaps the most frequent cause of complaint over the disturbance of the peace hy animal or bird—a noise which interrupts repose, without being at the same time detrimental either to life or to health.

SILENCED THE CRITICS.

on Them.

It is a rather unsafe experiment to criticise a literary effort unless one knows all about it. The other evening a schoolgiri-went into the library where the family were assembled, to read what they supposed to be her latest composition. It was a description of a night in the woods, and when the schoolgiri read that the sky was a glossy blue-black, an artist sister interrupted her to say, gently:

'Oh, my dear, that's all wrong! Now, think, did you ever see the sky when it was glossy?'

But the schoolgirl only smiled and read on.

She referred to a drink of water.

But the schoolgirl only smiled and read on.

She referred to a drink of water as a "cold inward aspersion," and the room resounded with the laughter of her relatives as they set her right as to the use of "aspersion," as they understood the word. This the schoolgirl also took with unusual imperturbability; indeed, she read on until she had finished, and then she added, meekly: "Will it do?" "Certainly not," replied the critics, "it is very, very bad. There is a perceptible straining after effect. It is not nearly so good as the clever little things you usually write about 'Honor' and 'Industry.' You should keep to abstract subjects. Try to improve on what you, have written, however, and it may do."

you have written, however, and it may do."
"I don't think I shall," responded the schoolgirl, with a wicked smile on her plquant little face, "because this was written by Robert Louis Etvenson. It's a chapter from one of his books, and I don't believe I could improve on it—yet."

"Dude" from "Duds."

When Oliver Hazard Perry Belmont was in the house be was sometimes called "Tammany's Dude Congressman," and now an authority avers that "dude" is an English word, and was first heard on the streets and in the theaters of London in 1881 in connection with affectations in dress and manners. It is a revival of the colonial word "duds," meaning clothing, and its associated with "dudder," a peddier of dress pieces, and "duddery," a place where old clothes or rags were bought and cold.

THE WHITE PAINT OF THE WANTED FURTHER ORDERS. WHITE HOUSE. Color of Mustaphas to Be Raland Was

The White House at Washington, which has been the "Kings Palace" of the American Feople since it was first occupied by President Madison in 1809, has recently undergone a thorough course of remodelling, renovation and repair. Every American citizen is owner of an undivided eighty or eighty-five millionth part of the White House, as well as of the other Public Buildings and Monuments in the Gapitol City. An item in the renovation of the remodelied White House was repainting. Every visitor, to Washington knows why the White House is so called—because it is itterably a "white house". The exterior paint must therefore be white. Now while the pure white surfaces and simple lines of the White House, set in the midst of green iswns and beautiful trees, produce a very satisfying effect of dignified simplicity, white house is about the most unsatisfactory kind of paint that could have been selected by the original designers. First, because any white, paint is easily discolored by smoke and dust, and second, because ordinary white paint itself gradually turns gray or brownish yellow from exposure.

But white the White House is and white it must remain or it would no longer be the "White House". So the renovators, making the best of a discouraging situation, sought for the best kind of white paint procurable. The average citizen if asked to guess what kind of paint they finally decided on would probably answer—"white lead and oil," but be would guess what kind of paint they finally decided on would probably answer—"white lead and oil," hut be would guess what kind of paint they finally decided on would probably answer—"white lead and oil," hut be would guess what kind of paint they finally decided on would probably answer—"white lead and oil," hut be would guess what kind of paint they finally decided on would probably answer—"white lead and oil," hut be would guess what kind of paint they finally decided on the city of the paint was used instead of another is a mere accidental detail—there are fifty or a hundred hrands o

Do you know the origin of the phrase "Up Sait River?" Before steam, avigaion along the Ohio was carried on by fiatboats, which were rowed up stream. This was particularly hard work, especially up Sait river, a dangerous, crooked-branch of the Ohio river in Kentucky. When slaves were to be punished, this was a common method employed by their owners. Hence, at election times, people refer to sonding the defeated candidates "Ip Sait River" as a penaity.

TELEPHONE TIDINGS.

Liverpool has tried and abandoned a penny-in-the-slot telephone service. London, with three times as big a population as New York, has only two-thirds the number of telephone-namely, 80,000.

The first long-distance telephone cable in this country was that between Liverpool and Manchester. It was opened in 1880.

Wireless telephony has been invested by Mr. Thomas Gladwell, of Newport (Mont.), who claims to have had successful results up to a distance of ten miles.

The longest telephone circuit in the world is that between New York and Chicago. It is 950 miles for the longest in Europe connects London with Marselles, these places being 550 miles apart.

It is now possible to "ring up" the nearest railway station from a moving train, and to telephone, via the station, to any subscriber. An experiment was conducted successfully on the Highland railway.

GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS

Number of Pages Printed Increases Largely with the Pass-ing Years.

Ing Years.

At the beginning of the last century the printing ordered by congress in the conduct of legislative business was practically all that was required by the government, writes.

W. S. Rossier, in Atlantic Congressional printing, moreover, was limited to bills, reports, claims and journals. No exact comparison, therefore, is possible between that period and our own, since modern conditions hear no resemblance to those of a century ago. A computation, however, for different years through the century, of aggregate pages, issued, at least roughly lilustrates the rapid expansion of official requirement. The total number of printed pages of all classes published by the federal government in 1880 was 4,582; in 1840, 6,518; in 1840, 19,331; in 1860, 44,907; in 1880, 42,2171. After 1880 the use of printed matter of all classes increased at a prodictious rate, and, according to the report of the public printer, the total number of pages of all classes of printing in 1900 amounted to 31,264.

REPAIRING BRAIN

A Certain Way by Food.
Svery minister, lawyer, journalist, physician, author or business man is forced under pressure of modern conditions to the active and sometimes overactive use of the brain.
Analysis of the excreta thrown out by the pores shows that brain work breaks down the phosphate-of potash, separating it from its heavier companior, sibumen, and plain common sense teaches that this elemental principle must be introduced into the body anew each day, if we would replace the loss and rebuild the brain tissue the loss and rebuild the brain tissue the loss and rebuild the brain tissue of potash, as presented in certain field grains, has an affinity for albumen and that is the only way gray matter in the rain can be built, it will not answer to take the crude phosphate of potash of the drug shop, for nature rejects it. EXPRESSING CATTLE.

Express is always preferable to freight where the expense is not too great. Express companies require animals to be crated, and generally I use a short, light siat crate for little caives, with head protrading from the crate; t-bat is, the body alone is cased. With older and larger animals I use a large, strong and heavier crate, full-length of the animal, with the animal's neck placed in a sort of stanchion made of two hardwood sticks that run from floor to top, and are secured at each end. Feed can then be placed before the animal, and water will be given by the express company's people.

PLAN FOR SHIPPING CATTLE.

In shipping by freight, it is generally necessary for some man to accompany the stock as an attendant, and then feed, bedding, etc., is supplied for the trip, and the attendant is expected to care for, feed and water the stock. The animals can be placed in stalls that are made to the car, or in standhous which run the length of the car. These are made by taking two more at bottom, and at regular intervals place an upright which is securely fastened to these places, and also to the floor and roof of the car; then in between those places, and also to the floor and roof of the car; then in between those places, and also to the floor and roof of the train the place a place that reaches from floor just to the top of the frame, being place a place that reaches from floor just to the top of the frame, being place at place that reaches from floor made to the train the top to allow the animals of to the standholm. The diagram shows this stanchlom. The animals, of course, stand sideways in the car, and unless exceptionally large will have ample room in the ordinary eight-foot-wide-car, and leave a space in front of the standholm for feeding. Hay in small bales can be carried over the animals by building a sort of a floor over them. Water can be carried over the animals by over the animals are to be shipped by freight, suggests the Runal New Yorker, they can be tied in the end of the car, or a cheap stall made. The Amerskan sheep is coming to be more and more a matter of interest to the Amerstan farmer. It is doubtful if in this generation we shall again see the small laterest in sheep that has been shown during the past 15 years. This lack of interest was due to the fact that the sheep with which the farmer found himself 15 years ago was largely a wood-producing sheep, and wool was then decilings at a rapid rate. The demand for matten was much less then than now. In the 15 years there has been a great change in the character of American skeep. They are more largely snited for the production of muttos than they were then, and, moreover, the price of wool is again high enough to encourage the sheep owner to produce it.

The city people are demanding a sheep of higher quality than formerly, declares the Farmers' Review, and can hardly be satisfied with a sheep that has been brought up on weeds and broak. The sheep that is well edd from binth to the block is the oaty one that produces meat that brings a good price in the city markets. The sheep that have been grown on poor feed and sheen fattened quickly sell for a smaller price on the city market, as their meat is known to be not of the best quality. The American sheep may be a pasture cleaner, but it must have good grass also if it is to be profitable.

fer Miseries from Kidney Complaint.

J. C. Lightner, 708 South Cedar St., Abilene, Kanaas, is one of the thousands who anffer from kidney. Trobles brought on by daily work. "I first noticed it eight or ten years ago, said Mr. Lightner," the dull pain in the back fairly made me sick. It was hard to get up or down, hard to a traighten, hard to do any work that brought a strain on the back. I had frequent attacks of gravel and the urnle was passed too often and with pain. When I used Donn's Kidney Pills, however, all traces of the trouble disappeared and have not returned. I am certainly grateful."

Washington. — Secretary Hitchcock received a telegram announcing the indictment of 21 wellknown citizens at Portland, Ore, in land cases as told in a press dispatch from that city. Mr. Hitchcock stated that he was exceedingly gratified with the result of the investigation and that the government's case was considerably strengthened because of the heavy bond fixed by the court, $4,000 in each case. He said that it was the intention of the department to secure a speedy trial of the cases if possible and that he expected further reports from agents in the middle western states who are conducting an investigation along the same lines. The irregularities charged are stated to be under the timber and stone act.

A STORY OF THE HEBREW PEOPLE'S STRUGGLE FOR FREEDOM "Highway and Byway" Preaches

All. O Nile, thou comest forth over this in and; thou content in peace, giving alle to god!"

Thus chanted the priests and the priest as they are the priests and they are the priests as they are the priests and priests are they are the priests and priests are they are the priests of the great testival upon the river's brink. The coming of Phiracoh with his royal retinue, and priested priests of the great temple was the signal for an outburst of enthusiasm and great rejocing. As the immense wooden image of the river god, Apis, horne aloft in the midst of the company of priests, passed, the people be used in reverent awe, and then falling in behind the king and his attendants, the procession moved down to the river's brink. The people caught up the song of the priests and chanted with them:

"Hall, O Nile, thou comest forth over this land; thou comest in peace, giving life to Egypt, O hidden god!"

The place selected for the oremonities of blessing the waters of the Nile was a large and beautiful garden extending along the banks of the river for some distance. Here it was that Pharnoh came for his daily abbitions, and none might enter within the borders of the place. But once at pearing the ceremonies at the river's brink and after the return of the king to his paice, the people would linger for the dancing and feasing that filled the day.

The procession moved forward to the point where Pararoh's throne had been set. The apirits of the people ran high, and they watched the movements of the priests, expectantly. The latter placed the lange of Apis on the pedestail at the brink of the river before the throne and deen set. Pharach moved down the isle thus formed and took his place upon the throne.

Then again the song of the priests was raised as they chanted their hymn. "Hail, O Nile," the words vang out on the air and floated over the waters of the peaceful and beautiful river whose surface flecked and sparkled in the bright sunshine and seemed to flash back its greeting:

"Hail, O Nile," they sang, and then stopped ahruptly as they saw the king isse audelny, and with an expression on his face of half anger, half consernation, point towards two figures which were advancing from behind the pedestal on which the image of Apis had been placed.

The song was forgotten, an oppressive, not yous hush fell upon the throng, and all eyels were turned in the direction in which the king, his courtiers and priests spell-bound, the two menmoved and ceme and stood before the matery within rendered him speechless. And the priests and attendants likewise made no move.

"It's Moses and Aaron," whispered one of the court attendants, uneasily. "Yes," responded his companion, the sprehension he felt sounding in his voice. "What brings them here, I wonder?"

"See," exclaimed the first speaker, "Moses has his rod with hill. My, were

"See," exclaimed the first speaker,
"Moses has his rod with him! My, were not the king's magicians chagrined and astonished yesterday when Moses' reptile awailowed up heirs?"
"And did you note the effect on Pharach? He seemed troubled when his magicians were unable to recover their reptiles."
"Yes, but his anger seemed rather against Moses and Aarog, than against his own magicians, and I wender that the former have dared come into his presence again. But listen. Moses is speaking," and the two strained their ears to catch his words.
"The Lord God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee," Moses said, and then paused.

Darest thou at such a time come and speak in the name of thy sod?".

"Sacrlege," angrily muttered the priests and they would have leaped upon Moses and Aaron and driven them from the place had not some unseen influence held them back.
Undanited by the angry looks cast upon them, or the words of the king, Moses again spoke:

Scripture Anthority:—Exodus 8:16

EVER before had the great temple at Memphis been so unclean. For days, yes, and nights, the army of attendants had on the dead carriage and they had had no time to remove the dust and dirt which had accumulated. And as though this filthy condition was not enough annoyance to the priests, whose religious rites and ceremonies required such rigid tathing and cleaning, the stench arising from the heaps of dead frogs in the sages spaces about the temple hiled the air and made the situation almost unheavable.

Jannes and Jambres, the chief

Janues and Jambres, the chief meists of the temple, were in any-thing but an amiable mood, and as they passed through the court of the temple on the way to their apartments, they lifted their white linen mobes high that they might not be mairched by the filth on the pavement, and grumbled as they went. Noticing the slow movements of one of the attendants, Jambres angrily exclaimed: "Faster! You will never get this

The poor fellow, too weary almost to feel resentment, tried to hasten his collects, and Jannes, with more feeling than his collects, and Jannes, with more feeling than his collects, and the place of the frags, and it is no wonder they are weary. Curses be apon the Hebrews, who have brought this upon us."

"Aye, but we may be thankful that the king is more than ever incensed against them, and it is certain that he will not let them go, as they have requested," responded Jambres.

"Had we not boldly withstood him though after he had pleaded with those to task his God to remove the leathsome peats, i fear he might have included."

"Yea, but did we not tell him that we had the heathsome peats, if ear he might have presided."

"Yea, but did we not tell him that Just as the bloody waters of Egypt would recover their freshness, so would this plague subside? Are the gasts of Egypt dead that we should listen to a despised Hebrew?"
They had now entered their private spaintiments, which they found as fifthy as the other portions of the temple. Seating themselves, they continued their conversation.

"Well, if our plot had not falen herough just when we were on the law of the success," exclaimed Jambres, waxgely, "there would be no Moses ow to trouble us. But the fellow who sengled the job won't spoil any more if ear carefully laid plans, that's sure, but what's that'?" he cred, pointing excitedly at the dust through which issues still continued to poke his taff.

James still continued to poke his stall...

It appeared to become suddenly animated and the thick covering upon the floor and furniture about the room became a wrigsling, moving mass. With a startled cry of mingled fear and horror, the two men, forgetful of their priestly dignily, aprang upon the chairs where they were stiting, but were there they sweet stiting, but were there the squirming mass followed them, and the rustle of their cobes started up a cloud of dust that was transformed in its flight into the same little green mites, and these settled upon them—upon their head, and habes and quickly burrowed within and crawled over the flesh of the horse.

Their disgust and terror was now sugmented by the pain caused by the seepling, crawling, billing things, and with a cry of distress they rashed tream the room and into the outer more. But there there was even greater confusion. The attendants, who had been busily cleaning the temple, see jumping and running about as abough mad. They were tearing their wast attire from them and slapping, and the them. The temple was fairly all we with the loathsome mites, the floor was literally a rolling, guarding sea of them, and the men as a timy and slipporty mass.

At that moment a runner burst into heir midds, calling loadly that the long had sent for his magicians, demanding that they come at once to be galace, for he was in distress, hought that leaconfort, Jannes and head they called the compile their disconfort, Jannes and head they called the compile their disconfort, Jannes and head they called the compile their disconfort, Jannes and head they called the compile their disconfort, Jannes and head they called the compile their disconfort, Jannes and head they called they come at once to be galace, for he was in distress, hought their disconfort, Jannes and head they come at once to the galace, for he was in distress, hought their started at once. As they the same the started at once to the painter of the same them.

howling was heard, and as they opened the door leading thereto, there spep past them like a flight of arrows scores of the beast, maddand by the arrivating lice. The sacred bull could be heard snorting and rearing about in its quarters, and the rattle and map of its silver and gold trapplings told the story of its frantic moves. Along the way they saw the people excitedly running about and trying frantically to rid themselves of the little pests that covered them. And they, too, were fighting the lice, desperately brushing and shaking to drive them away, but as fast as they got rid of those already upon them others sprang up from the dust beneath their feet.

"This is more of that man Moese work." smarled Jannes, shaking himself, impatiently. But Jambres was too busy rubbing and seratching himself, impatiently. But Jambres was too busy rubbing and seratching himself and trying to obtain relief from the liec to make reply. And thus, instead of their stately, dignifed entrance to the king's presence, they entered his apartments with nervous, halting steps, and found him in like distress of body, for in place of the cold serently and haughty dignity with which he invariably received his omicials, he moved uneasily on his throne, and then nervously rose and shock himself and took his seat again. At his eyes fell upon Jannes and Jambres, his face somewhat lightened, and he cried, excitedly:

"What means this dreadful visitation." What means this dreadful visitation?

"What means this dreadful visitation." What means this dreadful visitation at all."

Then were Jannes and Jambres filled with confusion by the words of the king, for they had taken no thought as to the manner of calling forth the lice as Moese had done. They knew not what reply to make to their lord, and stood in embarrassed silence before him.

shool in embarrassed sileane below him.

Recovering their self-possession at last, however, they cleverly parried for time, eaying:

"Know, O king, that in so important a matter all thy magiciane and sorerers of the temple must be summoned, that we may have the help of all those who serve before the gods of Egypt. But let not thy heart be troubled in this thy distress. Have we not about Pharaoh the furning of the water to blood, and the calling forth of frogseven. As Moses alid, and shall we not again triumph."

"Go then," cried Pharaoh, impatiently, "And return at once, for I shall be awaiting thee here."

Soon, in answer to the hasty anmmons, the magicians and sorcers of Egypt were hurrying to the palace from every direction, and held hasty. consultation with Jannes and Jambres, who delayed the return to the royal presence so long that the king, nawilling to wait longer, sent imperative word that they appear.

Then was begun a moet desperate struggle upon the part of the king's magicians to turn the dust to lice. Their where disability is the server of the structure of the record all their enchantments and in the frenzy of desperation beat their breasts and called upon their gods to hear and asser, but there came no answering sign. With eager intensity Pharaoh watched every move of his magicians, and when they threw themselves upon the ground before him in token of their failure, he waved them to blood and the frogs appeared."

"Let Jannes and Jambres appear. They shall not fail us even as they did not when the rivers were turned to blood and the frogs appeared."

"Let Jannes and Jambres who now came and stood before the king. But at last after echanating themselves in their efforts they sank to the ground as the others had done, and a solemn stillness as of death feliupon the place.

Chicago, Ill.—At a meeting over which John Alexander Dowle presided at Zion City Sunday afternoos was broken up by a number of followers of the opposing faction, assisted by several outsiders, and before the crowd dispersed, a free fight occurred.

Dowle was addressing the audience, numbering about six hundred, and made the statement that the overseers of the Voliva faction were Chieves and robbers. At once a number of those in the audience were on their feet shouting "No, no; you are the robber; why don't you pay your debta?" The disturbance became so violent that a Zion guard was sent to restore order. The guard took hold of an old green head of the plant of the condition of the plant of the plan

CONTENTION IS ABSURD. SUBSIDIES AND PROTECTION

Speaker Cannon has been smoked out of his tariff hole and forced to give a reason why the tariff should not be royled. He declared in a private letter to a trust pottery mannfacturer protected from competition by the tariff, that "the desire for a change which exists in the common mind will drive the Republican party. If continued in power, to a tariff revision." He said he did not want it, but it would have to come "in the not distant nuture." This letter having been published compelled Mr. Cannon to make a further statement of his position. He starts off by saying that the amendment of a single schedule, or a few schedules, is "entirely impracticable." In his judgment "sorbing can be done except by a complete revision of the tariff." That, he says, "would halt production, consumption and commerce for at least 12 months," and the result would "probably not be an improvement on existing law." "For the general interest of the whole country," he thinks the revision, toward which "the common mind" in its desire for change is driving the Republican party "should be postponed as long as possible."

This disagreement of the uncommon mind of Speaker Cannon with that of the common people is mething new with Republican politicians. Their affuliations with the corporations, trust and combines oblitarates any sympathy for the plundered people. But tariff revision and other reforms will come, not through the aid of the unwilling Republican politicians towards the protective tariff is a fetting the control of the desires of the Deinocracy and hide the start of the common people is mething new with Republican party.

Shaw in the Limelight.

Scretary Shaw is carefully preparting plans to keep his presidential boom alive. He is accepting invitations right and left to make addresses at school commencements, banquets and conventions throughout the middle west, which will keep him busy for about two months in the spring. The fact that he delayed leaving the cabinet for one year, at the urgent request of the president, has not materially changed Mr. Shaw's plans to capture the presidential nomination. He had expected to resign his cabinet portfolio on the first of the present month and devote himself exclusively to promoting his political ambitions. This scheme included a series of speeches to be made wherever he could get a representative audience, and tour through the middle western states, where he expects to get enough votes in the national convention to make him a factor in the race for the nomination. These speeches will be delivered according to the original programme, but the length of the tour, in the exemples of the control of the con

Mt. Sterling, Ky., May 12.—The Keatneky and Ohio Burley Tobacco association has begun making arrangoments to control the crop of burley tohacco raised this year. The organization has been held intact during the winter, and Archibald Stuart, president, has sent out letters of encouragement to growers, insisting on their attanding firm. He nrges the curtailing of the acreace by 32 per cent. this year, and says that he believes a small crop will command an average price of 14 cents per pound. The organization of the company in the various counties of the burley district will at once be gone over and permanent officers elected. The company is now in a safe way for finances with which to handle the crop, and it is stated work will at once begin toward securing the pledge of 30 per cent. of the tobacco raised in burley territory. The raisers who entered into the contract last year realized better prices than they would have done, and the indications point to a successful realization of the hopes of the president and his associates. The company will have stronger hacking against the truet this year than ever before.

Sy Court of Appeals.

Frankfort, Ky., May 12.—The case of Anna Durrett vs. Sheriff of Kenton county was affirmed by the court of appeals. The judgment upholds the validity of the act of the recent legislature which provided for the redemption of the Kenton county turnible bonds issued under a plan that washeld to be nijust by the courts. In summing up the case the opinion saysi. The power of fixing the burden of taxation to meet the indehtedness arising from the construction of turnibles in Kenton county being originally possessed by the legislature, when it was afterward ascertained that the first plan was unjust and inequitable it was within the prevince of the law-making power to readjust this hurden upon a new and more cepitable plan."

The court also affirmed the case of the trustees of the Latonia graded school ye, the Latonia board of education from Kenton county, and held that the board is entitled to immediate possession and courtrol of all Latonia's school property.

Has Caused a Sensation.

Paris, Ky., May 12.—A Sensation was created here when it became known that James D. McClintock had filed unit for 255,00d damages against the seven members of the republican county committee who recently passed resolutions expelling him from the republican party and appointing sergeant-at-arms to keep him out of party meetings. The resolutions also cenared him. They were later declared by committee as not approved by them.

WANTED INJUNCTION.

Covington, Ky., May 10.—An appil-cation for a restraining order against striking miners, and officers of the United Mine Workers of America at Stearns, Ky., was brought to the clerk of the United States court by Attor-ney J. N. Sharp, of Williamsburg, but, was not filed because in the meantime further time was granted the striking miners to move out of the company's houses in Whitley county.

Dam—Pavone No. 6423, by Tello No. 1890, by Kimme No. 568, by Young Duke of Cleveland No. 200, registered in "The German, Hanover and Oldenburg Coach Horse Stud Book."

This Stallion is a Mahogany bay 16% hands high, weighs 1300 bs., has the aise, color, and style combined with extreme knee action, lifting his feet high which gives elegance to his pace and action. His points are strong with clean bone under the knee and feet sound, open and tough. He carries his head well with neck very rangy, long and well cut up at throttle, having a fine ear, well act broad forehead with large intelligent eyes and has a fine gentle disposition.

In order to produce good colts it is not necessary to have fine or high bred mares as the German Coachers being so long and strong bred will produce high class colts from all classes of mares.

The colts are fine and large and deyelop quickly. No other breed of stallions will produce as many good colts from all classes of mares.

It must be remembered that this class of horses always demands high prices and to-day they are he highest price horse on the markst.

TRENS:—$20.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with. Parties breeding must follow up the season. Care taken to prevent accidents, but not responsible should any occur. Positively no service on Sunday. Pasture furnished and mares taken care of at $4.00 per month.

We will give a premium of $50 for the three best colts the get of this stallion of 1906, to be shown regardless of sex at the Florence Fair in the fall of 1907, the premiums will be awarded $25, $15, $10.

PUBLIC OPINION FEARED.

Their Doings from the People.

Don't waste your time denouncing our portations. A corporation can only act through its president and board of directors. To attack a corporation is but waste of breath, but the officials and directors are the ones that are subject to the penalties of the law audie to the great moral force of public opinion. The coal trust is aculless, but be reached and cal companies who are illegally combined to plunder the public and prey on the miners, can be reached by the law and eventually will be. Although trust magnates' skins are wonderfully thick, yet they are amenable to public contempt, which is a wonderfully sharp waspon. Back of the coal trust and the sue! trust is J. P. Morgan, hurl your shafts at him. The Standard Oll corporation is really the Rockfellers and Rogers. The sugar trust. Is Havemeyer. The New York Central railroad is the Vanderbills. The Pennsylvania and Baltimora & Oho railroads are entirely controlled by Cassatt; the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific and the Burlington by Hill; the Southern railway by Morgan, the Southwestern railroads by Harriman, and so it is with the other systems. The industrial trusts are illewise mostly controlled-by-one-man.

President Roosevelt speaks of "good and had rousts" but the Irusts and cor-other systems. The industrial trusts are likewise mostly controlled—by one man.

President Rooeveit speaks of "good and bad trusts," but the trusts and corporations are only what their managers make them, and the honest or dishonest directors, or managers, should be praised or blamed.

How powerful public opinion is on those corporation officials who have sinned is shown by the self-bapishment of Rockfelder to avoid appearing as a witness, and the filtting of the insurance gratters. The corporation cannot be punished. If you fine it, the money comes out of the pockets of the shareholders, so that anathematizing corporations is so much vanity. That is where the efforts of President Roosevelt against the trusts have failed of accomplishment: The case against the Northern Securities company, which resulted in its yittual dissolution, has lad no effect, but if the law had been brought to bear on President Hill he would probably have been glad to see competition resumed between the Great Northers and Northern Pacific Tailroads.

The administration has utterly failed

Northera and Northern Pacific railroads.

The administration has utterly failed in all its anti-trust contests. Every trust, combine, or corporation is still a monopoly, as far as it can be, and continues to plunder the people as much as the business sagacity of the wanagers consider desirable. Will the voiers who are the victims of trust and corporation rapacity indorse the feeble efforts of the administration at trust-busing? A true reformer, with all the great power of the government at his command, should have been able to put the bodies of some trust magnates at hazard in the courts.
But not a trust magnate has been convicted.

Public opinion with its mora' force

Public opinion with its mora force atone has done more to curb the trust nagnates, and if the contempt of the people is centered on the persons and not on the Impersonal corporation, it will have still greater-effect. Underneath afil this, however, is the cause that has fostered the trusts, and that can only be removed by the adoption of the good old Democratic doctrine of "Equal rights to all and special privileges to none."

Open to Them.

A Republican congress is a rich field for the corporations and trust to get in their work, and when a bill is pending that is intended to plunder the people their lobbyists gather around the corridors of the capitol like buzards at a feas.

Mr. Carlisle and Mr. Crisp were speakers of a Democratic house, the corrupt lobby was eliminated. But how different now. THE "MUCK RAKE" MAN. Disliked by the President for Un-covering Administration Scandals, covering Administration Scandals.

President Roosevelt's intense dislike of "the man with the muck rake" can hardly be wondered at, for "the man" has uncovered so many scandals that the Roosevelt administration will go down into history as the most disreputable era of Republican supremacy. If there had been no muck, the rake would have remained idle. Was not a rake necessary to uncover the insurance graftling, the postal frauds, the land frauds, the Panama grafting and mismanagthe Panama grafting and mismanagthe Panama grafting and mismanagment, and would President Roosevelt have prevented the exposure of these scandals, because it unmasked the corruption or connivance of some of the highest officials of the Republican party? It is no easy or pleasant task to wield the rake, but the man who does stir up the muck in an evenhanded manner, telling the truth without fear or favor, is a public benefactor.
The fact is, the Republican foliticians had become so intrenched in power that the grafters thought that anything they did, however vicious, would be unobserved by the people, but the man with the rake, with his publicity, exposed them and the Reoublican party which was responsible or them.

SURRENDER OF ROOSEVELT

SURRENDER OF ROOSEVELT Railroad Senators, It Appears, Have Forced Compromise on Rate Bill.

When President Roosevelt When President Roosevelt decided to compromise on the railroad rate bill, it indicated that his view of duty had succumbed to party expediency. The spilt in the Republican ranks was so evident that at a conference at the White House, it was decided to offer an amendment upon which it was hoped most of the Republican senators would agree. This partisan policy will probably end in the proposed rate bill being of but small-value to the people, for the railroads will have the opportunity to hold up in the courts any rate made by the interstate commerce commission.

The disgust of the Democratic sen-courts any rate made by the interstate commerce commerce commission.

The disgust of the Democratic senators was expressed by Senator Stone, who declared, "the railroads should be satisfied with what they had accomplished with the president. The very proposal of that amendment was a triumph for Senator Aldrich and his party coadjutors. But it affords a sad and sorrowful example of a president tial flasco. However, it is another instance-of our mighty man of destiny and duty backing away after one of his spectacular grand stand performances. We may all be sorry, but we have n reason to be surprised."

ances. We may all be sorry, but we have no reason to be surprised."

Corrupt Senators.

Ominous stories are said by a New York newspaper to be afloat in the senate, that a clique of big senators, who will know what the final vote on the railroad rate bill will be, are to have "a good-thing" in the stock market. It can be done in a very effective way by enough Republicans standing together either against or for the proposed legislation. If this is true, these Republican senators will find they are playing with fire, for the voters are in no mood to be trifled with. To make sure of a square deal in the future the greatest eare must be exercised in electing members of the state legislatures, in those states where senators are to be elected. By voting for tried and true Democrats, who are pledged to vote for a candidate for senator who is not a stock gambler or in league with corrupt corporations, and whose character makes it certain that such cambinations will be impossible, if the voters elect spemocratic majority.

Palm deach, F.a.—Joe Frazier, who was born with a hankering to get on in the world, and who could see no better way than starting an alligator farm; has starled the millionaire visitors at the Beach by moving his whole menagerie of sawbacks down from his original lagoon incubating ground to the sands of the beach, where he expects to reap a fortune by selling young live siligators as watch-charms to the men and as substitutes for chameleons to the indies. He had some difficulty in moving them recently. Some of them got out, chased the visitors off the beach and took a hand at bathing in the surf. "But, "asys Joe," an alligator is as innocent as a lamb if you take him right, and take him before he takes you."

He doesn't see why anyone should object to the near presence of his peta. "Er young 'gator makes a pretty watch charm if he is tied up by a gold chain so's he can't bite," he says. "An'they is a heap sight prettier than them lizzards wat wimin is a wearing sround on their dresses."

Jo's farm, a mile or so back on the shell road, has been a favorite sight for visitors, and everyone who goes there wants to take home a basketful of young sanppers, just to prove that he has heen in Florida.

The big ones lie around in the yard, away and eat any stray dogs or cats—that happen—to intrude, and the females occupy their time by laying eggs. The eggs Joe digs out and places in the sun in an old cance, which makes a fine incubator. Here they hatch out in the mellow sunshine and crawl over each other and take lessons in biting off each offer's tails. One of the proprietor's favorite stories to make has visitors' eyes stick out is that alligators' eggs are fine eating, and that he has alligator eggs are fine eating, and that he has alligator eggs are fone eating, and that he has alligator eggs on tonst every morning.

"ALLIGATOR JOE" WITH BOATLOAD

Tral park had suddenly been turned into a breeding place for wild alligators, and that the pools were full of them. Women refused to let their children go there. The keepers and policemen kept finding half-grown 'gators in the water. Then the secret came out.

Hundreds of people who had visited Joe's farm had taken back young 'gators as pets and kept them in their homes in the city till they got big enough to try to eat up the children and cats and dogs. Then, in desperation, the owners thought of Central park as being the easiest way to get rid of their voracious pets.

When Joe started his alligator farm the 'gator tribe had begun to disappear, and dealers in alligator hide were beginning to substitute mottled cow hide for handbags and other gewere beginning to substitute mottled cow hide for handbags and other gewere beginning to substitute mottled cow hide for handbags and other gewere beginning to substitute mottled cow hide for handbags and other gewere beginning to substitute mottled cow hide for handbags and other gewere beginning to substitute mottled cow hide for handbags and other gewere beginning to substitute had good deal to feed them white growing!" said one visitor.

"Oh, they eat each other when they be huggy," he said: "an 'if half of them's that born grows up my profit is good, 'cause I sligt fed 'om arything but their brothers and sisters."

Girl Faces Fierce Boar.

East Liverpool, O.—The presence of mind and bravery of a young girl saved the life of her father, Joseph Johnson, aged 80, a farmer, who lives near New Cumberland. A flerce boar invaded his premises and Johnson undertook to drive it off. The animal knocked him down and rolled him over a bank. It was attacking him with its take and would have killed him had not his daughter come to the rescue. With a club she attacked the beast and not only caused it to relinquish its attack on her father but drove it off the piace. Johnson, besides a broken rib, sutailand severe contusions and lost considerable blood.

THE POINT OF THE PROVERB

An old proverb advises the shoemaker to stick to his last, it means that a man always succeeds best at the business he knows. To the farmer it means, stick to your plow; to the blacksmith, stick to your plow; to the blacksmith, stick to your prose; to the painter, stick to your brush. When we make experiments out of our line they are likely to prove expensive failures.

It is amusing, however, to remark how every one of us secretly thinks he could do some other fellow's work better than the other fellow in the state of the failures. The painter imagines he can make paint better than the paint manufacturer; the farmer thinks he can do a job of painting better, or at least curer; the farmer thinks he can do a job of painting better, or at least the paint better than the painter, and so on.

A farm hand in one of Octave Thanet's stories tells the Walking Delegate of the Painters' Union, "Anybody can slather paint;" and the old line painter tells the paint salesman, "None of your ready made mixtures for me; I reckon I ought to know how to mix paint."

The farm hand is wrong and the painter is wrong: "Shoemaker, stick to your last." The "fanor, farmer can farm, of course, but it is an expensive amusement. If it strikes him as pleasant to grow strawberries at fifty cents spiece, or to produce eggs that cost him fire dollars a dozen, it is a form of amusement, to be sure, if he can afford it, but it's not farming. If the farmer likes to slott around with a paint twas measured. If the harmost wall is none of these cases does the shoemaker stick to his last.

There is just one class of men in the world that knows how to make paint properly and have the facilities for doing it right; and that is the paint manufacturer- the makers of the standard brands of ready-prepared paints. The painter mixes buints the paint manufacturer prints then paint was prefect right to indulge his harmless vanity about his skill in paint making. But if none of these cases does the shoemaker stick to paint it its often as it needs paint is only

When Jules Simon was ten years old, he found a small red partridge dying in the snow. He took the bird home and warmed it into life. One of its legs had been broken, and Simoa, seeing that the fracture was too bad for setting, amputated the leg with his pocketknife, and replaced it with a wooden one. Two days later the partridge was as happy as possible, and the tick-tack, tof: tax wooden stump was to be heard all over the house. It became an inseparable companion of young Jules Simon, who named it Cornells, and it followed him about wherever he went the partridge was a hallstorm, and killed by the stones before Jules Simon, could go to her help. Miss Ruby Mushrush Mrs. Alice Berryhill

A recent number of the Winnipeg (Manitoba) Free Press contains an excellent article on the prospects in Western Canada, a portion of which we are pleased to reproduce.

The agents of the Canadian Government, located at different centres in the States, will be pleased to give any further information as to rates, and how to reach these lands.

"Just now there is a keener interest than ever before on the part of the outside world, in regard to the claims of the Canadian West as a field of settlement. At no previous time has there been such a rush of immigration, and the amount of information distributed broadcast is unprecedentedly great.

"In the majority of the States of the Union and in Great Britain the opportunities for home-making and achieving of even a modest competence are at the best limited. Moreover, according to the social and industrial conditions prevalent in those communities, the future holds out no promise of better things. It is not strange, then, that energetic young men should turn their eyes to Canadas great wheat belt, where every man can pursue fortune without the hindrance of any discouraging handicap.

"The inducements held out by Western Canada are powerful and made manifest by the great movement now in progress. That the prospects are considerably more than reasonably certain is borne out by the history of the country and its residents. The promise of gain is powerful, but when added to it there is the prospect of a corresponding social and civil elevation, it should prove irresistible to young men of a particularly desirable class, for any new country.

"The Canadian West is alive with opportunities for the young man who aims at becoming more than a mere atom in the civil and national fabric. Some of the eager young fellows who aims at becoming more than a mere future great municipal and civil prominence is, and will be, the farm. For every professional opening there are hundreds of agricultural openings with opportunities for the honest and industrious of all classes, but they are spe Going through the hospitals in our large of its one is surprised to find such a large proportion of the patients lying on those snow-white beds women and girls, who are either awaiting or recovering from serious operations. Why should this be the case? Simply because they have neglected themply because they have neglected them on the increase among the women of this country—they creep upon them unawares, but every one of those patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warning in that bearing-down feeling, pain at left or right of the abdomen, and the standard of the control of the country of warning in that bearing-down feeling, pain at left or right of the abdomen, and the standard of the season of the standard of the country of warning in that bearing down feeling, pain at left or right of the admit of the season of the same of the country of the season of the season of the season of the country of the season of the season meaning a wicked looking old rifle about nine feet long, sitting in a corner.

While we had an up-to-date, supposed-to-be air-tight and carefully sealed metalic casket, yet it gave unmistakable evidence of its contents. So after arranging our wagon and horses so the horses could eat grass and the little hay we had left, we took our stand in the mill to watch and sleep, glad to have the jolly old fellow with us for protection and company.

We were not disturbed during the night, which was due, possibly, to the reputation as well as watchfulness of our kind old host and old Betsy, for they were constantly on the alert during the night and woe would have been unto anything that loomed up before old Betsy, distance being no obstacle. Our kind host explained that old Betsy was named for his wife, and was just as true and reliable as she, which was saying a whole lot for old Betsy—I mean the gun; that he furnished bear, deer and wild hog meat for two and sometimes three and four families with old Betsy and he was not done yet.

After an early breakfast the good old lady prepared for us a nice lunch—nice because it came free and was the best she could do—of that delicious bread well buttered.

HON. J. W. KENNEDY,

(Commissioner for Boone County.)

Thousands of Kentuckians who bave been absent from their "Old Kentucky Home," for many years, will return during "Home Coming Week" next month, and there will be jny throughout the length and breadth of the State. Old friends who have been separated for years will be brought face to face, and father and mother will again have an opportunity to embrace the son, who, long since, cast his fortune among strangers in a strange land.
Every county in the State has native sons and daughters who have gone elsewhere to seek their fortunes. Of these Boone has a large number, many of whom will avail themselves of "Home Comin g Week," to visit the scenes so dear to them. That these home-comers f may be given a proper welcome on the part of Kentucky Gov. Beckham has appointed a commissioner for each county, who will establish beadquarters at Louisville, where the home-comers of each county, will register. Hon. J. W. Kennedy, of Union, has been appointed commissioner for this county, and he has named his assistants, who will extend a welkome hand to each returning Boone county man or woman whose identity is made known. To properly conduct a county's headquarters will require considerable financial assistance on the part of the people of the county

Business opened uplively in Burlington, last Friday morning Kreitzer was on hand at an early hour with his stock car and received a load of veal calvee and pigs. He had not left the scene before Tony Bentler, of Covington, arrived, and soon had under way a horse trade which he pulled off with William Clore, of Jocust Grove neighborhood. Bentler then sought W. J. Rice and was soon on a dicker with him which resulted in the purchase of a horse at a good round sum. By the time Bentler had closed up his deals, Morris Judge, of Erlanger, accompanied by a gentleman from the city, rolled in to town and unloaded at B. B. Hume's livery and sale stable, where they looked over Mr. Hume's stock. They soon found horses the looks of which pleased them, and in a short time they were hooked up and given a trial in harness, which-proved—so satisfactory two sales were made in a short time, at very satisfactory prices to Mr. Hume.

Keep Your Nerve

It is nerve energy that runs the organs of your body. The storage battery is the nerve cells in the brain and spinal cord, and from this battery nerve force is sent out through the system of nerves. To keep the body healthy you must have plenty of nerve force; if you have not, the organs work imperfectly, the circulation is sluggish, digestion bad, appetite poor, kidneys inactive, and aches, pains and misery are the penalty.

You can keep the system strong with Dr., Miles' Nervine. It assists in generating nerve energy; it strengthens the nerves and makes the whole system strong and vigorous. Detroit, Mich. — Fragmenlary reports that have reached here from Escanaba and Gladstone, Mich., stating that a disastrous forest fire is racing that a disastrous forest fire is racing in the upper peninsuls in the neighborhood of the two cities mentioned. It is reported that three towns have been destroyed; that 30 square miles of territory have been devasuated and that several persons have been burned to death.

The reports of loss of life by the forest fires are very vague and may prove ungrounded.

During the evening persistent efforts were made to get into telegraph ic communication with Escanaba via St. ignace, but without success, the legraph lines having evidently been badly crippled by the fires. Several brief dispatches were received, however, from Menominee and Marquetts. The village of Saunders is reported wiped out of existence. Quinnezee, a village of 1,000 populations about 50 miles from Menominee, is burning. Reports from Menominee. Is burning. Reports from Menominee estimate that half a dozen villages and hundreds of farm buildings will be entirely destroyed.

half a dozen villages and hundreds of farm bulldings will be entirely destroyed.

Milwaukee, Wis.—A tour of the district in the upper peninsula of Michigan covered by the forest fires in a special train, the first train to go through the district since the catastrophe, shows that the fire appears to be practically out in all the district. The fire raged for a distance of 64 miles along the line of the Bacanaba and Lake Superior railroad and for 30 miles beyond Channing, the western terminus of the road. It seems certain now that 2,000 persons are homeless in that district and that 1,000 are left desolate at Quinnesc. The Quinnesce fire, however, was of different origin from the Bacanaba fire, having started in a field where men were pulling stumps and burning debris. This fire spread into the city, wiped out all the buildings except three residences and the paper mills. Then the fire spread into the timber and running north for 40 miles finally joined the flames sweeping east of Bacanaba. It was also learned that Wooddawn and Kingsley, on the Escanaba and Lake Superior line, were destroyed, and Perkins on the Northwestern.

Woodlawn and Kingsley, on the Escanaba and Lake Superior line, were destroyed, and Perkins on the Northwestern.

The strip burned along the Escanaba and Lake Superior road appears to be 30 miles wide and the alarming nature of the earlier reports of the fire seem to be thoroughly verified by the trip.

Stories of heroic battles against the fiames are numerous. Dozens of towns were saved only by the most desperate battle with the fiames. Northland, a town of 1,000 inhabitants, was three times threatened. First the fire swept town of 1,000 inhabitants, was three times threatened. First the fire swept toward the place from the north, but was checked when two residences were scorched. Wagons with barrels of water prevented the spreading of the fire. Driven away the fire swept west and then returned from that direction and again was stopped. A third time the fire spread into a great tract of timber south of the town, which reached up to the doors of the houses in that part of Northland and a third time was checked. Many freaks were seen. The home of one man, who carried the coffin with the corpse of his dead baby 30 miles to Escanaba, went back on the special train and found his home gone but the picket fence surrounding the house untouched. The ashes of his home had been swept away.

A remarkable feature of the fire is the fact that nearly all of the retugees are not disheartened, but are determined to return and begin over. They have only the clothes they wear, but say this is the fortune of the frontiersmen.

fects the bowels because white bread by mearly all starch, and starch is digested in the intestines, not in the atomach proper.

Up under the shell of the wheat berry nature has provided a curious deposit which is turned into diastase when it is subjected to the saliva and to the pear-creatic inces in the human intestines. This distates is aboutely necessary to digest starch and turn it into grape-sugar, which is the next form; but that part of the wheat berry makes dark flour, and the modern miller cannor readily sell dark flour, so nature's valuable digester is thrown out and the human system must handle the starch as best it can, without the help that nature intended.

Small wonder that appendicitis, peritonitis, constipation and all sorts of trouble exist when we go so contrary to nature's law. The food experts the perfected Grape-Nuts Food, knowing these facts, made use in their experiments of the entire wheat and barriey including all the parts, and subjected them to moisture and long continued warmth, which allows time and the proper conditions for developing the disastase, outside of the human body.

In this way the starch part is transformed into grape-sugar in a perfect ynatural manner, without the use of chemicals or any outside ingredients. The little sapikiling crystals of grape-sugar can be seen on the pleces of Grape-Nuts. This food therefore is naturally pre-digested and its ure in place of bread will quickly correct the troubles that have been brought about the human race to-day.

RAILROAD RATE BILL WAS PASSED BY PRACTICALLY UNANIMOUS VOTE.

Only Three Votes Against---It Has Received More Attention From the Senate

And the Country at Large Than Any Measure That Has Been Before Congress Since the Repeal of the Purchasing Clause of the Sherman Act of 1893.

Washington, D. C.—After seventy days of almost continuous deliberation the senate Friday at 4:53 p. m. passed the railroad rate bill by the practically unanimous vote of 71 to 3. The three negative votes were cast by Senators Forsker, republican, of Ohlo; and Morgan and Pettus, democrats, of Alabama. There was an almost general sigh of relief among the members. The bill has received more attention from the senate and from the

It was reported to the senate on February 35 and was made the unfinished business and was made the unfinished business on March 12. From March 12 to May 4 the bill was under general discussion without limitation on the duration of specieles, fifty-eight of which were delivered.

For 12 days the bill has been under consideration under a rule limiting specifies to 15 minutes each. The debate has at all times been earnest and animated, but for the most part devoid of personality sis between senators, the past few days, however, having called out some caustic criticisms of the president and of some newspaper correspondents by Senator Balley.

In addition to passing the bill the proceedings consisted in concluding the consideration of the amendments as such and the delivery of a number of speeches on the bill. The only amendment adopted was the one of feered Thursday by Senator Teller etiminating the words "in its judgment" from the power given to the interstate commerce commission to fix rates.

The Rate Bill.

commerce commission to fix rates. The Rate Bill.

The principal purpose of the rail-road rate bill, passed Priday, is to permit the interstate commerce commission to fix rates. The provision conserving this authority is found in the fourth section of the bill, which amends Section 15 of the interstate commerce law so as to accomplish this result. That section directs the commerce law so as to accomplish this result. That section directs the commerce law so as to accomplish this result, and unreasonable charges on the part of the common carriers in the transportation of persons or property or of regulations or of practices affecting such charges. It also authorizes no inquiry as to whether the rates or practices are unjustly discriminatory or unduly preferential or prejudicial or otherwise in violation of the act, and in case any of these conditions are found to exist, the commission is empowered to determine and prescribe what will be the just and veasonable nuximum rate and what regulation or practice is just, reasonable and fair. Further, authority is given the commission to enforce its orders and they are to go into effect within 30 days and continue in force for two years, unless suspended, modified or set aside by the commission or by court of competent jurisdiction. Other powers conferred by this section are: To apportion joint fares, establish through routes and maximum joint rates and prescribe their division and determine the compensation to be paid to shippers doing service for carriers.

Award For Pecuniary Damages.

Award For Pecuniary Damages.

Section 16 of the present law is so changed as to provide for an award of pecuniary damages to complainants found entitled, and in case payment is not promptly usade in accordance with this award, the beneficiary is authorized to file suit in a United States circuit court to compel compliance. The finding of the commission is to be received as prima-facle evidence of the facts in such suits and the petitioner is absolved from all ilability for costs. Anothr prevision renders legal the service of the orders of the commission through the mails and provides that these orders shall take effect 30 days after service, unless suspended or set aside by the commission or suspended or set aside by the courts. A

Washington.—A minority report condemning the Bonyange bill recently reported from the house committee on election of president, vice presidentan election of president, vice presidentan election of president, vice presidentan representatives in congress, and giving the federal courts jurisdiction in election fraud cases, has been filed in the house. The report includes an argument to show that the constitution unity gave to federal authorities jurisdiction over the election as a final safeguard to the union, that there is no extraordinary condition at present which calls for exercise of this power,

It is made the duty of carriers to fun-nish special car service upon reasona-ble requests.

Senate amendments include oil pipe lines, express companies and shipping car companies under the head of "com-mon carriers," and make them annea-ble to the requirements of the bill.

Senator Aldrich Uncompromising opponent of sever magures against the relifereds.

Where senate medifications prohibit the fisuance of passes or the granting of special favors to one class of passengers over another; prohibiting rail-road companies from transporting commodities produced by themselves; require such companies to put in switches at the reasonable request of shippers; prohibiting the granting or acceptance of rebates—and relinstate the imprisonment penalty for violation of the law.

There are also chances in the last relative to the reports to be required of common carriers and a penalty of $100 a day is imposed for failure to comply with the report requirement.

The commission is given access to the accounts of the companies affected by the act, but examiners are forbidden, under penalty of heavy fine and long imprisonment, for divulcing the facts ascertained. Fines of $500 for each failure to keep proper accounts is provided. A faisification of accounts is made punishable by fine and imprisonment.

Reminiscent of 4th Congress Were Scenes In and About the House.

Washington, D. C.—Reminiscent of the strenuous days of the 47th congress were the scenes in and about the house Friday. Hardly had the journal of the house been approved when the democrats, under the leadership of Mr. Williams, of Mississippi, began the first year, their object being to defeat the bill paying to the estate of Samuel Lee, of South Carolina, 310,482 for allowances made by reason of the election of Lee, a negro coatestant for a seat in the 47th congress.

This bill has been roported favorably at nine congresses, six times by republicans and three times by democrats. The certificate of election which Lee contested was given to Jino. S. Richardson. The committee on elections reported in favor of Lee. A vote was taken on the resolution to give him the seat held by Richardson, 124 voting in favor of the recolution and 114 against. Lees contest progressed no further. The democrats began a noted filluster, and the 47th congress died by operation of law without a quorum being present. Friday's filluster rollowed along similar lines, Mr. Williams resorting to every known parliamentary tactic to encompass the defeat of the measure. There were numberless roll-calls and still more divisions demanded and taken, and the bill was finally passed.

Akron, Ohlo.—Hidden in a haymow on the Delbel farm, three miles

Minnie Barnati, 19, was found by Henry McMshon, a hired man on the farm.
Although McMshon did not recognize the features, his discovery cleared the mystery surrounding the dissppearance of the girl in the latter part of January. For six hours after, being brought to the county jail in Akron to avoid the possibility of lynching. Leo Delbel, aged 19 years, who was arrated on the charge of committing the crime, stolldly muintained his innocence. At confessed, describing in awful detail how he killed his victim with a 28-callber rifle.

"I wanted to marry me, but mother objected. I was driven to it," exclaimed the young man. Coroner Humphrey and Dr. J. S. Davidson performed an autopsy. They found the girl had a bullet through her head, and her temple had been fractured with some blunt instrument,

While being questioned and stoutly maintaining his ignorance of the crime he suddenly broke down and said:

"I'll tell the truth—I did kill her. I wanted to marry her, poor Minnle. God knows how I loved her, but mother wouldn't let me."

"Then he told the story of the crime." Igot her from her home one Sunday night in January, three days before the marder. I drove her to my home and placed her in the haymow, because my mother wouldn't let me bring her into the house. I couldn't marry Minnle, mother said, unless I had her consent, because I was under age. When I told Minnle she said:
"I' wish you would kill me if you cannot marry me, for I can never go back home and izee my folks." Mother kept her way stubbornly. Minnle's plea impressed me, and on Wednesday night i went to the haymow and shot her. That's all there is to it."

Emperor Nicholas Refuses To Receive Deputation With Address.

St. Petersburg.—A bomb which was thrown into the parliamentary camp Sunday afternoon by a note received by President Moroumtseff, of the lower house, from Peterhof, which, instead of making an appointment for an audience at which be and the deputation could present the address in reply to the speech from the throne, contained the information that Emperor Nicholas would not receive the deputation and that the address must be presented through the ministry of the court.

An interesting constitutional point is involved in the refusal of a personal audience by the emperor. According to the parliamentary law 'the president submits to the consideration of the emperor he transactions of the lower house," but it is not stated whether he does so personally.

A representative is informed that Emperor Nicholas was willing to receive President Mouroumtseff, but that the action of the house in appointing a delicyation to accompany him was regarded as a dangerous precedent, capable of being stretched to include a deputation of any size.

Frankfort. Ky. May 18.—Frankfort. has an eight-year-old hero. Wilson't Long, Herman Allen and another boy, all three being eight years old, were walking on a raft of logs that was ted to the river bank near the railroad bridge Thursday afternoon. The hittle Allen boy, who can not swim, atopped on a log that was loose at one end and fell headlong into the river. One of the other boys was fightened and ran to the bank crying. Not so with sturdy little Wilson Long. He determined to save Allen. When the boy came up for the first time his head struck the bottom of a skiff and sot a hard bump. Wilson grabbed him then, but was nearly pulled into the river and he had to let go. He stretched out flat on the raft, and when Allen came up for the second time he grabbed him and held on. He can not tell how he did it, but he managed to pull Allen up on the raft, and when Allen came up for the second time he grabbed him out on the band and rolled bim over and over with his head down hill and in a few minutes Allen began to revive. In 15 minutes he sat up and in a short time walked to his bome.

On the New Louisville Jockey Club By Owners of Douglase Park.

Louisville Ky. May 16.—The owngers of Donglass park, backed by the Western Jockey club, sprang a surprise on the new Louisville Jockey club and the American Turf Association, when they suddenly appeared before United States District Judge Walter Evans and secured a temporary restraining order designed to prevent interference by the state racing commission with a meeting which it is proposed to hold at Douglass park beginning June 2. After the state racing commission was constituted by act of the recent legislature the Douglass park people, who are backed by Cella, Adler and Tilles, of St. Louis, and John Condon, of Chicago, made application for dates beginning May 14. The dates were refused, the commission announcing that one of its principal functions would be to prevent a conflict of dates. It was understood that the word "conflict" covered the entire state, and as the commission granted long dates to Latonia, another American association track, to follow immediately after the new Louisville Jockey club closed, the chance for Douglass park securing any acceptable dates this year from the commission seemed poor. The temporary restraining order issued is a sweeping one. It directs Charles F. Grainger, Louis DesCognets, Milton Young, J. P. Chinn and E. F. Clay to appear before Judge Evans May 22 and show cause why they should not be restrained from interfering with the said meeting or the right are with racing at Douglass park beginning June 2 and ending July 7."

Zand Dam—Pralz No. 3087, by Claro No. 890, by Kimme No. 563, by Young Duke of Cleveland No. 200, registered in "The German, Hanover and Oldenburg Coach Horse Stud Book."

This Stallion is a Mahogany bay 16½ hands high, weighs 1300 lbs., has the size, color, and style combined with extreme knee action, lifting his feet high which gives elegance to his pace and action. His points are strong with clean bone under the knee and feet sound, open and tough. He carries his head well with neck very rangy, long and well cut up at throttle, having a fine ear, well set broad forehead with large intelligent eyes and has a fine gentle disposition.

In order to produce good colts it is not necessary to have fine or high bred mares as the German Coachers being so long and strong bred will produce high class colts from all classes of mares.

The colts are fine and large and develop quickly. No other breed of stallions will produce as many good colts from all classes of mares.

It must be remembered that this class of horses always demands high prices and to-day they are the highest price horse on the market.

TRRMS:—$20.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with. Parties breeding must follow up the season. Care taken to prevent accidents, but not responsible should any occur. Positively no service on Sunday. Pasture furnished and mares taken care of at $4.00 per month.

We will give a premium of $50 for the three best colts the get of this stallion of 1906, to be shown regardless of sex at the Florence Fair in the fall of 1907, the premiums will be awarded $25, $15, $10.

match of song was running through her head:

"Cast your bread upon the waters."

"Why not cast flowers upon the waters, or the mea lost at sea?" she cried,

It was an inspiration and had come to a woman who had the energy to marke it great.

Her plans were formulated that very shay and with the hearty indorsement of the state superintendent of public instruction she sent out a circular letter to the heads of schools in all the causat towns of the country proposing that such a doral memorial be observed by the school children of California in hamour of the heroes who fought the last shattle for the flag upon the sea, and the result was the first glorious observance along the Pacific coast May 30, 1396.

the result was the first glorious observance along the Pacific coast May 30, 1300.

Thousands of children marched to the water's edge and with reverent hasds scattered the wealth of California, nowers upon the lapping waves, liktling their young voices in songs of spatriolism and remembrance. Naval vectorans and naval reserves assisted, and from San 'Francisco to Santa Monica and to the blue crescent of Catalina, there were flowers, flowers, wat everywhere flowers, wreathing the waves and foating out upon the titles is memory of the soldier-sailor dead chart lie in quiet rest beneath the ocean—from the far cold waters of the north to the coral rects of the sun-klased.

In the Far Mediterranean.

The sallor boys aboard of one of thacte Sam's ships in the Mediterranean sea last year remembered the 30th of May. They had no flowers such as grow on land or in the depth of the sea, but sallors are clever with their fingers, and out of such poor things as shavingsthey made and colored the most delicate artificial flowers, and roses and illies, tuilps and chrysanthemums kinsed the blue of that far-off ocean.

Under the personal direction of Mrs. Forbes, possibly the most remarkable observance of all was held inst year off Brighton beach, just outside of San Pedro barbor, California.

Three United States war vessels took part, the Wyoming, the Preble and the Paul Jones, the small tupboat Warrior, on which the services were held, taking its position, with its precious freight of people and flowers, in the center of an imposing triangle, formed by the three iron-clad guardians of the nation's peace.

After appropriate exercises the solumn burial service was read aboard the Warrior, which was in command of Capt. Cottman, of the Wyoming, and illies and roses, carnations and every flower in California's great garden were showered with lavish hands upon the mirroring blue of the water beneath. Emblems, anchors, stars and wreaths were dropped with murmured prayers. Every man, woman and child aboard the little ug had a part and from the three war vessels which had been supplied with flowers, officers, marines and honest tars dropped bright blossoms layenemory of some comrande gone before. As the volleys for the dead were fired six stutely flower boats, shaped like the graves of soldiers and bearing upon their canwas sides laurel wreaths of victory, anchors of hope and blessed immortelies were cut loose to drift whither they would upon the bosom of the broad Pacific.

A sudden hush. High up on the Wyoming a lone bugier appeared and there came the notes that tounded taps: lower and adder the Warrior took it in pand off in the distance came back to tell the living how sweet a thing it is to be r

Ambitious But Incompetent Beginners.

It is surprising to discover how very differently people who have played parts all their lives deport themselves hefore the footlights, writes Richard Mannfield. In Atlantic. I was acquainted with a lady in London who had been the wife of a peer of the realin, who at one time had been a religing beauty, and who came to me, longing for a new experience, and impioring ms to give her an opportunity or pages in the properture of the realing who at one stage. In a weak moment connected, and, as I was producing a play, I cast her for a part white! I thought she would admirably suit—that of a society woman. What that woman did and didn't do on the stage passes all belief. She hecame entangled in her train, she could neither sit down nor stand up, she shutted, she could not be persuaded to remain at a respectful distance, but insisted upon shrieking into the actor's ears, and she committed all the gaucheries you would expect from an untrained country weach. But because everybody is acting in private life, every one thinks he can act upon the stage, and there is no profession that has so many critics. Every individual in the audience is a critic, and knows all shout the art of acting. But acting is a gift. It cannot be taught. You can teach people how to act acting—but you can't teach them to act. Acting is as much an inspiration as the making of great poetry and great pictures. What is commonly called acting is acting acting

They were strolling through one of the uptown parks, plainly mother and daughter. The latter a child Between five and six years of age. The daughter evidently is learning the letters, and has the regular order of the alphabet well in her little mind, relates the New York Sun.

Passing under a big oak tree, the mother stopped and picked up a handful of acorns with their cups that had fallen from the tree.

"Look, Kathle," she said to the child. "you can take these home for cups and saucers for doily."

"What are they, mamma?" cried the delighted child.

"Acorns," said the mother.

"Because they grow on that oak tree," said the wise mother.

"Then why not Ocorns?" queried the deep thinking little one.

"Il spank you, darling, when we set home if you ask me any more such foolish questions," answered the affectionate mother.

NORWAY EXPORTS SEAWEED

An Industry That Has Surpassed Fishing and Agriculture in That Country.

Fishing and Agriculture in That Country.

Seaweed selling is the price of certain Norwegian prosperity. The gathering of seaweed in southwestern Norway has assumed the proportions of a large industry, which has surpassed fishing and agriculture in fortune building. Farmers collect the apparently worthless growth, burn it, and sell the ashes to representatives of various manufacturing institutions in other countries. These ashes contain valuable chemical properties, including lodine. Old debts have been paid and small farms that were isolated and surrounded by unproductive land have had their boundaries extended by draining of marshes and clearing of rocky wastes that have not been utilized or productive since the stone age. Twenty years ago thers was not a moving machine in the district, while now there are movers, hay rakes, harrows, and other modern machinery on nearly every farm. Modern dwellings and barns for grain and stock have replaced the ancient buts. The transformation has been so great that farming in this locality has become veritable American.

Pet Phrass of a Store Clerk, Repeat-edly Used, May Have Hit the Mark.

A clerk ln a clothing store in southern New Hampshire, had an amusing habit of using, on all sorts of occasions, the expression. That helps some." If a customer came in aud found a suit of clothes of the right pattern, even though the price was too high for him to think of buying, the clerk would utter the consoling words. "That helps some." If the clothes were cheap enough, but were several sizes too large or too small, still he would remark, "That helps some."

still swould remark, "That helps some."

One day a lady came into the store and asked to be allowed to see an asortment of neckties. The polite clerk spread out an array of these goods for her inspection, and while she was making her selection he noticed that ahe looked exceedingly sad and tearful. The clerk ventured some comonplace remark, which led the woman to explain that her burden was a very heavy one; that she was left with but little money and with several small children to support.

"My hushand," she said at last, "has gone to a better world."

"Well," said the clerk, deeply moved, "that helps some."

GROWTH OF SOUTHWEST.

Great Increase in Population Show in Texas and the Ter-ritories.

Southwestward the course of empire is taking its way. That region's expansion is greater since 1990 than it was prior thereto. Not only are Texas and its two territorial neighbors on the north keeping up their old galt, but Arkansas, Arizona and New Mexico are showing an increase not previously touched, says the Metropolitan.

Snail's Sense of Smell.

Emil Jung, a professor in the University of Geneva, say that snails perceive the odor of many substances, but only when a lost far away. In order to prove this it is necessary mercly to dip a glass rod in a strongly smelling substance, and bring it near the large tentacles of a snail in moulton. If it is put close to these horns, the tentacles are violently drawn back. As the animal perceives the odor, it changes its course. Snails also smell by means of their skin. Contact is not necessary for the mere vicinity of a perfume causes an indentation of the skin. Snail's Sense of Smell.

Australian Rabbit Traps.

In two traps, set at a small water hole on an Australiah ranch, 630 rabbits have been caught alive in one night. The traps used were ingenious devices which let the rabbits out, one by one, as fast as they are trapped into a small yard made of nortable wire fencing.

THE REIGN OF DARKNESS.

A STORY OF PRIME PARTY P

Fuel Have Been Distinguished.

The coal measures are made up of alternating beds of shales, sandatones, clays and black lignite or lignito-bituminous coal, besides a few small bands of limestone in their lower horton. As many as five different beds of fuel have been distinguished. These measures, sary the Engineering Magazine, increase in thickness, but apparatine, increase in thickness, and the last apparatine, increase in the content of coal toward the morth shore. A little southwest of Calahaga bay, the earst, first mining coal by means of expensive spanish insbor and later (1963-64) with the help of Japanese. Here the maximum thickness of coal seams examined is about five feet, but near the south shore, toward the western end of the island, 20 feet of roal was penetrated by a drill; and at the apex of the anticline on the Urgera pertenencia there is an almormal accumulation or over 30 feet of mineral fuel. However, the greatest normal thickness of any seam on the island, measured at the surface by me, did not exceed eight feet.

Of the just stated thickness at the outcrop was the "Big tree" seam, from which a, sample lot of fen tons gave highly satisfactory results when thoroughly tested on board the United States army transport Wright late in Aprill, 1904. Compared with the "Kishima" coal from Japan, tried almost stimultaneously under identical conditions, the Batan coal was found to contain 25 per cent. more lump, to produce the same speed of 13.3 knots per ton per hour, to yield less than the formal fuel, instead of 19 per cent. There was also less work involved in firing with the Batan reluction of dry refuse, instead of 19 per cent. There was also less work involved in firing with the Batan reluc

Rule of Turk Nearly Over.
The Turk really seems to he making his last stand in Europe. That has been said before, we know, and the saying has not been justified. But an end of an evil thing is some time inevitable, and every year that passes surely brings it nearer. Turkizh rule in Europe has long been hopelessly had. Plece by piece it has failen or has been torn spart until now only a remnant is left, in which the Turks themselves are a small minority, and that remnant is heset on every hand with a determined aggression which presages its complete destruction intended in the not distant future. Moreover, the Turkish empire in Asia, the stay and bulwark of the European part of the relous trouble in several quarters and is threatened with much loss. In every quarter, Indeed, north, south, east and west, the Turk is beset with seems that there is little left but for him to kneel on his prayer rug and perish as hecomes the faithful.—N. Y. Tribune.

Musical Australia.

Musical Australia's desire to shine in at least one song or one "piece" may be gathered from the fact that 180 musical professors of either sex are giving lessons in the teaching rooms at Allan's, in the Meibourne hlock. The professors are mostly men who teach singing, the pupils being mostly girls; and these 180 names are to some extent a selected lot.

Then, as she looked upon the kind old face, a feeling rushed upon her that she must share her wonderful news with somebody—she must let someone into the secret which till then had been the sole possession of herself and Harold. She sprang up and flung her arms about her aunt's neck.

"Oh, auntle," she cried impulsively, "you do love me, don't you? Kiss me, auntle, and tell me you do—kiss me!" But only an alarming gurgle came from the old lady for a moment. Then she said, gasping indignantly:

NO KOWTOWING FOR HIM. A WOMAN'S ORDEAL

They tell this one on former Gov. George Hoadly of Ohio:
Once spon a time, in the midst of a campsign, Mr. Hoadly was to deliver a speech at a little town in the great and giorious Buckeye State. When he reached the one hotel the town boasted he walked up to the register and wrote his name. The proprieter-head-porter-steward-headwalter-depot - runser was behind the desk in his shirt sleeves, his hat on the back of his head, and a cigar stump held between his teeth. When the visitor had put down his John Hancock, the factorum turned the register around, read without the flicker of an eyelid the name there written, wrote '10° headed it with a lead penell, and said: "You kin jest take yor grip right up that stairway there an' back down the hall clean to the 'end. Yer room's right on th' left hand side of th' hall, in the orner—number 10."

With considerable astonishment and not a little injured dignity Ohio's chief executive pointed to his name, smited faintly, and said:

"I am George Hoadly."

"Yey: I notice," said the rustic without turning a hair. 'An' yer room's right there at th' end of th' hall—number 10. Can't miss it."

With more hauteur, and almost quivering with outraged importance, the guest said impressively.

"I am George Hoadly, governor of the state of Ohio!"

Turning, then, with a look of exasperated impatience on his face, the hotel man exclaimed:

"Weil, what d'ye expect me t' do—kiss ye?"—Judge.

By some means a mother and daughter managed to gain access to Paderewski's sanctum. The mother was proud of her daughter and the daughter had aspirations. She desired Padrewski's opinion of her skill. Paderewski distened, or appeared to, while the mother beat time approvingly. At last, with a final crash, the girl rose from the stool and the mother fushed with pleasure. "Tell me," she whispered to the artist, "tell me in confidence. What do you think of her?" Amiably the artist rubbed his hands together. "I think she must be very charitable. Surely she ietteth not her left hand know what her right hand doeth."

The part that nature has played in curtailing the tobacco crop this year should make the growers open their eyes to the real situation. That the law of supply and demand has more to do with establishing the price for any commodity than all other agencies combined needs no diagram to make plain.

The crop of Burley this year from the very nature of things will beyond any question be far short of what it was in 1906. If the growers will only see it in that light, they can still further enhance their interests by still further curtailing the acreage. Not only would such a movement add to the price of this year's crop hut it would like wise boost the price for next year and possibly for the next. Robert and Theodore Cowgill, the boys who got the $1.25 in. money belonging to Rabbi Stucky, of MoVille, mention of which was made in these columns, last week, were brought-before. Country Judge, F. E. Canon, last Wednesday. Mr. Stucky satisfied the Judge that the mency belonged to him, and it was returned to him, when the old man's heart softened and he expressed a desire not to prosecute the boys. When asked by Judge Cason to give an account of themselves the boys said their sges were 18 and 19 years; that their parents were dead; that they had got out of work in Cincinnati, and had started to Louisville in an old joe boat to find their uncle who lived there to see if he could not assist them in finding employment; that when they found the joe boat from which the money was taken they considered it-a find, and had no thought of stealing it, and gave it up as soon as a claim was made for it on behalf of Mr. Stucky. The Judge then gave the boys a good lecture and told them to go and sin no more.

Bensational testimony was given by F. Albert Von Boyneburg, general manager of the Reakert Bros. Co, coal operators, in the interstate commerce commission in investigation at Philadelphia. He stated that within the last two and a half years his company's car supply had been so inadequate that business had been favored in the distribution of cars and said he had no doubt that discrimination had been practiced against his company, because it had falled to make gifts of stock to the railroad omicials. He gave it as his opinion that Presidant A. J. Cassatt was responsible for the alleged discrimination. The commission adjourned to meet in Washington.

Administration "Big Three" Plan to Hold the Beins of Gev-

In an article plainly inspired at the war department and written by "Dick-hason," we find the following estimate of the powers, glories and lasting qualities of the three men who dispute with the giant life insurance commands the title of the "Big Three."

"Min. Roosevelt will be only 50 years old when his present term expires. Mr. Taft. will be only 52; and Mr. Root will he 64. The control of when his present term expires. Mr. Taft. will be only 52; and Mr. Root will he 64. The control of voters—the one that is now coming on with its imagination inflamed by the giories of Roosevelt—has taken the place of the present one. While in absolute sympathy personally, they represent intellectual variants that converge at a common point, and they will do more tana any other group of men alive to, hold the fighting line of their party intact."

In plain English, these three men have conspired to hold the reins of government for another generation, at least. In order to remain "masters of the Republican party," as they are at present, and to perpetuate "the glories of Roosevelt," Barnes, and the whole brood of sfrenuosities and acrohats, not in sympathy with many of the economic reforms that are being fought by his chief, notably railroad rate legislation and the inheritance from the people on account of these proposed reforms, if he were the candidate; but Mr. Taft would satisfy almen, all trusts, and many women who admire a fat man with a big mustache Taft its, therefore, to be the candidate in 1903; and Roosevelt is to be secretary of state, and from that perch is to see that his policies are carried out, by Taft and Root until 1916, when he is again to reenter the will then he only 68, will succeed him, and remain in office for eight years more He White House for eight years more He will then he only 66, and Taft, who will be only 68, will succeed him, and remain in office for eight years more He will then he only 66, and raft, when the search of the present of the present of the present of the present of the present

POLITICAL CONTRIBUTIONS.

Trusts.

In the discussion of the bill now pending in congress for requiring that all contributions to political committees shall be reported to the clerk of the house of representatives, some very interesting statistical matter was recently brought out. It was shown that from the very beginning of its career the Republican party has relied largely on the use of money in elections, and that in 1836 its antional campaign fund amounted to $16,500,000, while that of the Democrats reached only $875,000. In 1900 the Republicans spent $9,500,000 and the Democrats at $25,000. Stong efforts have been made to discover how much money Mr. Bliss and Mr. Cortell-you received in 1904; but though it has heen proven that they and Mr. Sacock got enormous sums from the life insurance companies, and has been charged, and not denied, that they also received large sums from the trusts and railroads, it has been impossible to discoverhow much money was expended by the party of corruption and special privilege.

Many of these contributions were now much money was expended by the party of corruption and special privilege.

Many of these contributions were taken from trust funds by men like Perkins, McCurdy, McCail and Hyde; and District Attorney Jerome, of New York, who has had Perkins arrested on the charge of larceny, aid that if Perkins is guilty, then it follows that Bliss, the treasurer, and Cortelyou, the chairman of the Republican national committee, are guilty of receiving stolen good knowing them to be stolen.

This may account for the silence of the president respecting these contributions. He would, no doubt, have ordered the stolen money to be restored to the life insurance companies, if it were not that restitution of stolen goods by the receivers after discovery, would amount to a confession of larcency and put the president's friends, Bliss and Cortelyou, in the same predicament with Perkins—a fact which would saddy interfere with the gayety of the president's official family He will not compel the members of that family to give evidence sgainst themselves by restoring money stolen from widows and orphans who have no votes. That would be "a miscarriage of institute," almost as bad as that fog which he lampooned Judge Humphrey in his recent message to congress.

—The Republicans in congress are divided on every proposition that looks towards reform, but they are all united on the "pork bill" and "for the old flag and an appropriation."

—In Republican circles "the man with the dough" is received with much more consideration than "the man with the mack "rake."

—The National City bank, of New York-Rockeller-highly approved of the interpretation of Secretary Shaw with the treasury gold to facilitate the banking process of drawing gold from abroad. As that favored corporation, according to its own statement, "secured a total of some $24,000,000," without having to pay interest during transit, it is no wonder that the Republican favoritism is approved.

WHO HAS ARMY ENVELOPES?

To-Day.

To-Day.

It would be interesting to know just how many varieties of illustrated soldiers' envelopes were printed in the course of the four-year war. It is said there were several thousands of them. Every loyal state was prolific folical as well as general suggestive ideas for pictorial and trypographical expression, and the opportunity was well improved by manufacturers of and dealers in stationery. Unlike the war songs of Root and other composers, this "Union envelope" fad had on 'ephemeral existence.

In Grand Army halls and at Grand Army camprises, and the stage enactment of civil war dramas, almost everything less is seen in Afte line of reminders of the days of '615—muskets, swords, belts, knapacks, have sacks, canteens, tin dippers, belts, flags, etc.—but the army envelope is not in evidence. And yet, even at this late day, there is, it is safe to opine, many a carefully treasured specimen of the obling, illustrated and inscribed inclosure of the soldier boy's letter from the scene of suffering, of strile and carnage, which, if it could speak might tell a story of sontinental and thrilling interest—one of the tons of thousands of unwrites in the line who did eftending the flag we have been annis of the camp and field of far mous military campaigns in the old or the new world.

In Memory and in Hope.
Forty-two years ago the appailing campaign of the Wilderness, with all its magnificent devotion on both sides, was but two-thirds over, its guns slow, ly wheeling southward day by day, opposed with a brilliancy and daring the annals of war have rarely seen equaled, while around the heart of the confederacy Sherman was drawing a catelled.

contederacy Sherman was drawing a pride of fire. Now, on May 30, all over the land, south as well as north, wherever the grave of a national soldier who fought in the great war is known, his old comrades and his descendants will lay an offering of the flowers which are the perpetual rebirth fearth's beauty.

Posterity honors all the brave, And little children will Gather wild flowers to deck his grave Who died at Maivern Hill.

PLUTARCH No. 3183.

The great GERMAN COACH STALLION, PLUTARCH No. 3183, imported from Germany J. Crouch & Son, of LaFayette, Indiana, now owned by the Burlington Horse Company, will mathe season of 1906, from the 1st of April until the first of July, in the town of Burlington, Boone C Kentucky; the remainder of the time at L. A. Conner's stable, four miles south of Burlington, the East Bend road.

Plutarch No. 3183, was foaled June 8th, 1901; bred by H. Stukenberg, Hammelwardermoon, Germany.

Sire-Ailrat No. 1193, by Magnat No. 860, Agamemnon No. 560, &c., &c.

This Stallion is a Mahogany bay 16½ hands high, weighs 1300 lbs., has the size, color, and style combined with extreme knee action, lifting his feet high which gives elegance to his pace and action. His points are strong with clean bone under the knee and feet sound, open and tough. He carries his head well with neck very rangy, long and well cut up at throttle, having a fine ear, well set broad forehead with large intelligent eyes and has a fine gentle disposition.

In order to produce good colts it is not necessary to have fine or high bred mares as the German Coachers being so long and strong bred will produce high class colts from all classes of mares.

The colts are fine and large and develop quickly. No other breed of stallions will produce as many good colts from all classes of mares.

It must be remembered that this class of horses always demands high prices and to-day they are the highest price horse on the market.

TREMS:—$20.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with. Parties breeding must follow up the season. Care taken to prevent accidents, but not responsible should any occur. Positively no service on Sunday. Pasture furnished and mares taken care of at $4.00 per month.

We will give a premium of $50 for the three best colts the get of this stallion of 1906, to be shown regardless of sex at the Florence Fair in the fall of 1907, the premiums will be awarded $25, $15, $10.

How to Break Up a Cold.

It may be a surprise to many to item that a severe cold can be completely broken up in one or two days' time. To do this, however, prompt action is necessary. The first symptoms of a cold, are a dry, lond cough, a profuse watery discharge from the nose, and a thin, white coating on the tongue. When Chamberlain's cough remedy is taken every hour on the first appearance of these symptoms, it counteracts the effect of the cold and restores the system to a healthy condition within a day or two. Madrid.—Just as King Alfonso and his English bride were nearing the end of the progress to the royal palace from the Church of San Jeronimo San Real, where they had been narrowly missed ending their livea.

An official statement indicates the posibility that two bombs were thrown, one exploding in the air by striking a so close to the royal carriags that a groom at the bead of the wheel horses was killed, an also were the wheel scene in the vicinity of the explosion was horrible.

The queen fainted, but almost inmediately recovered, and with King Alfanno got out of their carriage and entered an empty one-which had been following in case of secident.

Instead of continuing along the Calle Mayor, the-king took a little by-street to the Plaza de Oriente, from which he entered the royal palace, the 'crowd cheering him as he reached the square.
After he entered the palace he exclaimed: 'I thank God for having protected me and my family.'

Strange to say, the bomb made little noise. It was thrown from the second floor of No. 38 Calle Mayor, nearly opposite the palace of the capitaln gengral. It was concealed in a bouquet of flowers. It did not explode on the ground, but in the air, after striking the point of the crown on the royal carriage... The force of the missile, however, must have been tremendous,
as a person was killed on the balcony

Madrid. — The tragic event of late Thursday afternoon and the narrow margin by which King Alfonso and the new queen of Spain escaped death has caused the brilliancy of the royal wedding to be temporarily forgotten, although it was to have inaugurated a period of unprecedented festivities. Some of the wedding features, however, were such as to fix themselves indelibly upon the minds of the speciators. One of the pretitest sights was the tiny Prince Alfonso, the actual helir to the throne, who accompanied the king. The little orphan of the princess of the Asturias was clad in knickerbockers of white silk and reached only to the kings waist. King Alfonso reached the altafung before Princess Victoria. The lengthy wait which ensued led many to fear an inopportune event. The king twice appse on the throne and razed steadfastly toward the door. Hardly an arm's length away was the American special envoy. Frederick W. Whitridge, who, through chance or design, occupied the most favorable position of any in the assembliage. With lim sat Gen. Daistein, the French envoy, and alongside of him the envoy of Morocco, a hugh Othello, swathed in white, and next a Chinese mandarin. Republican simplicity never was more strikingly exemplified. The European courts were represented by princes, most of them heirs to thrones, while France, the United States and the South and Central-American republics stood out with plain envoys.

As the ceremony closed King Alfonso mombraced his bride and her mother. This rilmpse of domestic tenderness, as well as the democratic touch risen by the presence of many poor people in the galleries, who were there by the king's request, made the scene an effective one, to which a melancholy sequel with plain event.

A Washington diapatch to the Herald is as follows:

President Roosavelt's fight for a farreaching law to compel federal sanitary regulation and inspection of the meat industry is marrowing down to a question of 'court review,' just as in the rate bill fight. The Beverlidge amendment provides that the secretary of agriculture, upon learning that the packing houses are not sanitary within the meaning of rules and regulations by him prescribed, may forbid mest packers to ofter or railroads to receive for interstate transportation the meats or meat products of that establishment.

Upton Sinciair, Wednesday sale the the meats or meat products of that retablishment.

Upton Sinclair, Wednesday, said that he intended to continue his "fight on the beef men, "iff the packers do not get me out of the way." Mr. Sinclair received warnings Wednesday from friends in Packingtown, Chicago, that his life is in danger.

The general public are so dissatisfied with the limited information given out that leading citizens are heing saked to write their sensors and congressmen to demand that the full and complete report of Commissioners Neill and Reynolds be made public.

New York—A Washington special says: President Roosevelt has decided to play his strongest card in a supreme effort to bring the beef combine "to play his strongest card in a supreme for to bring the beef combine "to them." Senator Beveridge declares, and his declaration may be said to be the platform of the administration: "If the conditions shown in the Neill-Reynolds report are true the Beveridge amendment should become a law; if they are not true, the passage of the Beveridge amendment is the only thing which will assure the American peopic that they are not true."

Washington, D. NEILL-REYNOLDS REPORT

Will Be Given To the Public by Presi dent Roosevelt.

Will Be Given To the Public by President Rosevelt.

Washington, D. C.—Representative Washington, D. C.—Representative Washington, D. New York, called on the president Fiday. He is chairman of the agricultural committee of the house, to which the proposed Beveridge amendment regarding meat inspection will be referred. He indicated to the president the intention of the committee to consider the amendment proposed by Senator Beveridge and adopted practically without division by the senate and to prepare a substitute for it that would be "fair to all parties concerned."

The attitude of Mr. Wadsworth was not satisfactory to the president. In view of the facts reported to him by Mr. Nell and Mr. Reynolds, the president is of the opinion that immediate legislation of a drastic nature is necessary to cure the lifts which have developed. It is decided, therefore, to make public the Nelli-Reynolds report, which has been presented to him in writing. He will send the report to congress next Monday, accompanying it with a special message urging in strong terms the ensetment into law of the Beveridge amendment as it stands in the bill sent to the house by the senate.

The president had not expected to Beverlege amendment as it stands in the bill sent to the house by the senate.

The president had not expected to make public the report of Commissioner Nell and Mr. Reynolds. He felt that its publication might indure the packing house industry in this country. Primarily the information contained in the report was obtained to be used as a basis for the legislation proposed. He did not imagine there would be actious opposition to a proposition to send of the report of the magnetic products intended for meat shipments of neath next surprised for domestic consumption as its afforded to meet product intended for meat shipments abroad. The meat packers, however, used in stran sachust the Beverlege amendment befux instances in the proposed in the health department Friday.

The statement was made by a man who was once engaged in the meat.

FINAL AGREEMENT

Conferees on Famous Rate Bill.

Washington, D. C.—A final agreement was reached by the senate and house conferees on the famous rate bill. Most of the amendment incorporated into the measure by the senate after it came from the house were accepted by the latter's representatives, although the senate conferees made some concessions which promise to cause trouble. In that body-next-week. In order to save the amendment providing that the interatate commerce commission be given fivo days' hotice hefore an interlocutory decree is issued by the United States-circut court suspnding a certain rate, they consented to the elimination of what is called the "Jim Crow" car amendment introduced by Senator Foraker, requiring relironds to give equally good service and accommendations to colored as well as white passengers who pay the same fare. A brand new anti-pass provision was incorporated in the bill as a substitute for the cumbersome section, placed there by the senate; it prohibits railly reads from issuing free passes, and constitutes no excepted clauses, as did the provision which was stricken out.

Shepskin Denied Fair Kentuckian Because She Attended Hops.

Lexing ston, Ky., May 31.—College circles were stirred here Wednesday when it became known that Miss Stone-Margaret McGinnis, of Danville, Ky., one of the graduates of the select Campbell-Hagerman college, had been denied her diploms by the faculty. It is said that Miss McGinnis repeatedly violated the rules regarding dancing. She is a member of one of the wealthiest and most artistocratic families of central Kentucky, and during her stay at the college has been the life of her classmates. When it became known that she was to be made to suffer for her indiscretion it cast a gloom over the entire commengement exercises—and the usual amount of gardy was lacking. President B. C. Hagerman, of the college, said the young woman willfully violated the rules of the college and that she had hen warned time and again that unless there was a decided change she would have to suffer the consequences. Nowthinstanding these repeated warnings, it is said, the young woman continued to attend hops and other anusements and dance with the young men, and as a result she returned to her home in Danville minus her much-coveted "sheepskin." Through Attorney David Hunter Miss McCinnis Wednesday night announced that she will die aut to compel deliverance of her diploma and also sue the faculty for danages.

Tankage for Growing Pigs.

In lieu of skim milk which is tarely in sufficient quantity to afford the necessary protein in the tations of growing hogs tankage has been used by many swine growers to great advantage. Purdue station of our own State Agricultural College has tested this fact very thoroughly, to which reference has before bemade in the Farmer. There it was found that tankage feeding with corn meal gave the pigs very rapid growth. This has been found true by many swine feeders, as shown by their contributions in our columns. The latest test at such feeding is now reported from the Michigan Experiment Station, where very thorough and extended tests have been made in comparison with skim milk and other foods, to separate lots of pigs. The difference between and middlings, and skim milk and the latter foods also mixed, proved that which were both excellent. In one of these tests when the cost of the increased weight was considered the pigs fed on tankage for protein, meal etc., it was found that the protein in this form was 38 cents less per 100 gain.

In view of the fact that skim milk can rarely be had in quantity to half supply the protein food necessary for the pigs that are produced, these facts are important to swine growers.

The cost of the foods used in the Michigan tests were as follows: Cornweal $20 per ton middlings $20, tankage $32.50 lows: Cornweal $20 per ton middlings $20, tankage $32.50 lows: Cornweal $20 per ton middlings $20, tankage was $3.55 and with the skim milk $3.62.

"The president has said that many a man is a liar. He used the term freely, sometimes in all its baldness and at other times as he did in the case of ex-Sequator Chandler, whose statement he designated as 'unqualifiedly false.' These are some of the men he has accused of lacking in veracity: Henry M. Whitney, of Boston, who he said lied about a tariff conversation with him. John F. Wallace, formerly at the head of the Panama canal commission. Ex-Senator William E. Chandler, now president of the Spanish treaty claims commission. Herbert W. Bowen, formerly minister to Venezulea whom he xebuked for making charges against 'Loomis acting.' Alton B. BUYING PAINT.

Springtime—after the weather has become well settled—is painting time. There is no dust flying, no insects are in the air at that time ready to commit suleide by suffocation in the coat of fresh paint. The atmospheric conditions are also favorable at that season for proper drying and increased life of the paint.

It should be a habit with every property owner every spring to look over his buildings, etc., and see if they need repainting; not merely to see if they "will go another year," but whether the time has not come for putting in the proverbial "sittle his time" which shall eventually "save nine." For one coat of paint applied just a little before it is actually needed will often save most of the paint on the building by preventing it from letting go and causing endless trouble and expense.

Paint lets go because lit_seed oil, which is the "cement" that holds sill good paint together, gradually decays or oxidize. The water and oxygen in the air are the cause of the trouble in both cases, and the only reason, outside of its beautifying effect, that we apply paint to wood or iron is because we want to keep water and air away from them. Live paint, that is paint in which the linseed oil is still oily, does this very effectually; but dead paint, that is paint in which the linseed oil is still oily, does this very effectually; but dead paint, that is paint in which the linseed oil is still oily, does this very effectually; but dead paint, that is paint in which the linseed oil is still oily, does this very effectually; but dead paint, that is paint in which the linseed oil is still oily, does this very effectually; but dead paint, that is paint in which the linseed oil is still oily, does this very effectually; but dead paint is dead of the oil from the new coat will penetrate the oid cost, and the whole coating will once more become allve; and this method of renewally in the paint is dead of paint before the oil paint is dead of paint before the oil paint is dead of painting time was natural. The cry of "stop thier" was never more sensationally raised to deceive the public than it was by President Roceveit in his recent message on the Standard Oil investigation. That message was timed to meet fwo existencies. The sugar trust indictionant were presented to the court in New York the same day, and something had to be done to offset the effect of those indictments, which resulted from the work of Democrats. And, again, as it has since turned out, Mr. Roceveit was intending to desert his friends and go over bag and baggage to the camp of his opponents on the railroad rate legislation by accepting the amendment suggested by Senator Aldrich, dictated by Senator Carter, written out by Senator Railroad and credited to Senator Allison, who knew nothing of it until it had been printed in the newspapers and approved by the President. Clearly the president thought it necessary to play the cuttle-sha and muddy the waters, in Arder to Corte has geomination for the cutties and any over the service of the course; for nobody knew what game he was playing an an accompaniment to the tune and the tune of "stop their," and he played it loud and long. The people applauded, of course; for nobody knew what game he was playing as an accompaniment to the tune. But when they saw his purpose, the first day, and resalted that they had been listening to the music of a siren or of the Loreid, men began to say: "This is all a game of gractical politics."

The Aldrich-Carter amendment establishes the broadest possible court review, including the right of the courts to grant-preliminary injunctions in favor of the railroads. It makes the legislation practically abortive, if not unconstitutional. It goes senators were represented as opposing the president, by going too far. And so the railroad rate battle ends in a flateo, as everything else the Republican politican bave ever undertaken has ended when pretending to attack corporations. The attack on the Standard Oil was a hoar, a feint to over the desertion of the president to the cam

POLITICS OF PRESIDENT. WAKENING TO THE TARIFF PERMIT AT BROAD ENOUGH

icans Learn That Trusts Are felling Cheaper Abroad Than at Homs,

Those Republican congressmen whare so anxious for proof of the sites it rust selling chaper abroad than here should read their own party papers more thoroughty. The government statistics show that $5,000 tons of atest billets were exported least month and the market expert of the New York Press says. "The major portion of these billiets, however, are shipped back here in manufactured form. They are sold here for export at a price around $18 at the mills, while the existing quotation for billiets for domestic consumption is $27."

But this writer, who certainty for the most stand-pat Republican, further says. "Fully 20,000 tons of least month's billet shipments were consigned to Weish mills, where they are to be rolled into plates, then dipped in tin and reshipped here for the purpose of making cans. The largest importer of these tin plates is the Standard Oli company, which uses about 10,0000 tons annually. The beef frust is also a very heavy buyer of the plates made from the steel billiets shipped from this country to Wales. Although practically sil the raw material used in the making of these tin plates is of American origin, the tar-iff holds them to be subject to a duty of one and one-half cleants per pound, as the process of making them into the plate enhances the value. "The Standard Oli company uses these tin plates for the export of case oil, with the result that a drawback is given to it by the sovernment of the full import duty, less one per cent." The Weishmen buy this American sleel because it is not for less than British made steel, and according to the above Republican—authority for about one-third less than the trust charges our own people.

We have the evidence of W. O. Raoul, who at the time he gave it, February 25, 1964, was president of the National Ralliroad company, of Mexico, quoted by Senaior Biscon, of Georgia, in his speech on tariff abuses, which can be found in the congressional Record for April 25, 1994, in which Arr. Raoul sald: "In 1902 I secured-bids on -steel rails for Mexico fro

I paid at the same time for rail for our road in Texas was $23 at the mills."

So the steel trust was offering to pay the land and water freight from the mills at Pittsburg to Tampico, Mexico, which could not have been less than $6 a ton, and deducting that amount from the price quoted of $24 delivered at Tampico, would bring the price at the mills to $18 a ton, or $10 a, ton less than the price of the steel rails for ne in this country.

During last April there were no less than 23,141 cons of steel rails sold by the steel trust for export, so there is no doubt that the same underselling to foreigners still continues. Many other trusts are doing the same thing, for we hear of farmers in Canada and in, other countries buying American agricultural machinery, fence wire and similar articles made by the same harvester trust, the steel trust and other protected corporations. It is very difficult to get the price at which these products of the trusts are sold for export, for there is great secrecy maintained of these transactions, for obvious reasons. Still those doubting Republican congressmen who cannot explain away the above given transactions will have to admit that the Democrats thave furnished enough proof to-convict the trusts of selling cheaper abroad than here, which the protective tariff allows them to do with impunity.

More Bunco.

More Bunco.

From the gratification of Senators Elkins and Aldrich and the other members of the senate, known to favor-corporations at the provisions of the raje bill as it now stands, it looks as if the public had been buncod again by the Republican politicians who control the congress. If President Roosevely had stood fast to his gune instead of retreating at the last moment, the loy of the corporations and their senatorial friends would not be sq full. But 'he who fights and runs away will live to fight another day,' and the presidential fear of disrupting the Republican party has evidently led Mr. Roosevelt into the belief that discretion is the better part in politics as well as war.

of valor in politics as well as war.

Last year the Republican politicians were admitting that the trusts were selling many of their products cheaper abroad than to our own people, but they seem to have failed to convince themselves that it was a politic step to make this acknowledgment. For now some tiespublican congressmen are demanding of the Democratic proof that the protected industries are selling goods more cheaply abroad than at home, and the Democratic are furnishing the syldence thay demand.

Capt. Mark Casto was being congratulated on his gift of $1,500 from the Carnegie here fund for bravery in the wreck of the Cherokee, relates the New York Tribune.

"The gift was unexpected," said Capt. Casto with a modest smile. "It was as unexpected, though by no means as unpleasant, as the retort teat a wife made to her husband when he came home at three o'clock in the morning.

"The man came home very quietly."
In fact, her-took off his shoes on the front doorstep. Then he, unlocked the door and went cautiously and slowly upstairs on his tiptee, holding his breath.

"But light was, streaming through the kephole of the door of the bed room. With a sigh he paused. Then he opened the door and entered.

"His wife stood by the bureau fully dreased.
"I didn't expect you'd be sitting up for me, my dear,' he, said.

"Thaven't been,' she said.

It was no joke—there were 601 base ball fans who paid their way into the Burlington ball park, last Monday to see the game played by the Nebraska Indians and the Burlington team, while at lesst another 100 lined up along the fence that enclosed the grounds and saw the game free of charge.

The Nebraska Indians are a well behaved team, and greatly outclass any aggregation that can be got together in this country. They are good players at every point in the game, and very few amateur teams in the country have any

Nervous Worn-Out

Worn-Out

If you are in this condition, your nerve force is weak—the power is giving out, the organs—of your body have "slowed up," and do their work imperfectly. This failure to do the work required, clogs the system and brings distress and disease. When the nerves are weak the heart is unable to force the life-giving blood through your veins; the stomach fails to digest food; the kidneys lack power to filter impurities from the blood, and the poisonous waste remains in the system to breed disease. Nerve energy must be restored. Dr. Miles' Nervine will do it, because it strengthens the nerves; it is a nerve medicine and tonic, that rebuilds the entire nervous system.

From every slate in the union and from all parts of the world came upembers of that faith to be present at the dedicatory services. It was estimated that more than 40,000 Christian scientists were the the city. Six services were held to accommodate the vast throngs, but were then there were thousands who were unable to gain admission to the temple. The seating capacity of the new edifice exceeds 5,000 and at each service hundreds stood in the sisles and in the rear of the church. The services were identical and each service was about two lours in length. The occasion combined both the annual communion and the dedicatory exceedes. The consisted of the insual Christian science opening exercises, the reading of the tenets of the church, a dedicatory address prepared by Mrs. Mary Baker G. Bddy, 6f Concord. N. H., the founder of the religion, and read by W. D. McCracken, the first reader of the church, and a fleason sermon specially prepared for the occasion.

The congregational singing was a feature of the services. At the close of each service Edward A. HEARING ARGUMENTS

Cases Before State Railroad

Rate Casse Sefore State Railroad Commission Under Advissment.

Frankfort, Ky., June 7.—Hearing of argument in the Kentucky rate cases before the state railroad commission, was completed and the cases taken under advisement Co. Beanet H. Young, of counsel for the state, charged that the L. & N. R. R. Co., because of competition out of Cincinnati, discriminates against all of the central and wastern sections of the state, its raies on the Restucky Central division is night as the contral and wastern sections of the state, its raies on the Restucky Central division is night as the contral and wastern sections of the state, its raies on the Restucky Central division is night as the contral and wastern sections of the state, its raies on the Rosting to the state, its raies on the minston connections, are from 15 to 22 per cent. Iower than on the three divisions just named. He demanded that the commission reduce raies on all other divisions to meet those in vogue on the K. C. division. Col. Henry L. Stone, thief counsel for the L. & N., responded that its rates on the K. C. are unreasonable low, and not just, and are no criterion for rates on other divisions. He produced figures to show that the L. & N. Co. is not earning a fair return on the money it has invested in Kentucky and to which be considers it entitled under the railings of the United States supreme court in the cause of Smith vs. Ames.

IN CUSTODY OF SHERIFF.

Judge Hargis Indicted For Murder of Dr. B. F. Cox.

Dr. B. F. Cox.

Lexington, Ky., June 8.—Word was received from Jackson, Breatbitt county, that Judge James Hargis was indicted for the murder of Dr. B. F. Cox, in Jackson, four years ago, and was given to the custody of the Jailer there. J. J. C. Bach, Hargis's attorney, has requested that the case be transferred to another county for trial, as Breathitt county officials are antagonistic to the Hargisse. Circuit Judge Riddell, of the Breathitt district, has declined to preside in the case and Hargis will be kept in jail until Gov. Beckbam appoints another trial judge. Hargis si aiready under indictment for complicity in the assassination of James Marcum and James Cockrill. Hargis indictment has caused a sensation, as it was believed that the Cox case would never be investigated.

Caleb Powers Has Been Taken to Georgetown to Be Ready.

Georgetown to Be Ready.

Georgetown, Ky., June 8.—Caleb Powers, former secretary of state, who is charged with direct complicity in the slaying of Gov. Goebel in the state house yard at Frankfort, January 31, 1990, has been brought from Newport to the county jail here to be ready for his fourth trial for murder, which begins in this city shortly. Powers has twice been sentenced to life imprisonment and once condemned to death. In each case the court of appeals has granted him a new trial. Powers is in his usual good spirits, although very pessimatic as to his chance of getting a fair trial in the state courts. He will be tried by a special term of court and by a special judge appointed by the governor.

SAILOR USES HIS LIPS.

tain Depth.

One of the most useful and necessary articles among the findings of a well found ship is the hand lead, writes a sailor to the independent. It is a 16-pound lead attached by a leather thong to a small but sbott manila line, and we use it to learn what depth we are sailing in when we don't know anything else.

The lead line up to 20 fathoms is divided and subdivided into nine marks and II deeps. A deep is any fathom which is not marked.

One is a deep because it goes furthest down; two, three and five are marked by the sailor of t shapes the intermediate marks are shown by strips of cloth of different colors and textures.

Thirteen and 15 are marks, red, white or bite. Eighteen and 19 are deeps, and 20 fathoms is indicated by a small cord irrevocably spliced in between the lays of the line and bearing a double knot.

When we are drifting about a lee shore or driving along a strange coast in thick weather an able seeman is always lashed in the chains to keep the hand lead alive and let us know what soundings we are in.

To throw the lead properly requires a good deal of practice. The seaman gets a good swing on the lead by waving it back and forth a few times just above the water line; then he pays out and whirls the lump of lead in a two-fathom circle around his head and lets go as far forward as possible to keep up with the momentium of the driving ship. Then be hauts in the slack of the line and calls out to the officer of the watch, in a long drawn, singsong tone, what depth be base found, and casts his lead again.

In the daytime the merks are easily discernible; but in the darkness of night we cannot distinguish them by color, and therefore we must go by touch.

It is easy to tell by feel whether your lat is easy to tell by feel whether your lat leads and the color.

It is easy to tell by feel whether you are testing a cotton rag, a woolen clout or a strip of bunting.

But it often happens that our fingers become so benumbed by frost and cold that there is no longer any feeling in them.

Then we clutch the dripping line and kiss the nearest mark, and the sensitive lips will instantly tell what depth we are in.

"It is an unpleasant, and unexpected surprise," be said. "It is like toe surprise a 'riend of injne met on a train in West Virginia." "As the train traversed Wise conney by my friend, entranced with the scearer, stuck his head out of the window. "The brakeman hurried to him and said:

"The man's caddy was an unusually quiet, stoild lad, a boy with a freckled free quite devoid of expression."

"And since the caddy never once laughed or sneered it his bad play, the broker took a fiancy to bim. And he said at the end of the round, in the hope of getting a compliment:

"I have been traveling for the last-tix months. I am quite out of practice. That is why I am in such bad form, to-day."

"The 'caddy replied, calmly:
"Then'ye've played before, have ye, sir?"

Dinner should be of a lighter nature in summer than in winter.

A quart of wheat contains more nu-triment than a bushel of cucumbers.

There is a happy mean between eat-ing everything and being squeamish.

Two pounds of potatoes contain as nucb nutriment as 13 pounds of currios.

much nutriment as 13 persons turnips.
Light soups, light desserts and light meals should have the preference in warm weather.
Vegetables and fruits are to be used most generously at that season of the year in which they naturally mature, Beginning the dinner with soup is the very best way to get the whole system in condition for assimilating a hearty meal.

BOONE CO., RECORDER Why The Good Ship Matrimeny

The rocks on which the bark of matrimony is wrecked are of many varieties. Often they are so large that one would think the most inexperienced pilot could steer clear of them.

Then again they are small, but numerous, and it takes careful steering to avoid them.

And there are still others that are almost entirely under the water, and none but an experienced pilot can steer safely past them.

ienced pilot can steer sarely passiblem.

It isn't the big rocks in the stream of life that are most difficult to avoid. They stand out so conspicuously that only a fool would run against them.

It is the thousand and one little difficulties of daily life that makes one's course hard to steer. And so it is in matrimory. When there is a large problem to solve extra strength seems given us.

Or, even worse, he comes home and doesn't find her there; she is a musing herself. As a result he considers himself ill-used, and decides that another time he will not hurry home to see dear "wifey," but will find his cheer at some club or saloon.

If there was only some costly thing his wife wanted he would gladly get it for her, even if in so doing he had to make some great sacrifice.

And she would do anything to help him if he were in any real trouble.

The sail is not to be displaced on sea nor the horse on land, no matter what discoveries are made in swifter-locomotion. The New York World thus discusses the arrival at New York of the new German sailboat, the largest in the world: "The arrival in this port of a new five-masted German bark from Bremen, which is called the biggest sailing ship affont, indicates that Kaiser Wilhelm's practical subjects agree with the equally practical Maine yankees that the sall is not 'played out' on the wide sea. The Maine yankee would righ is craft schooner fashion for greater ease of handling, distribute' his eighth of an user of canvas over seven or eight masts and employ one-third as many men, but that is a detail. The Rickmers is rated at some 5,000 tons, and as she has to carry comparatively little coal for her 'kicker' engine and winches, her net extra capacity excees that of all but for all carry comparatively little cost for her 'kicker' engine and winches, hôr net cargo capacity exceeds that of all but the very largest steamships. Unless some one invents a new and cheaper fuel than coal such craft are likely to grow more numerous. In safety the steamship has no great advantage over them "

We are told that M. H. De Young, proprietor of the San Francisco Chronicle, was one of the heaviest losers in the recent disaster—and perhaps the most cheerful and optimistic. While he was reviewing the scattered ashes and damaged remains of his extensive holdings a friend stepped up and said compassionately: "Cheer up. It will he sill right." Mr. De Young turned quickly and replied: "I don't know about that. Why 1—" There were many who lost their fortunes," said the friend, "but they will get them back again." At this Mr. De Young beesme limpatient. "That's not what's bothering me," said he. "What I want to know is where I am going to get material to rebuild."

Not the least touching thing in con-nection with the San Francisco ca-lamity is the character of many of the contributors to the relief fund. Some iamity is the character of many of the contributors to the relief fund. Some very large contributions have been recorded, and some as small as five cents. As one reads the lists in the daily papers, he finds waiters, and bellhoys in the hotels, street car conductors and motormen, office boys, shopgirls and many others whose earnings are small and whose needs usually are great. It is such givers as these who show how wide-spread is the sympathy and how universal is the generosity of the country toward the capital of the western coast.

Prof. W. R. Hart, of Nehraska, in a recent address took the ground that the study of agriculture in our public schools would afford the best possible material for mental discipline. Not only is the farm life and its occupations full of material to cultivate the power of observation but it is all connected with the life of the student. What knowledge the country child has is certain and vivid. He has been dealing with realities instead of with syming with realities instead of with sym bols and abstractions.

Washington—Representative Fulkerson, of Missouri, has introduced a resolution calling on the president and the secretary of agriculture to immediately make public any and all information that they may secure from "the great army of meat inspectors employed by the government, or from any other source that will tend to credit or discredit the product-of any plant where meat products are prepared."

At the hearing Saturday before the house committee on signiculture Mr. Garner-(Tex.) made a plea for speedy section.

"Since this meeting came up," be said, "the people who have contracted to take our Texas steers have become alarmed and say they don't know whether or not they are going to take our cattle and the result is we are in a state of uncertainty."

Representative Davis (Minn) read a telegram from the South St. Paul Live Stock exchange and live stock board voteing unsilerable opposition to having expense placed on the packers because it would inveltably come out of the stock raisers.

S. H. Cowan, of Ft. Worth, Tex., attorney for the Texas Cattle Raisers association, said while the raisers had their differences with the packers and had not got the best of them, yet in this question the interest of the raiser president of the Cattle Raisers' association, which read;

To Teachers and Trustees:—As the present school year is nearing its close, and the year 1906—07 will begin July let, I feel that a few words from me will not be out of place and I trust of some profit to the masses of our county.

The coming year brings to us, as publicservants, renewed obligations and is fraught with more, responsibility and duties. One of the important matters is the revolutionizing of Text Books, and see that the State Text Book Law is enforced, by which we will have uniformity of books in every district in the county. Our work has been hampered for the past (5) five years because of a variety of texts. It is my humble opinion that the enforcement of the above law will redound to the good of our Public Schools. "It will enable the teacher to do more efficient work more work in less time, and at the same time. forcement of the above law will redound to the good of our Public Schools. It will enable the teacher to do more efficient work more work in less time, and at the same time be more satisfactory to both teacher and pupils. I shall have more to say along this line at our annual gathering, as a divertised in these selumes before, our Institute will convene on July 9th, continuing (5) five days. Bear in mind that the law compels the attendance of every one holding a certificate to teach. The law further says that "the Superintendent SHALL REVOKE the certificates of all who fail to attend the FULL SENSION unless said failure to attend was caused by sickness or other disability. As the Institute convenes before July and August examinations, the law also says "those who contemplate teaching or being examined shall attend full session of Institute as well, so you at once see that it is not the Superintendent's prerogative to excuse one from attendance for any trivial excuse. I sincerely hope and desire that those who would lead or instruct the children of this grand old county, will feel it to be not only a bounden duty, but a real pleasure for the teachers and greating that the children of this grand old county, will feel it to be not only a bounden duty, but a real pleasure for the teachers and greating that the complex of th

Women's Achievements.

There can be no reasonable compiaint that women may not do nowadays anything which they can do well. The record of a single week tells of a woman elected collector of taxes; of another winning in competition the appointment as acuiptor of the $15,000 bronze doors of the chapel at Annapolis navalaceademy; of a third who has made a country home self-supporting by the raising of chickens, rabbits and cats; and of two other women who have sent one and a half million roses to market in a year. Surely these, achievements represent a wide range of employments, From the studio to the hothouse and from the town treasury to the cattery, the variety is large enough to suit all tastes. Success in any of these directions has not come by accident. It stands for a certain whole-hearted devotion to work, a study of scientific or artistic methods; in short, of a wise grasp of the results of previous experiments, and a court of previous experiments. whole-hearted devotion to work, a study of scientific or attriste methods; in short, of a wise grasp of the results of previous experiments, and a courageous improvement upon them. No one of the four occupations implies to the thoughtful person of to-day any of the "unsexing" of the workers on-which critice harped so constantly 40 years, ago. It is not unlikely that the tax collector drives about her country district with her children in her wagon. Rose house and chicken yard are ratural accompaniments of a real home. The sculptor's work is exacting, it is true, in its demand for personal resedom. But even that may not prevent the artist from being the most beloved of old-maid aunits. Until women acquire the nabit of disobeying the heart at the command of the head, they may safely be trusted to work in any way and in any place they wish in this busy world.

Danger in Dieting.

New Yorkers who are dieting themselves to reduce their weight may drop dead from heart disease, according to Frof. Alexander-Haig, the English diesery expert. He writes from London to the medical fraterntly of New York city warning Americans against the popular notion that the average man eats too much. "Knowing the opinion is gaining ground," he says, "it is desirable to live on a smaller quantity of albumen than has hitherto been generally acknowledged as sufficient. I of slowmen taan san interto occu generally acknowledged as sufficient. I feel it my duty to draw attention to the subject because I believe that (owing to what I consider erroneous teaching) people may be led to underfeed themselves, and thus enter the danger zone, where their hearts may either fail directly or do so when exposed to special strain or stress. Debility from under feeding may come on so insidiously that it is often far advanced before it is in any way recognized by the sufferer. This condition is insidious also because with the decline of strength there is very often a decline of appetite, which leads to a further loss of both, and when in this condition and weaker than he suspects the sufferer undertakes some unwarranted or violent exertion, such as running sunerer undertakes some unwarranted or violent exertion, such as running for a train, there may follow a more or less decided collapse." Nobody, says Dr. Haig, ought to take less than nine grains-of-albumen per day for each pound of body weight.

Melting Down the Hips.

"Trim hips are the rage now, madam," said the beauty, doctor. "Shall I melt yours down!" "Melt them down!" The man brought forth a stiff mold, a kind of corset, that laced in two places. "A long piece of fiexible tubing connected the instrument with the electrical apparatus at the other end of the room. "This mold," he said, "came direct from Paris. It cost $250, though the material in it is not worth a pair of shoes. But it is very ingethough the material in it is not worth a pair of shoes. But it is very ingeniously constructed, and it works well. I'd guarantee it, in a week, to take six or seven pounds off your hips, madam. Heat and pressure, applied in conjunction, are the factors that in local reductions exceed the wildest dreams of the past. Why, madam, if I put this mold on you, laced it tight, and turned on the electric heating apparatus, the mold's heat and its pressure together, would, in less than an hour, take an inch off your hips' dimensions. the Office.

A man from Fennsylvania went to-Vineland on a business errand. The town was strange to him, and he was unacquainted with the man (a lawyer) he had gone to see. The directions he received were so indefinite that he found himself on the elge of the town without having come to the house he sought. Then he met an old negro-and asked the way of him and learned that the house lay about a quarter of a mile farther down the road.

"The man I want to see is a lawyer," he said to the old man. "Is this Mr. Dash down the road à lawyer?"
"He aint no lawyer that I ever heard tell. of," answered the negro.

A physician speaks of his own experience:

"I had used coffee for years and really did not exactly believe it was injuring me although I had palpitation of the heart every day.

"Finally one day a severe and almost fatal attack of heart trouble frightened me and I gave up both tea, and coffee, using Fostum instead and since that time I have had absolutely no heart palpitation exception one or two occasions when I tried a small quantity of coffee which caused severe irritation and proved to me I must let it alone.

"When we began using Postum it seemed wesk—that was because we did not make it according to directions—but now we put a little bit of butter in the pot when boiling and allow the Postum to bolf full 15 minutes which gives it the proper rich flavor and the deep brown color.

ably cautiques, can become a successiful storekeeper.

The storekeeper almost always begins at the bottom. He was a boygins at the bottom. He was a boygins at the bottom, he was a boygins at the bottom, he was a boygins at the bottom, he was a slessman, and from that he jumped into propietorship, as partier in, or owner of, the store he worked for, or of a store he purchased or established. The storekeeper should be an all-round man. He can use a knowledge of bookkeeping, although he need not be a professional bookkeeper. He should understand bookkeeper. He should understand boyging as well as selling, and it is absolutely necessary that he know how to meet his cusjomers. He should, above all, be a good calculator and be able to financier for the future.

Should Be Natural Trader.

above all, be a good calculator and be able to financier for the future.

Should Be Natural Trader.

The boy best fitted to be a good storekeeper shows, even at an early age, a natural trading propensity. The sharp boy is likely to fail. No matter how much dishonesty pays, or seems to pay, in general business, it is absolutely essential—that the storekeeper be, at least, reasonably honest. The customer he has, to-motrow. The bulk of his trade is permanent and not transient. Sharp practice of any kind, although it may pay under certain large city conditions, is sure to be fatal to the success of local store-keeping. The storekeeper comes in direct contact with most of his customers. He favour them soleally as well as in a ousiness way. His personality counts as much as does his, store. He is, therefore, a part of the goods he sells, and he must keep himalef, as well as his goods, in good.

goods he sells, and he must keep himself, as well as his goods, in good condition.

The successful trader gives value for value, that is, he aelis something that is worth more to somehody else than it is worth to him, for a proper consideration. If the boy scender which is worth more to consideration. If the boy scender which is worth more to the owner of the kite than to himself, and the kite is worth more to him than to the other boy. The trade is an equitable "swap." each party belings the gainer, each party receiving something which he does not want as much as he wants what he receives. Success in local store-trading does not consist in getting the better of the other fellow, but in making a mutual exchange. The boy who gets the better of his fellows every time he trades will not be a successful storeaceper, but may make a success somewhere else, because it cannot be denied that sharp practice sometimes pays financially, and produces, for the one who understands its manipulation, financial success; but mark you, it brings only financial success; for no success other than the success of honesty is real. The owner of all the financial success is the omittion, enry the hootblack who honestly say and it.

Facts Properly Given. In this article, however 1 am

Technically the terms storekeeper and merchant are analagous, but commercially and practically specking they are somewhat different. In track, the wholesaler and great retails are commonly known as merchants, while the owner, or keeper of a retail, store of moderate size, located either in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city, in the small city, or in the large city in the small city, or in the large city in the small city, or in the large city in the small city, or in the large city in the small city, or in the large city in the small city, or in the large city in the small city, or in the large city in the small city, or in the large city in the small city, or in the large city in the small city, or in the large city in the small city, or in the large city in the large city sponsibility should be thrown upon him, so that he may come in centact with trading in general.

A sto Education.

A common school education is absolutely essential, and the boy should graduate from a high school, is possible.

A college education will do no harm. Such a training is likely to do him lesting good, but it can hardly be considered necessary.

The storekeeper is not likely to become a rich man, but he is reasonably, sure of a comfortable living, and probably the average storekeeper is better off than is the average mericant or manufacturer, who, with all his wealth. Is living over a mine of uncertainty. Storekeeping is often the stepping-stone to greater taings. The storekeeper lives a confented life at the minimum of worry.

Financial success is not so much a ten the stepping-stone to greater taings. The storekeeper lives a confented life at the minimum of worry.

Financial success is not so much a question of income, as it is the difference between income and expenditure. The storekeeper in a progressive country center, earning a few thousand dollars a year, is and to live comfortably, is to be encouraged, but this struggle to reach beyond the line of comfort, and to be master of more wealth than anyone can intelligently handle, is detrimental to the spirit of progress. The man's business should not be his chief end in life. It should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it should not be his chief end in life, it s permanent, and comfortable income, it is time for him to be of some service to his community.

Good Citizen Valued.

The world never-forgets the good citizen. The world inmediately forgets the man of money only. Go through our-"Who's Who in America," and other books of men of mark, and not one-tenth of one per cent. of those registated as worthy or naving their names printed there are men who are known for their money.

Storekeeping should be encouraged. We need now small stores and fewer life ones. We need more men in business for themselves and masters of the men and wage carners, and more men, who, although ast the head of their business, do a part of the direct work themselves. I do not believe there is any other calling so good and so beneficial to the people at large as plain, every day, storekeeping, chiefly because it gives broad opportunity to orqinary men, and ordinary men are in the vast majority. The calling of the storekeeper, then, is along the lines or progression, and it would advise every boy, whether he be of the city or of the country, who does not have a pronounced love and a recognitable ability for some professional calling, to seriously consider becoming a store-keeper and adding himself to the ranks of common responsibility.

Successful Man's Opinion.

Mr. Augustus Bacon, member of the firm of W. & A. Rucon, of Boston, in a lotter to the author, says:

"The storekeeper, as before him harger and breader field than, in offered by any other calling. Its raining from boy to proprietor is a bread oducation. His acquaintances are in every walk of life and his influence grows every year. Next to the judge and minister his advice is most acquaint the in a divice is most about in the community. The rich map comes to him about investments, the poor woman to ask if the bank is all right, or if her interest is correctly calculated; the young man and young women also colleult him. It is easy to understand from this why far-storescepts seldom makes a failure statistics show that the fewest failures are among them. The successive storescept often becomes the influential man in some large retail exabilatment, his early training fitting him for just such an exacting position."

nim for just such an exacting position."

Mr. Horace Bacon, also of the firm of W. & A. Bacon, of Boston, in a letter to the author, says:

"Some boys take to trading by instinct. Before they are in their teens they 'play store,' selling in exchange for pins, nails, and the like, little articles of paper, 'thy boxes,' snappers, and the like, which such boys know how to make. This shows a natural aptitude for keeping shop and should be encouraged. Such as boy, when through the high school, if left to his own choice, will undoubtedly prefer a position in a retail establishment to one in a lawyer's office or technical school. Watch this boy; he will work his way up the ladder, advancing by his own efforts until in time he bas come to be head clerk and later is given an interest in the business, or starts a business for aimself. This is the kind of a boy who should be a storekeeper.

"There are boys, who from childhood are deeply interested in their books, preferring to read for instruction and amusement, rather than to take part in out of door games of baseball, lootabl, etc. Some of these are interested at a very early age in mechanics and electricity, others in history and mathematics. These boys should have a technical or college education to develop their natural tendencies and should be tranned for engineers, eigetricisms, lawyers, bankers or for other similar positions to which they are taturally adapted and which appeal to their tastes.

"Boys like this should not be storekeepers."

Character That Succeeds.

Mr. Humphrey O'Sullivan, proprietor of the Merrimack Clothing company, member of the firm of O'Sullivan Brothers, and treasurer of the O'Sullivan Rubber company, Lowell, Mass., in a letter to the author, says:

"You ask me to designate the traits of character in a young man that would prophesy success for him in the retail business.

"First and foremost, it all depends upon the young man himself. The ideal young man for such a career is one who is born-to-succeed, who reads, and believes that nothing can prevent him from attaining success. His motto is success, not money—that comes of necessity, and is a secondary consideration." Such a man you cannot hinder.

"Gliven an average education, not "Given an average education, not "necessarily an academic one, he will do any kind of menial work, perform it well and bide his time. He will be patient. Seeing the stream of affairs flowing in the wrong direction, he will still be patient, set his teetn, and any within himself, 'Some day I will change the current of that stream. When that day comes he needs as big amount of practical information, an humble spirit, and a level head, because then, for the first time, he really begins his difficulty.

"A young man may inherit wealth and education, possibly, a business, it I were he, and wished to succeed, I would first get in touch with the smallest details of the business, and work up to the office, if I desarved it; and after I had worked in the office, I would wait until the cleverest man in the business was unable to attend to some particular duty. Then I would happen to get beside it, do it so much more satisfactorily to the firm, and do it unoscentiationsly, then relegate myself back to my ordinary seat in the background.

Selzing Opportunity, when the course of time the young man who could thus act in an emergency would be required to do it again. The next time he would perform the duties as satisfactorily as before, or more and again he would retire to his place as a subordinate. But when an opportunity of that kind occurred again he would uncloabledly be given an appointment to take charge of the position.

"What 'Shall I do with my boy? First give him an ordinary common achool education." Do not deprive him of a high school-course, but before he is through with that, we can determine of what metal he is madd. All that is needed to-day in business, is a knowledge of a few things that araught in the high school, an in politic society; an even temper, courtended to the sum of the provention, a chorough knowledge of commercialism, bookkeeping, arithmetic and grammar. History is a good auxiliary; the knowledge of the languages, poetry, and music, while they are not necessary, sometimes eome in very handy.

"Give me a young min, who is a good jadge of human nature, with a high school education and a determination to be a leader, and ultimately I will show you the young man who will be a success in the retail, wholesale, manufacturing, or financial word, it does make any difference to what field he devotes his energy to, except politics, and if you ask me to pass my opinion on rollitics, I simply do not know anything about it.

WHAT FISH SEE OF WORLD

Water.

That a fish in an aquarium has an entirely different view of the external world than we whose vision is unhindered by glass or water is a thought that perhaps has come to but few. One of these few is Prof. Robert, W. Wood, of Johns Hopkins university, who has succeeded in obtaining photographs of Mount Vernon Place, and a view looking west down Monument, and north and south down Estaw streets, as they would appear to a fish submerged near those localities.

As is well known, an eye below the surface of the water sees the sky compressed into a comparatively annual circle of light, the center of which is always immediately above the observer; the appearance being as if the pond were covered with an opaque roof with a circular window cut in fit. The objects surrounding the pond, such as trees, houses or people, must appear around the rim of the circle of light, but the human being is unable to get a clear notion of their appearance, since his eyes are not adapted to distinct vision under water.

their appearance, since his eyes are not adapted to distinct vision under water.

Ressoning from this fact, it occurred to Mr. Wood that a very good notion of how these things appear to the fish would be obtained by immersing a camera in water and photographing the circle of light. His apparatus was constructed out of a lard pail, a short focus lens provided with a very small diaphragm being comented over a hole perforated in a metal disk which rested on a rim soldered around the finside of the pail. The plate was placed on the bottom of the pail and the whole filled with of the pail and the whole filled with clean water in a dark room. The lens was covered by a metal cap, operated by a handle on the outside of the pail. The apparatus was set on the ground, and the surface of the water covered with a sheet of relast to prevent ripples, the pail being so full that the glass was in contact with the water. This arrangement obvinted the necessity of immersing the affair in a pond, since the function of the latter was performed by the water in the pail above the lens.

A number of interesting plotures were taken, among them being Mount Vernon Place as it would appear to a fish submerged in a pond near the base of the lon. The monument is lainly shown, and the adjacent buildings can be plainly made out around it the rim of the circle of light.

World's Oldest Tree.

The oldest tree in the world is and to be the famous dragon tree of Teneriffe, which is estimated to be from 4,000 to 6,000 years of age. This wonder of the plant world was 70 feet or more in height until the year 1819, when, during a terriffe atorm, one of the large branches was broken off. A similar atorin in 1867 stripped the trunk of its remaining branches, and left it standing alone.

Jett Says He Stole When He Sho Him Down.

Him Down.

Lexington, Ky., Jane 13.—Sitting in an armchair, coolly amothing a cigar-ette, Curtie Jett, serving a life sentence in the penitentiary, told a story in Cynthians which stamps him the work-assassing of the world.

Without the slightest heeffation or the least show of abasiment, Jett datatile how he had crept my behind theryoung mountain lawyer. James B. Marcum, in the Jackson court house, and shot him in the back, how he had lain in wait in the circuit court room in the Jackson court house for Jemes Cockrill and shot him down in the street; how he had planned and connived for weeks with the men for whose money he was working to take the lives of these and other men whom they desired put ont of the way.

Jett's confession was given to the press. It covers 20 pages of foolscap paper.

Cynthiana, Ky., June 13.—A fight her.

Jett's confession was given to the press. It covers 20 pages of foolscap paper.
Cynthians, Ky., June 13.—A fight between Matt Sloans, a convict, and Sam Jett, of Winchester, occurred in the waiting room of the depot here while the authorities were waiting to convey Jett to Jackson and Sloan to the penitentiary at Frankfort. Only for the prompt intervention of Chief of Police Hughes, it is thought, there would have been bloodshed.

AFTER LONG YEARS

The Name and Gardies of Stephene Cellin's Foster is Recognized.

Louisville, Ky, June 14.—While rain caused a postponement of the outdoor feature of the home coming week, it was unable to affect the fervor of the recognized of the company of the long absent sons and daughters and the exercises of welcome day which were conducted in the armory were carried through in a manner both brilliant and gratifying, fully 10,000 people being present.

Louisville, Ky, June 15.—After long years the name and gealus of Stephen Collins Foster has received a portion of the recognition that is their meed. For years his music has been sung by millions of people who never heard, nor gave thought to the composer's name, but he came, in some small measure, into his own, and the people of a great state whose name his gift of song has immortalized, rendered as beet they could a fitting tribute to his memory—and their best would have highly honored any man, living or deed. A part of the Kentucky "Home Coming" was ast apart as Foster day. Thousands of children, head of by bands which continuously played Foster's music, marched to the hall where the model of the statue which is to be erected by their contributions was unveiled.

Ever Held in the South.

Louisville, Ky., June 18.—As one day was given over by the "home-roming" jubiles to the memory of, Stephen C. Foster, so another was, for the greater part, devoted to Daniel Boone. The great floral parade, which was postponed because of the rain, filled the streets of the business section. There were eight divisions in the parade, three of automobiles, one to one one-horse traps and tandems, one to tailyhoe and four-in-hand, one to pony carts, and the last to the fire department. The glorification of Daniel Boone, came later in the day in Cherokee park. There was a reunion of, descendants of baile Boone, about a dozen lineal descendants of the great ploneer being present. An hour later the statue of Boone, modeled by Miss Enid Yandell, of Louisville, and presented to the city of Louisville by C. Bickell, was unveiled. Breckerlidge Castleman, of Louisville, made the presentation address for Mr. Bickell and the acceptance for the board of park commissioners was by Col. Durett.

REFUSES WRIT.

Court of Appeals Hand Down De-cision.

Frankfort, Ky., June 14.—The court of appeals handed down a decision Police Judge McCann, of Louisville, refusing to grant a writ against to force him to retry the cases against to force him to retry the cases against saloonkeepers who violated the Sunday closing law, but they held that Section 1303 of the Sunday closing law, prohibiting the sale of liquor on Sunday, is constitutional, thus preventing any asloons from remaining open on Sunday. The effect of this decision is to make the law operative in the future lake the law operative in the future.

The court was evenly divided outleaguestion of granting the writ, but unanimous in holding the law constitutional.

HUBERT VREELAND FOR

SECRETARY OF STATE.

So much encouragement has been given Hubert Vreeland, our present active and progressive young Commissioner of Agriculture, to offer himself again as a candidate for a State office, that siter mature consideration he has decided to become a candidate for Scarctary of State. It certainly looks like he has won for himself the backing of the farmers of Kentucky for whatever he may seek, and in recognition of his efforts in their behalf since his election as State Commissioner thousands of them have urged him to offer for another State office, since the Constitution makes him ineligible for re-election. Mr. Vreeland has accomplished something in an office that was created for the farmers, but which had been of very little benefit to them, and it is refreshing to the Democrate of Kentucky when they find public servants who devote all their time and thought to fulfilling the duties of their office with energy and intelligence.

Mr. Vreeland is the youngest of the present State office.

thought to fulfilling the duties of their office with energy and intelligence.

Mr. Vreeland is the youngest of the present State officials, and until the last State election had never been a candidate for office. Although it was his first appearance he won his nomination for Commissioner of Agriculture by a majority of 26,000, next to the largest majority received by any candidate in the State primary, although opposed by two prominent candidates who made most vigorous campaigns. Mr. Vreeland has a personal acquaintance probably not surpassed by any other young man in Kentucky, extending to scores and hundreds in every one of the 119 counties in Kentucky. He is a brother of John W. Vreeland, publisher of the Turner's Home Journal, and at the head of the Democratic Executive Committee in Louisville and Jefferson county, and of Graham Vreeland, managing editor of the Courier-Journal, who for ten years was the Legical tive correspondent of the Courier Journal at Frankfort.

The Democratic nominations for State offices will be made again by State primary in November, and Mr. Vreeland has begun an active campaign. Up to the pre-ent time he has no opposition.

EXPLAINS THE TARIFF.

the Government and the Fro Thereof.

How the Government and the Protected Trust Collect the Tax Thereof.

The tariff question is yery simple and yet y is complicated by over 150 paragraphs, many possible in a set of the property of the paragraphs, many possible in a great of the paragraphs, many possible in therefore not extraordinary that many pied on not ordinary sometime in the pays that they pay tariff taxes at all. If they could see the tariff tax, as, they see the tax on their property or poul tax, they would never again vote for high tariff and its resulting high prices. When you go to the store to buy goods you pay so much for the goods and so much for the tariff tax on them, if of foreign manufacture. If the goods have been produced here at home, in stead of being imported, you still, of course, pay so much for the goods and at the same time pay what would be the tariff tax to the trust or combine that manufactured the goods. When you buy a pound of sugar you pay two and one-half cents for the tax if you buy a pound of borax you pay three cents for the borax and six cents for the tax, if you buy a $15 suit of clothes you pay $5 tariff tax.

Now suppose that after you had bought these goods and started to take them to your home two men should stop you at the store door and demand of you $5 tax on the suit, two and one-half cents lax on every pound of borax, and would represent the government. He would ciaim about two-thirds of the tax on sugar, one-third of the tax on sugar. Then remember these are only three articles out of over 700 you may buy that are taxed in like manner.

As a law-abiding citizen you would decide to settle with the government.

You may out that are taken in the manner.

As a law-abilding citizen you would decide to settle with the government agent, but you most certainly would deny the right of the trust agent to collect tax from you. But both agents would tell you that this country believes in "protection." and that you must settle with both agents or they would confiscate your goods—that is, would take them all from you without compensation.

must settle with both agents or they would confiscate your goods—that is, would take them all from you without compensation.

What would you then do? Would you pay these taxes and shout aloud for the policy of protection and yow to yote regularly for the Republican candidates, who are responsible for these taxes? Or would you hold an indignation meeting with your neighbors and organize to put that trust agent out of business?

Now, under our tariff system you buy your goods and pay your tariff taxes all at once. It is not necessary for the government and the trusts lo station their agents at every store door to make the people mad. The government puts its agents in the custom houses around our borders and collects the taxes on all the goods and the trust will be to the tariff to the cost of the goods and collect both, with a fair profit, when they set the goods to you. The manufacturers in this country may be, and turers in the merchants of control the production of the form of the trust agent to collect tariff the perfect of foreign conditions of the first may be a price of foreign sould, and there is no escape for you except when the form of the first may be a price of foreign sould, and there is no escape for you excep

The Republican congressmen are so benumbed with the popular feeling against them that they did not even feel the cold wave that about froze the balance of us.

After all that Standard Oil has done for the Republican party, even to raising the last five millions of corruption funds in 1896, that saved the day for Hanna and McKlaley, it seems rather ungrateful for the G. O. P. politicans to sneak away instead of standing by it in its detress. Even Senator Aidrich appears to have caved in on the alcohol bill.

After all the money expectation

In on the slookol bill.

—After all the money expended and all the lives of American boys sacrificed in the Philippines, we supply less than 20 per cent. of the imports and a Republican congress refuses to pass the bill to reduce the tariff on exports to this country because the sugar trust and the tobaccurust control the majority.

—After nearly six years of reputed trust busing, can anyone point to a trust that the administration immediated to plunder the people? There have been lots of pyrotechnics, but no dancing.

HINTS FOR YOUNG VOTERS

iples of the Party Should estigated Before They Tra with It.

with It.

The universities and colleges and high-schools are again sending, out thousands of young men equipped, as far as education can arm them, to fight life's battle. They will enter into every profession and business, and must struggle for, a living with the older and more seasoned army that has preceded them. Many of these young men, especially from the law achools, will enter upon political careers; and all will have to decide upon the political party they will support. Those that are upon the law achools, will enter upon a so until contaminated, will naturally turn from corruption and party all young men are so until contaminated, will naturally turn from corruption strip in the profession of the party in power. Family ties and associations naturally have read their instructor. The bas of the teachers of economics has led many to look and the end of the party in the said and hence many young men are very apt to decide their political future without due consideration of both sides of the great political questions that divide the parties.

As the Democratic party has everything to gain by the investigation and due consideration of both sides of the great political questions that divide the parties.

As the Democratic party has everything to gain by the investigation and publicity of its contentions, and being the great historic party of the nation, its principles should be thoroughly acrutinuted and given due weight before a decision is arrived at.

The fundamental doctrine of Democrate is "Equal rights to all and special privileges to none." Democrate telleve in home rule and that every community has the right to decide its local taxation. To decide upon municipal, ownership and the regulation of the liquor trafe and such other local matters as affect the community. All these under Democratic rule are settled as a majority of the legal voters may cecide.

The great national questions of the fariff; subsidies to corporations and individuals; regulation of railroad rates, and control of trusts and combines; the management of the finances of the country; the rights of capiblic and labor; the question of individuals; of the country; the rights of capiblic and labor; the question of individuals; not consider the procession of the country; the rights of capiblic and labor; the question of individuals; not conclaims; militarism; imperialism; taxation without representation, all must be investigated before the young man can fairly decide with whom he will politically ally himbers.

As government is the chief agency and adjunct of civilization, it is entirely worthless unless it protects life and property and provides therty without license. A government which takes from the people by taxation more name, than its needed to defray the except from the many in order to favor and enrich the few, by indirection, under chief fasse pretense of protecting labor, commits robbery and fraud, and is undemocratic.

FRESH POLITICAL NOTES.

"Prosperliy breeds tyrants."
said Abraham Lincoln. It also through Republican policies breeds Cassatts, McCindys, McCails and Hamiltons, Rockefellers, Morgans, Schiffs, and a cloud of marauders of the same kind. Prosperity that centralizes wealth is a worse curse than adversity. But prosperity in which allparticipate according to their natural abilities unfettged by vicious laws, produces neither tyrants nor plunderers.

produces neither tyrants no produce pers.

— The president wants the government to hold on to its coal lands and work them if necessary to protect itself against exterior to y the coal trust. Is this socialism? If not why was David B. Hill denounced as a socialist when he proposed that the government should own and operate coal mines for the protection of the public? Is it any more socialistic than the making of cement and gunpowder and the construction of warships by the government? In order to preserve the tariff schedules intact, the government will be obliged to manufacture its own supplies and dig its own coal or go into bankruptcy.

— The Washington Post declares its own supplies and dig its own coal or go into bankruptcy.

—The Washington Post declares that the steel trust has promised to "sell structural iron in San Francisco as cheaply as it sells that product abroad" and adds, that the bill to refund the tariff duty has therefore been put to sleep. With all due deference to this exclusive information in the Post of the condescension and concession of the steel trust, it is, as age bet that San Francisco will be lucky if it can buy steel at the top price here. Why, to sell steel in San Francisco at the same price it is sold abroad for, would defeat the Republican candidates for congress in every doubtful district and put every standing that the protectionists claim that trust products are not sold cheaper abroad than here.

—The demand for free alcohol, free cement and structural steel, free hides, free coal, free, wood pulp, etc., is worrying the stand-patter on the man of the resulting nervous. The clamor for legislation on tariff schedules is distressing hem. They will either get of their perch or be knocked off, and they are puzzling their brains to find out which they had rather do.

—We shall hever sequire "a square deal" until we get a new deal. The

PURPOSE OF THE COURT.

As Understood by a Lawyer Who Knew How to Circumvent It.

Hon. A. G. Jewitt, lawyer, politician and man of sarcastic wit, was once trying a case in the supreme court in cifast, Me., his home city. The judge presiding, before being called to the bench, had tried many cases against Jewett, who did not entertain a very high opinion of his ability, relates the Boston Heraid.

In his closing argument Jewett, in defiance of the rules of the court, started in to read some law to the jury. The court pounded on the bench and said: "Mr. Jewett, you must not read law to the jury in your closing argument." Jewett kept on reading without so much as a glance at the court. The court, in thunderous tones, ordered him to stop.

Jewett, who had by this time read all he intended to read, turned calmly to the judge and said: "Did your honor address me?"

"I said," roared the judge, "you must not read law to the jury in your closing argument. I will give the law to the jury. What do you suppose the court is here for?"

"What is the court here for?" responded Jewett, in high falsetto, "I suppose you know, sir, to keep order, with the aid of the sheriff, sir,"

The committee of Odd-Fellows to whom was entrusted the superintendence of the occasion had left nothing undone that was calculated to contribute to the pleasures of the friends who favored them with their presence, and all were delighted with the half day's outing.

haif day's outing.

The Home-Coming at Louisville, last week, was the greatest and grandest social event in the history of this country, and death only will erase from the memories of the thousands who participated therein the recollections of the pleasures it afforded. Kentuckians by the hundreds from every section of this country and many from foreign lands returned to review the scenes of their childhood so dear to them. Everything passed off in a manner satisfactory to those who managed as well as to those who were entertained. Many of the Home Comers are this week scattered over the State enjoying themselves with relatives and acquaintances whom they have not met in many years; and sad will be their hearts when they again bid adieu to their dear Old Kentucky Home.

The presence of locusts by the Old Kentucky Home.

The presence of locusts by the thousand is noted in all parts of the country, but so far no damage has been done by them. One farmer reported that he had examined the wings of a number of the pests and says all of them contained the letters, "W. W." Superstitious persons say this means war and want, and that the regular 17-year locusts always have letters on their wings prophetic of condition. They say that the last time the locusts visited this country their wings were marked "P. P." and the year was one of peace and plenty.—

To find out for a certainty whether or not your heart is affected. One person in four has a weak heart; it may be you. If so, you should know it now, and save serious consequences. If you have short breath, fluttering, papitation, hungry spells, hot flushes; if you cannot lie on left side; if you have fainting or smothering spells, pain around heart, in side and arms, your heart is weak, and perhaps diseased. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure will relieve you. Try a bottle, and see how quickly your condition will improve.

Unknown Friends,
There are many people who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholers and Djarrhoes Remedy with spendid results, but who are unknown because they have hesitated about giving a testimonial of their experience for publication. These people, however, are none the iees friends of this remedy. They have done much toward making it a household word by their personal recommendations to friends and neighbors. It is a good medicine to have in the house and is widely known for its cures of diarrhoes and all forms of bowel trouble. For asle by every reliable dealer in State of Kentucky.

Every improvement in locomotion has caused both discomfort and danger. It is probable that the users of aledges viewed with indignation the devent of wheeled vehicles. Old prints show that the every development of the protechaises in the ditches, behind them. The railway was regarded for some time as an outrageous huisance. It will be within the resoluction of us all, says the Fortinghtly Review, that for years bicyclists were detested, denounced and persecuted, and that every horse shied at every bicycle. In all these cases the public has had to grow accustomed to new conditions of traffic. So it is and will be with the automobile. To-day, in the minds of the unthinking, it is an offensive innovation; in a few years it will be regarded as an invaluable and indispensable condition of social and indispensable condition of social and industrial life. The pedestrian will have to learn to look before he crosses the road, and that his proper place, as a rule, is not the middle of the road but the sidewalk. And it is permissible to hope that greater devotion to public welfare will in the future provide the children of the poor with other playgrounds than the public highways. Not long hence it will seem a condition of other handles of the road but the sidewalk. Fresent-Day Ideas.

The ideas of the present time are high and clean, and never before have public men been so quick to re spond to the call of duty of had so great capacity to legislate wisely. On the other hand, observes the New York Sun, censure has never been more extravagant and heedless. But it must be distinguished from the criticism that is responsible and helpful. Much chaff is mixed with the grain of sound opinion, and the dust raised has an effect that confuses standards and clouds reputations. The man in the street who does not think for himself and takes his views e man in the street was ak for himself and takes his views be blamed if he believes that the art of things is rotten and the reheart of things is rotten and the republic degenerate. Well, he should read history a bit, dig in the "muck" of Credit Mobiller and star route times, open the dust-covered volumes of the civil war period, or go back to the haloed days of the revolution. The most striking and timely observation of Mr. Hughes at the Page dinner was this: "We have great need of men who can think sanely, who have sense of proportion, who are not carried away by desire to reap the rewards of criticism." The public is prone to gird at them when they do speak, and they may have to sit on the back seat awhile until the world comes around to them. But in the end the triumph and satisfaction are theirs and the advantage is the comtheirs and the advantage is the co try's. More power to them! their courage never grow less!

at is no bad sign for members to want to speak. Many of them have something to say, and a tempting opportunity—the first of its kind in their lives—seems to present itself. Let us try to sympathize with men so placed, says the Washington Star. At the end of nearly a century and a quarter of popular government we have a John Wesley Gaines in our douma. In time this spirit will pass. Wait until the Russians learn the trick of inattention; of reading newspapers, or writing letters, or retiring for luncheon, while the talkfest is in progress, and the rush for the routing will not be so great. Orators cool off whan interest flags. Not one in a thousand is so fond of the sound of his own voice as to take pleasure in addressing empty chairs.

THE RECORDER GOV. PATTISON DEAD

Passed Away at His Home in Milford After a Long Illness.

The Strenuous Campaign Was Too Much for His Frail Physique and He Never Fully Recovered— Lieut. Gov. Harris Sworn in.

Milford, O., June 19.—Gov, John M. Pattison died at his residence, "Promont," at 1:20 Monday afternoon. His death came suddenly and unexpected even by his physicians and family and was caused by a relapse from his disease, which was chronic intestinal nephritis.

At the governor's bedside when he died was Mrs. Pattison and his two daughters, Misses Aletha and Ernestine, with Dr. Belt, the physician, and two nurses, and Mr. C. S. Williams, of Delaware.

John M. Pattison was a native of this state. He was born in Clermont county, and his whole life was spent in the Buckeye state, most off tip Clincinnati. He was born June 13, 1847. He enlisted in the federal army when 15 years of age, and served his country, with credit. At the close of the war he entered the Ohio Wesleyan university, and graduated with his class, and was admitted to practice law in Ohio in 1872. The following year he hed his first public office, being elected to the state louise of representatives in 1873. In 1873. 4 became attorney for the committee of public safety in Clincinnati. In 1890 he was returned to the state legislature as a senator, and was subsequently elected a member of the 52d congress. He was a supporter of democracy and was elected to his remained by the propular movement for the very and was elected to his remained by the propular movement for the very of the Union Central Life Insurance Congress. He was a supporter of democracy and the propular movement for the overthrow of the republican administration, seated John M. Pattison in the gubernatorial chair. The strain of the campaign and election quickly told on his health and endurance, and after his inauguration into office the ceremonies of which was an added tax on his strength, he collapsed. He went supported by a popular movement for the overthrow of the republican administration, seated John M. Pattison is a daughter of Prof. W. G. Williams, one of the leading professors at the Ohio Wesleyan university.

The news of Gov. Pattison's death cast a gloom over the state capit

The service was one of great simplicity. It was opened by Rev. Marion LeSourd, of the Milford M. E. church, who read the Nineteenth peals and from the fifteenth chapter of Corinthians, 41st to 58th verse, inclusive. Following this the prayer was made by Rev. R. H. Rust, of Xenia, son of the vice president of the Union Central Life Insurance Co. After this word of supplication Mrs. Corrine Moore-Lawson, of Cincinnatt, sang "O, Come Unto Me." The Mrs. The Service of Cincinnatt, who came on from Cumberland, Mrd., who came on from Cumberland, Mrd. The service found a fitting conclusion in the benediction of Rev. Lessourd, and in Mrs. Lawson's readtition of Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar."

The said leave-taking concluded, the cortege wound its way to Greeniawn. The burial was as simple as the other service. Rev. LeSourd read the burial service of the Methodist church, the casket was lowered by the pallbearers, there was the rattle of gravel on the crypt, the only taps sounded—and all was over.

Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. Gov. Beckham's threat to get busy with his pardon mill in certain contingencies has aroused the ire of that police judge in Louisville who has undertaken the job of making the Sunday lid law odious in that city. The P. J. has declared that the Governor would have to walk were he to come to Louisville and attempt to attend church.

ernor would have to walk were he to come to Louisville and attempt to attend church.

The new Revenue Law which went into effect Monday of last week makes many changes, especially in regard to the payment of taxes. Now all taxes must be paid by the 1st of November which is a month sooner than under the old law. It has been the custom of some Sheriffs before this to pay the taxes of those who were financially good and then collect for themselves, the six per cent penalty. In so doing they could allow the delinquent tax payer considerable time to pay in. Under the new law the Sheriff is not allowed to keep this penalty and consequently he can not afford to borrow the money and settle with the State as formerly, but must make the tax payers come to time. Within fifteen days after November 1st the Sheriff must make out a list of all delinquents and file it with the County Clerk. The Clerk within ten days more, shall make out tax warrants, return them to the Sheriff who must levy and sell to collect the taxes at once.

There are many other new duties laid upon the Sheriff and County Clerk under the new law, which was not incumbent on them under the old. These changes are not readily underatod by the mass of the people and have a tendency to make the Sheriff so office unpopular, when really, he has no way to help binself and must do these things whether he likes it or not. So if your taxes for the State and County are not paid by November list and the Sheriff levies on our property a few days later, black his his but blame the likes it or not. A bill has been introduced in Congress allowing the President $55,000 annually for car fare.

A bill has been introduced in Congress allowing the President $25,000 annually for car fare. This would be much too liberal an allowance, as it would pay for riding 1,060,000 miles at 2½ cents a mile, and to use up his mileage would require the president and three attendants to travel all the time day and night. We object to the bill.—Ex.

Beautiful Waterfafts That Are Highe

Kingara.

With a sheer drop of 210 feet—which is 50 feet greater than the height of Ningara—the Shoshone Falls, in Idaho, stand second among the great cataracts of the new world.

The region is one of plunging waters. Within a length of 15 miles the Snake river leaps down a series of grant steps until 11 has dropped a clean 583 feet.

Shoshone Falls form the highest of these leaps. Four miles above them are Twin Falls, divided by a great, cleaving promontory of rock.

Eleven miles below Shoshone is another drop, of 139 feet this time, called Augur Falls. A hundred miles below are Swan Falls—and so it goes.

The cataracts are not the only natural wonders of this region. The canyons are comparable only to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. In places they are even deeper than the great chasm further south.

Years ago Bancroft said of this part of the country: "Taken altogether, it is the myst grand, wonderful, romantic and mysterious part of the domain inclosed within the Federal Union."

At one time the cataract region was set apart by the government as a national park, but the act providing for it has been repealed. The enormous water power is to be used for irrigation.

it has been repealed. The enormous water power is to be used for irrigation.

Perhaps the beauty of the falls will suffer, but 575 square miles of sand and sagebrush in one tract alone will give place to rich harvests, and the Jack rabbits will move out in favor of a million human beings who can find homes there.

It is time for Aladdin to go 'way back and sit down. Twentieth century engineers accomplish marvels which make his old lamp abock number. Take the tunnel which has been cut through 420 feet of solid rock and through which an industrial Niagara will generate almost unlimited power. Every bit of machinery for the plant—and many of these 'Dits' weighed thousands of pounds—was hauled by six horse teams over 30 miles of crowded hills. Much of this equipment was lowered by ropes over the precipitous walls of the Snake river canyon.

The tunnel was blasted out, plece by plece, from the top down; the reverse of the method employed in making the great Niagara tunnel. The interior was then concreted smoothly, so that it forms a circular shaft 14 feet in diameter, plercing the solid rock at an angle of 45 degrees.

Already the knell of sage brush and jack rabbits has struck in Snake river valley. April 1, 1905, the water was turned on 120,000 acres near Shoshone Falls. One hundred days later the respera were at work gathering in the first crop.

Falls One hundred days later the reapers were at work gathering in the first crop.

The soil of these valleys is of volcanic ash and will produce 60 bushels of wheat to the acre! Or, if you prefer it, apples which bring four dollars a bushel in London. With all this gain, moreover, it is said that the Snake river has water enough for both purposes. It can irrigate its millions of acres and still form a cataract to see which is worth going hundreds of miles.

"Now this girl that Jiggins is going to marry," said the society editor. "We don't seem to be able to learn anything about her personal characteristics."

Harry Leon Wilson, author of "The Spenders," was domiciled for a summer in Connecticut with a colony of artists and writers, all of Leon had to go into the city every day, relates the Saturday Evening Poss doing nothing but losting. He loafed artistically and from time of time artistically and from the son of one of the success.

Can you drivey" asked Wilson.

"Sura" one of his sudden friends replied, "I am a fine driver."

They got aboard and, started down the road. Before they had gone half anile the team was frightened by a passing automobile and ran away. The driver valiantly steered the hories into a telegraph pole and Wilson and his two friends were thrown helter-akeiter into the road.

Wilson alowly gathered himself together. One of his friends was sitting in the dicter rubbing his bruies and the other stood in the middle of the road gasing in tearful misery at two front teeth which he held in the palm of his hand.

"Pretty lucky escape, wasn't it?" asked Wilson, for want of something better to say.

"Yea," replied the man with the teeth, weeping afresh, "but please, oh, please, tell me, what shall I do with these?"

NFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas, H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Lonia, Mo. says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an editent and speedy remedy."

Dr. B. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa. says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. J. E. Waggoner, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I can most heartly recommend your Castoria to the public as a remedy for children's complaints. I have tried it and found it of great value."

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS Bears the Signature of

The Kind You Have Always Bought In Use For Over 30 Years.

The farmers along the ridge road from Burlington to Rabbit Hash, at least many of them, have concluded that they may as well enjoy some of the advantages that accrue from good roads as anybody, and with that belief animating them they have begun an effort to raise money for the purpose of piking the public road known as the Burlington and East Bend road. Several papers are in circulation soliciting subscription and a thorough canvass is being made of that section of the county that will derive the most benefits from the road after it is piked. The East Bend road is one of the main arteries of public travel in Boone county, and in the winter season is about as worthless to those who use and depend on it as it is possible for a road to be, although in the last few years many of the worst places have been eliminated by being macadamized, and to this fact as much as to anything else is due the present effort to pike the entire road as those interested realize been eliminated by being macadamized, and to this fact as much as to anything else is due the present effort to pike the entire road, as those interested realize that the less bad road with which they have to contend the easier it is to get their produce to market, and the less, expense they incur in moving it. With the East Bend road put in a condition that it can be used at any and all times, the country tributary to it will experience a change for the better that will surprise the most earnest advocate of the contemplated pike. As good people as live in Boone county reside along the East Bend road, and when it is converted into a turrpike they will soon be wondering how it was that they so long denied themselves tae benefits and advantages that will be present at every turn in their pursuit of every day affairs. Some may oppose the building of the road on the grounds that it will increase the value of their land and they will have more taxes to pay.
True, but that has not kept land the grounds that it will increase the value of their land and they will have more taxes to pay. True, but that has not kept land owners from erecting houses, and barns and making other improvements on their farms. The few dollars increase in taxes will never be felt, and a single trip over the road at certain times of the year when a farmer is anxious to haul his produce to market will satisfy him that his subscription to the road was a wise investment notwithstanding the few dollars increase in the amount of taxes he may have to pay. It sometimes takes a long while to prevail upon a community to build a pike, but when the road becomes a reality nothing would induce its abandonment.

The Democratic Committee of which Judge James Hargis is a member has no authority by which it can compel him to withdraw from the organization, but it is permitting to go unperformed a duty it owes the Democratic party so long as it neglects to meet and adopt a resolution requesting him to resign. It has been more than a year since the first indictments were returned against Judge Hargis, and he has not succeeded in demonstrating his innocence of the charges presented by them, while on the other hand charges against him have multiplied and he is now more seriously involved than at any time since his troubles began. If Judge Hargis is devoid of a sense of duty to the party which has repeatedly honored him, that fact does not justify the committee of which he is a member neglecting a duty it owes the party responsible for its existence. Judge Hargis may be innocent of the charges preferred against him but with all his wealth and influence he is slow about disproving them. w. fi. POSEY, Master Commissioner.

When a taste for holding office is once acquired, it is difficult to destroy it. Senetimes the law forbide an office a colder from succeeding himself, and then he must look out for some other public place. In confirmation of this statement, the State officials at Frankfort furnish a shining example. Gov. Beekham wants to go to the United States Senate. S. W. Hager, now State Auditor, and N. B. Hays, Attorney General, want to succeed Governor Beckham. Morgan Chinm, Clerk of the Court of Appeals, wants the Auditor's place, and so does Henry B. Hines, State Inspector, Secretary of State. H. V. McChesney is announced as a candidate for Auditor, and it is said that State Treasurer Henry Bosworth would like to have it. It is further said that Henry Prewitt, Insurance Commissioner, wants to be Attorney General, and that Hubert Vreeland, Commissioner of Agriculture, thinks he would make a good Secretary of State, There are other State officials who think they ought to be kepf at the pie counter. The "boys in the trenches" are beginning to think that there ought to be some change in this self-perpetuating arrangement. They don't think it best to keep so many good offices, "in the family," as it were, to ran indefinite period of time. The Democratic party don't owe any man, nor any set of men, a protracted tenure of office.—Georgetown Times.

It Takes Nerve

Everything depends upon your nerves. It is nerve force that causes the brain to direct the motion of your body; it is nerve, force that causes your heart to pulsate, and send the blood through your veins; it is nerve force that causes your stomach to digest food, your kidneys to filter the blood, and the liver to secrete bile.

In fact, nerve force is the power that runs your body, so if you feel worn-out, irritable, nervous, cannot sleep, or eat well, have pain or misery anywhere, your nerves are weak, and your system rundown. Ho restore this vitality take Dr. Miles' Nervine which will strengthen and build up the nerves. You cannot be healthy without strong nerves.

Anthem in Which Americans All Join

Ohl say, can you see, by the dawn's early light, What so proudly we halled at the twilight's tast gleaming. Whose broad stripes and bright stars, they' the perilous fight—O'er the ramparts we watched—were so callantly streaming; And the reckets' red glare, the bombs butting in air. Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still theke. Ohl say, does that stars-pangled-banner still wave O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

He now fell back upon Fort Necessity. His situation was a critical one His men had but little ammunition and no bread of any kind, having lived for several days on fresh meat alone, and even this was not plentiful. Washington spent, his single day, of respite in strengthening his rampar with logs. On the morning of the 3d of July his scouts brought intelligence of the advance of the French. Meanwhile the French and Indians, under the command of Coulon de Villiers, had been holding a grand powwow at Fort Duquesne. The "French alber" and was the following the service of the french alber. The braves after consuming several with all to cat and drink. The braves after consuming several which is clear and drink. The braves after consuming several oxen and drinking two barrels of winghad expressed their willingness to march against the English and drive them across the Allegheniss. De Villiers set out on this expection. The way through the forcest was a difficult one, and before they reached fort Necessity rain begon to fall heavily. But the French pressed on, and before noon of the 3d of July they were firing upon Washington's defenses.

were aring upon Washington's defenses.

Their position was such, being upon higher ground, on two slight elevations, and well sheltered by trees and bushes, that they could cross their fire upon the fort and enfliade a portion of it, without themselves being exposed to much injury from the English.

Ar a little after nine o'clock in the evening the French commander called out for a parley. Washington's fear of-treetchery led him to ignore the proposal at first, but his position was so desperate that he complied the second time.

Capt, Vanbraam a Dutchmen the Capt. Vanbraam a Dutchman, the only person in his irroop who could lask French; was sent to De Villier's camp.

After a long preliminary talk the Frenchman wrote his terms of surrender by the flaring light of a pine-knot, the rain drops spattering upon the paper and rendering the writing almost lilegible.

The terms permitted Washington and his men to marrh out with the honors of war, retaining their arms, stores and baggage.

Washington signed the paper between midnight and one o'clock, and the rest of the night passed quiefly, though the men remained under arms. At dawn of the Fourth of July the Great Meadows presented an animated scene. The morning was fair, and the sun shone brightly over the damp, green forcats and the lofty ridge of Laurel-Hill.

The horses and cattle belonging to the garrison had all been killed, and, burdened by the sick and wounded. Showly they filed out of the fort and egan their slow and wearisome march for Wills Creek, the nearest English were obliged to leave meat of their baggage and cannons behind. Slowly they filed out of the fort and egan their slow and wearisome march for Wills Creek, the nearest English station, 52 miles over the Alleghesies. Sad must have been the heart of Washington as he surveyed the scene. All his hopes of military glory seemed bighted in the bud, but whatever may have been his feelings, no word on complaint or anger escaped his lips. Without any doubt, however, it was the darkest and most miserable morning in his life.

He could not foresee the future, but on that other day, when the bell on the state house at Philadelphia was proclaiming the Declaration of Independence far and wide, and jubilant crowds were shouting and throwing up their haus st the glad tidings thereof, Washington must have thought of hot in weakington must have thought of the time when he left the walls of lort Necessity a defeated mas and to legit the season.

THE KING AND THE PRIMATE

Touching Incident of the Coronation Ceremony of England's Pres-ent Ruler.

Geremony of England's Present Ruler.

The coronation of King Edward VII. was characterized by a human touch which is pleasantly brought out in the recently published memoirs of the late Dr. Tremple, archibshop of Canterbury The ceronation was completed, and the suthronization, with its solemn address to the sovereign by the archibshop, to the sovereign by the archibshop, to the sovereign by the archibshop for the curtailment of the whole ceremony, was to be tendered by the archibshop both for hinself as the first bishop both for hinself as the first subject of the realm after the blood royal, and also for the other prelates. At this most emotional point the age and deep feeling of the archibshop mastered for a few moments his from will, and when he sand on his knees he was unable to rise again.

The king, in his own serious weakness, affectionately helped the primate to his feet, and so this most touching episode ended, so far as most of the onlookers were aware.

But when the archibishop recovered his erect attitude, he laid his hand on the king's crowned head, and in a solice of deep emotion said:

"Got be with you."

The King, with grace and earnestness all his own, caught the venerable primate's hand and kissed it.

Fireworks for the Fourth

The Fourth of July that quickens the heartbeats of all American youngaters and the nerve quivers of all American mothers is once more upon us, a fact too well realized as we dodge an exploiding coil of firerackers or blink' fast as we hurry by a street urchin cocking his top pistol.

But while the din of the Fourth, instead of stirring our souls with particulum, may give us a weak-knoed longing to follow our per poodle's example in crawling under the bed, when the day is safely over and we sait at the front window, waiting for the evening's fireworks—our sidewalk already saturated by a cautious hose and buckets of water standing on the roof—we begin to feel reconciled to our forebears' indiscretion in signing the Dectaration of Independence.

Our earliest recollections link the Fourth of July and fireworks so indiscretely than Washington and his associates, after signing the illustrious document, hurried 'round the corner to confer with the inventors of pinwheel, bomb and rocket, writes Mary C. Ringwall, in the Loss Angeles Times. But long before the colonial fingers let go their hold on the mother hand, long before America claimed her own on tworld's map, some ambitious wizard had stolen-into fairyland and secreted himself there until he had learned the magic art of making fireworks. MEANING OF NOON IN LAW

The courts of several states have dealt with an odd question, none of them agreeing upon a similar answer. When is it legally noor? Fire Insurance policies expire at noon, and the word is admitted to mean exactly 12 o'clook, midday. But standard time has not been adopted in all communities. Many small towns cling to sun-time, which may be from a few minutes to nearly an hour earlier than standard.

In one state a fire occurred at two minutes past noon, sun time, and the insurance company held that the policy iad expired before the fire. Sin time is used in that town, but the insured sued the company, holding that local customs did not rule the policy, and that he was entitled to his insurance. The state courts sustained him.

and that he was entitled to his in-surrance. The state courts sustained him.

In mother state s similar contention was taken to the courts and just the opposite decision given. Several con-flicting precedents have been estab-lished in state courts, and it, it is said the question can only be decided for good end all when a case has been earried into the United States courts and passed upon by the supreme court.

and passed upon by the supreme court.

Combination Hearses.

Some of the undertakers in England have a combination hearse and coach with a strong-but ordinary type of four-wheeled running gear. The front part of the vehicle is a hearse and the rear is a carriage with seats along the side, providing accommodation for about eight persons, a glass partition dividing the hearse in which the coffin is placed from the carriage. This combination hearse and carriage, with one pair of horses and one driver, can be rented at a low figure, and provides an economical funeral.

Mind and Muscle.

In all feats of skill the influence of the mind is most important. To perform in thoroughly good style any difficult feat of skill it is absolutely necessary that the mind must be free from fear, anxiety or nervousness. I knew once, years ago, writes Dr. W. R. C. Latson, h Outing, a man who had been a bull fighter in Spain. During one of his glowing accounts of the sport I expressed my surprise that be should have left the life. His reply was: "One day I was about to enter the ring, and I had a little creepy feeling of fear. Then I stopped for good: The man who feels fear is sure to be killed." And it is qualify true that the man who fears is heavily handicapped, no matter what the contest may be. Anxiety and nervousness are closely akin to fear; and both are so powerful in their effect as to render it almost impossible for one to perform perfectly any difficult or delicate feat of skill. The man who is afraid or anxious or nervous is almost sure to fall. All emotions when intense have a powerful effect upon the muscles. This is plainly seen in the tension of the muscles, icinching of hands and arms, as well as of the face in anger, in the spasmodic breathing of excitement, in the muscles inching of hands and arms, as mell as of the face in anger, in the spasmodic breathing of excitement, in the muscles must be used at just the right muscles in games of skill is confident calments. And by practice this state of mind may be made a habit—a habit most valuable in all games of skill seven in that game of skill called life.

even in that game of skill called life.

Hollow Success.

If we may believe the words of a wealthy New Yorker who evidently is no novice in business affairs in the metropolis, modern financial success is about as satisfying to the conscience as the Ben Davis apple is to the plate. It is attractive to look upon, but inside is gall and wormwood. This man's letter is worth reading by young men on the farm who are looking ahead to life of prosperity and wealth in the city. We quote the following extract: "Many e looking ahead to me and wealth in the city. We who are looking ahead to life of prosperity and wealth in the city. We quote the following extract: "Many years ago I came here from a country town, poor as any boy could well be; found employment in a large concern, bettered my position year after year; became a partner, then the head of the concern. Made a fortune, a large one; now retired. When I de I shall kave my children each a fortune, but when I think it over day after day I can only be ashamed of it all. I suppose I was no worse than the others. I know some were worse than I. I could always agy: 'It's good business,' but I forgot that there was such a thing as a square deal. If I could get the better of an associate or a customer or an employe. I did.' Anything that I could do to attain my success was good business and I did it. I have given to charity, headed subscriptions, but I thought in the country headed subscriptions, but I they doesn't and I did it. I have given to charity, headed subscriptions, but it doesn't satisfy me. I know what I have done wann't manly. Last night I sat with other so-called successful men. I studied them. When they can't help thinking they think just as I do. The modern success is rank failure. It has made this country rich; it has made the country rich; it has made the great; I has made the people selfash and unprincipled. I would give all possess to-night if I could say: 'I have given every one a square deal. I have done no man a wrong.' Think it over; it will mean a lot to you some day."

The political crime of the age is the failure of free citizens who are armed with the ballot to take any part in the election of their public officials and lawmakers. Just at this moment, when a hundred million of Russian peasants who are sodden in ignorance and steeped in the degradation with which centuries of despotium can overwhelm a people are struggling desperately to gain control of their national government, thousands and even millions of the free citizens of the United States are voluntarily abandoning their political rights and duties and are refusing to have anything to do with their public affairs, and, above all, they discard the ballot.

The general deficiency bill, the last of the big money measures, passed the house with few changes in the text of the bill, the net increase being about $600,000 over the bill as reported from the committee on appropriation.

Under a rule limiting, debate on all but two sections the immigration bill was discussed for three hours in the house and passed without a yea and nay vote being permitted on any of the paragraphs.

Senator La Follette made a determined effort to secure consideration of the bill limiting to 16 hours the time during which railroad employes connected with the operation of training may be kept on duty. When the bill was called up on a viva voce vote him motion was declared lost, a roll call was then ordered. The result was 29 to 15, one less than a quorum. Finally a sufficient number of votes was secured and—the motion to take up the bill was carried, 38 to 7 votes was secured and—the motion to take up the bill was carried, 38 to 11.

Among the important actions of the house were the passage of the senate bill providing for a lock type of canal and the adoption of the Item in the general deficiency. Lill ratifying and legalizing the duties collected during President. McKinicy's time from imports from the Philippine Islands.

The pure food bill was agreed upon by the conferees for the senate and house and was reported to the senate inst. tefore adjournment. The house bill was taken as a basis of agreement, and into this were grafted many of the important sections of the senate measure.

Mr. Wadsworth called up the parlial conference report of the agricultural and into this were gratten many of the important sections of the senate measure.

Mr. Wadsworth called up the partial conference report of the agricultural appropriation bill in the house and it was agreed to without discussion. Mr. Wadsworth moved that the house insist on its disagreement to the item in disagreement, the meat inspection amendment was adopted, 193 to 45.

Once more the house has agreed to the railroad conference report.

Congress will stay in session until its work is finished. This is the dictum of Speaker-Cannon and his lieutenants and is being emphasized at this time to counteract any impression that the pure food bill might go over until next session. There is trouble on the meat inspection bill and the "tie up" on the railroad rate bill in dicates delay. The immigration bill is also in conference, as are several of the appropriation bills.

THE ISLE OF PINES.

Senate Bill Providing Tempor ary Government Introduced.

To Committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico.

Washington.—A joint resolution providing a temporary government for the Isle of Pines was introduced in the senate by Senator Dick. The presentation of the bill created considerable interest, and at the request of Senator Morgan it was read and referred to the committee on Pacific Islands and Porto Rico. It applies the canal zone government to the island and in addition declares a policy with reference to it. It is as follows: "That until it shall be otherwise provided by act of congress or by treaty with Cuba, the government of the list of Pines rightfully belongs to the Unit and Judicial powers, as well as the power to make all rules and regulations necessary for the government of the list of Pines shall be vested in such person or person and shall be excluded in the proposed of the service of the said late of Pines and the proof of the said late of Pines and the proof of the said late of Pines and the proof of the said late of Pines hall be exercised in such manner as the proof of the said late of Pines hall be considered in the free employment of their liberty, property and religion."

CONFERENCE REPORTS.

The Two Houses Have Agreed on All Important Bills.

Washington.—The senate devoted most of its time to conference reports on the railroad rate and puro food-bills and the meat inspection provision of the agricultural bill. All were adopted.

The principal-controversy was over the rate bill when Senators Balley and Tillman had a heated colloquy on railroad lawyers. There was much discussion also on the meat inspection provision. A number of senators expressed themselves as willing only to accept the house provision because it was attached to an appropriation bill and a deadlock would cause the failure of the supply bill.

The senate adopted the joint resolution fixing the time when the rate bill shall go into effect at two months after its approval by the president. Vice President Fairbanks announced his signature to the railroad rate bill. The bill had already received the signature to the speaker of the house. Conference reports were considered in the house. Members to Fleece the People.

In connection with the consular reports of low wages and hard times in Germany, it may be well to notice what is said by Mr. J. Stephen Jeans, secretary of the British Iron association quoted in the consular reports for April, 1966. He says that in a recent six months' period the German wire rod syndicate soid 22,307 tons of its products to home consumers at $62.40 per 100; and 19,524 to foreign buyers at $35 per ton. Naturally, such a policy, made possible by a high protective tariff like our own, is hurtful to the German people, as it is to dur people; and there is just complaint.

We also learn from this report that the international Rail syndicate, which has it's headquarters in London, controls an output of 4,000,000 tons of rails annually in the United States, Germany and the United Kingdom, and that it is connected with the United States Steel corporation and the German Steel syndicate. This giant combine makes the price of steel in the world's free markets; but allows its German and American members to deece the people in their respective protected markets. Any government that would uphold such a combination of plunderers is an outrage upon the people whom it should protect. These steel corporations are worse than pirates, because they plunder their own people under the shelter of laws made for that purpose, while pirates plunder forelgners.

ON SUBSIDY GRANTING. | ORGANIZATION OF FARMERS

Equity society memoris as an all simprice of wheat is concerned, and simplar obstacles will be met with in trying to fix the price of corn, oats and cattle.

With the cotton planter the outlook is more promising. This country raises nearly all the surplus cotton, and the price is greatly influenced, if not entirely fixed in this country. Cotton will keep, merely requiring, a good roof ever it. The greafest danger in from fire, and insurance of such an inflammable substance is expensive.

Both the southern planter and the northern farmer can, however, protect themselves from the trust high prices by uniting for the abolition of the protective tariff, which has fostered these combines. With reasonable prices for what they buy they cas afford to take reasonable prices for what they sell, and still come out ahead in place of very high tariff rates, as an present, there should be a tariff, for revenue—that is, enough ariff tax or imports to provide the necessary revenue for the government, and not high enough to protect the trusts in charging their plundering prices.

It will pay the organized farmers must in their homes. The Republican party has tried to prevent this, by declaring that 210 organizations of farmers must be nonpartisan, and as far as the National Grange is concerned, the Republicans control it, which has doubtless driven the independent farmers to join the Equity society and Parme era 'unions, where more latitudes is allowed for political discussion. There is no political issue that is so Important to the farmers as the tariff, at It fosters trusts and combines which plunder them. The percended protection of 25 cents a bushel on wheat, if cents on corn and 15 cents on oats provided in the tariff is whas beet found by the farmer to be entirely worthless, because the surplus of those crops sold abroad fixes the price at home, and the price would be just at good if there was a tariff duty of it cents on corn and 15 cents on oats a provided in the tariff is whas beet found by the farmer to be entirely wo

Because about one half of our states: men and other public characters have practiced at the bar; and because the lawyer is apt to acquire some prominence, and seems to be closely associated with polltical office, the isgal profession is looked upon as the leader of all professions, and as offering the hest opportunity for local, state, or national advancement and fame. Certainly the successful lawyer is universally recognized and respected, and no doubt his calling offers to him great opportunity for general advancement in almost every branch of public life and office-holding honor.

The training of the law school, and the experience before the bar, will usually make a good speaker out of anyone who has a fair amount of capacity for delivery. The lawyer in the practice of his profession is obliged to think quickly, and to think upon his feet. It is but natural, then, that he should become a good speaker, if he has any natural ability in that direction, and it is obvious that good speaking is an essential part of public life. Granting that the bar unquestionably presents the greatest opportunity for "noticeable" success, and admitting that tmore than one half of the men who have heen and are, in the public eye, are lawyers, yet the law in itself does not, and cannot, make the many nor can it, of itself-give to anyone any prominance. honor, notorlety, or intrinsic benefit, which the man, himself, does not deserve. It is the man behind the law which makes divancements. The state of the divancement is divancement and the state of ordinary ability can secome a lawyer; that is to say, he can, by close study, pass the necessary examinations and become a member of the bar. The law school does not, and can not, so farther than to equire a written or oral examination and if the candidate passes this xamination by correctly answering echaical questions, the school must secessarily present him with a diplona, and the state and national bar will likewise admit him to practice. ma, and the state and national bar will likewise admit him to practice. But a knowledge of the law does not make a lawyer any more than a knowledge of theology fits a man to become a clergyman. Unless the legal knowledge is accompanied by the ability to use that acquirement, its possesor has no attainments of any value to himself or to anyone else. Knowledge stored in a mind incapable of distributing it is like so much unavailable junk, not worth its storage room.

Needs Peculiar Ability

It has been derisively said that there is a lawyer to every case.

It has been derisively said that there is a lawyer to every case; but this is exaggeration. It is a fact, nevertheless, that the supply of lawyers, and even of good lawyers, much exceeds the demand; and that 75 per cent. of them, not secepting those of any class or grade save the highest, might easily be excused from practicing their profession.

The lawyer at the top is at the very apex of emhence. The lawyer near the top occupies a prominent position. The lawyer at the middle of the ladder is a man of recognized success. The lawyer at the bottom, if he stays there, is the laughing stock of his friends, if he has any; is recognized nowhere, and practically amounts to nothing. There is no other profession which offers so much and so illttle in the way of prominence and fame.

The Criminal Lawyer

(8) The criminal lawyer, whose practice is confined to defending criminais before the court. Comparatively few lawyers are fitted for criminal cases. The successful criminal lawyer is keen and shart, whether or not he is great. He must be a good pleader, a convincing speaker, and ahle to make much out of little; a reader of human nature, and a manipulator of the human mind, which he must haddle as the potter moulds his clay, shaping it the way be wants it to set.

The court lawyer, whether a criminal lawyer or not, is not, as a rule, a good desk lawyer; that is to say, his knowledge of the manipulation of the law law first him of disparaging sense, because the "wind" of the law and I say this in no disparaging sense, because the "wind" of the law may be as necessive law and it is the say in the successful lawyer, specialist or not, ip, however, proficient in fundamental or general law. Without this knowledge he could not practice any branch of it. He learns to be a lawyer first, and afterwards to be a specialist.

The ordinary boy has no business to think oi becoming a lawyer. Parental pride and desire should not be allowed to count in making a decision. Many a parent hus irrevocably ruted his boy, and made a failure out of what might have been a success, b forcing him into the law for some other than a good reason. Of course, an ordinary boy may study law and eventually be admitted to the bar. He may put out his sign, and sooner or later have some sort of a clientele; but unless the last of the property of the

Qualities for Success

The boy likely to become a good lawyer, not only posesses, but gives evidence of reasoning qualities, and has a pronounced power of analysis. These may be crude and undereloped, but they are there; and if examination will not discover them in the hoy they will come out in the man. At an early age, the boy fitted to enter the law can reason out probable results from circumstantial data. To a certain extent, he knows how to produce apparent fact from possibility. He invariably enjoys discussion. He presents reasons, or apparent reasons, for every stand be takes. He may or may not be more than an ordinary student at school, although the bright iawyer usually develops from the hright scholar. The boy who will make a good lawyer desires with his whole heart to be a lawyer, and nothing but force of circumstances can keep him from practicing. He cannot be discustraged by ordinary discouragements; a lawyer he will be if he has one-tenth of a chance. Hardly without exception the boy dectined to shine before the bar, or to make even a far success at law, in carly life expressed a strong desire for the protession. He intelligently reads reports of prominent trials and visits the courtroom as often as he can. Before has finished his common school ducation, he has probably read one or more law books; and very likely has men a leader among his fellows at mock trials and debates on complicated subjects. No boy ever made a successful iawyer, who did not early show the characteristics which go to make the successful attorney-at-law.

Boys, do not become poor lawyers. Better be fair or good at almost anything else. If you think you want to be a lawyer, first find out whether or not you really want to become a lawyer; and when you have decided that question in the affirmative, examine you. Look into yourself with your whole mind end your whole soult, probe yourself to the very depths; hunt with the microscope of all your acutieness for the characteristics which point, law, ward, and ask others to discover what you sure good for; talk with lawyers and other clear-headed and able advisers, and ask their advice. If you and your parents are in favor of your enteriating the law, and other persons who are of fair discriminating capacity are opposed to it. I advise you to consider for many days before you plungs into a pool which is more likely to drown you than to float you.

A classical college education cannot be considered essential, but it is to be most strongly advised. The graduate of a cellege has a great advantage over the man whose school education is limited. The discipline of college work, and the environment of college work, and the environment of college work, and the environment of college obtained nothing so far as mere learning is concerned, I would enthusiastically recommend a college deucation to anyone who intends to enter the legal procession. The associations begun at college will be of ever-present value to him. I don't mean to say that the lack of a cellege education prejudices his legal success. The right kind of a boy will become a successful lawyer with or without a college deucation. I would recommend the isw school, as it is hevry respect better than reading law in a lawyer's office.

"Every pound of mest in our packing houses comes from aximals that are inspected and passed by trained veterinary agents of the department of agriculture. This is the absolute fact. We are not interested in animals condemned before slaughtered."

If this statement is true, as it may be, it shows either that President Roosevelt is maturien or that his administration has ocen conniving at the very things he now pretensis to condemn; see that his words have not been backed up by his acts. The packers' statement is corroborated officially hy the records of the department of agriculture, and the war department. Subsidies Great and Small.

When it comes to anything "free," most of us like to get our share of it, and as free seeds are the only subsidy the planters of the south, or the farmer of the north, get from Uncle Sam, congress has determined to continue the distribution. But what a price the recipients pay for their five cents' worth of seeds, for the same system on a much greater scale allows the trusts and combines to receive enormous subsidies through the protective tariff and other special privileges. All these subsidies from the government, petty and great, are paid from the taxes collected from the people, and the farmers pay, on the average, $100 for the Ave cents they receive, for, Lu addition to their share of the taxes, the subsidized trusts, protected by the tariff, add to the price they charge for their products so that the cost of living has advanced about 40 per cent.

chicago men who have formed sentimental attachments for their pocket knives need no longer break the dies of years or supersition when every stock assess accress of knives restored to usefulness after their owners had mouraed them as broken bey throw spair and about decided the had been decided the senting of the accidents overtake their favorite plees of cutlery, says the Daily News. Expert knife repairing within the heat-half-dozen. years has become an established branch of the cutler's work in Chicago shops and knives are sent hundreds of miles by mail or express and, neatly repaired, make quick journeys homeward to comfort their owners.

"Yes," asid one of the expert cutlers who repairs knives at a bench if the alley end of a narrow little cutler's ainon in Clark street, "we get a good deal of this sort of work. It keeps us busy all the time. Men become closely attached to knives they have carried year in and year out and when a blade is snapped at last some of 'em get so they can hardly-eat. I've seen men almost cry for Joy to see their old knives that they have carried so many years heed up as good as new again. Funny, isn't it, what a lot of memories will stay around an old jackknife."

Kniffe mending is almost an art. Only the best workmen are engaged in the work, which is done with great care. In most of their work the repair men seek to restore knives to the condition in which they were before the accident which brought about their sending to the repair man. Sometimes to achieve, this result knives must be treated half a dozen times.

"People who have knives fixed are all cranks," said a young workman.
"They've got to have everything just so. A little to much grinding on a blade and you've got to put another one in. Once I had to put five new handles on one old 'man's knife bey fore I got one that suited him. He said he'd carried it 20 years and it had helped him make his fortune and he wasn't going to have ti-neglected in its old age. It cost him 20 times its value to have the do knife fixed, but he was as tickled as a kid with a new top when the job was over."

For tile ordinary citizen who does not care to have extra work done a blade may be put in a knife or a new handle put on it for half a dollar or so. The particular man, with ideas that his knife should be restored to. Its old-time condition, can accomplish his aim in that direction, but it will sometimes cost him much money. KNOWN QUALITY There are two classes of remedies: those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior chafacter, acting temporarily, but highirously, as a result of forcing the natural functions annecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constiputes and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to gelsewhere when a dealer offers an initiation of any well known article; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

To the credit of the druggists of the United States be it said that nearly all of them value their reputation for professional integrity and the good—will—of their customers too highly to offer limitations of the

Help! Help! I'm Falling

Thus cried the hair. And a kind neighbor came to the res-cue with a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. The hair was saved! This was because Ayer's Hair Vigor is a regular hair medicine. Falling hair is caused by a germ, and this medicine completely destroys these germs. Then the healthy scalp gives rich, healthy hair.

Mr. Begart reported: "The Italian immigrants are too generally the victims of the padrone. It is characteristic of the Italian immigrants are too generally the victims of the padrone. It is characteristic of the Italian immigrant that he looks with suspicion on everybody but his own countryman, and in him he puts a confidence that is almost incredible. The padrone has practically instituted slave system among his countrymen. He hires the immigrants by the hundred to go out of the city to work on contracts and obtains from the employing corporation what is known as the commissary privileges; that is, he furnishes the workmen with food and lodging, deuteling the cost from their wages. As the padrone is the sole arbitrator of the cost of these necessaries, it can be imagined how much the ignorant immigrant obtains as the nat result of his labor. In recent cases brought to the attention of the commissioner of licenses it was shown that hundreds of Italian immigrants who believed they were going to Philadelpha or Pittsis characteristic of the Italian immigrant that he looks with suspicion on everybody but his own countryman, and in him he puts a confidence that is almost incredible. When a physician tells a woman suf-fering with serious feminine trouble that an operation is necessary, the very thought of the kinfe and the operating table strikes terror to her heart, and our hospitals are full of women coming for just such operations.

There are cases where an operation is the only resource, but when one considers the great number of cases of menacing female troubles cured by Lydia. E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after physicians have advised operations, no woman should submit to one without first trying the Vegetable Compound and writing Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice, which is free.

In the first place, the starchy part of the wheat and barley goes through various processes of cooking, to perfectly change the starch into Dextrose or Post Sugar, in which state it is ready to be easily absorbed by the blood. The parts in the wheat and barley which Nature can make use of for rebuilding brain and nerve centers are retained in this remarkable food, and thus the human body is supplied with the powerful strength producers so easily noticed after one has eaten Grape-Nuts each day for a week or 10 days. For two days now since their departure from the Red sea, after their miraculous delivarance from Pharsoh, the Hebrew people had been atruggling across the hot, dusty reaches of the wilderness. The water they had brought with them, while not exhausted, was warm and brackish, and their thirsty bodies were longing for a draught from some cool apring. Eagerly as they marched, obsidently following the Cloud which went before them, they kept. a Ksen lookout for the signs of water, and when the cry was raised: "Water!" and the people saw the welcome vision in the distance, seemingly let down out of the very heavens for their refreshing, they clapped their hands and shouted for Joy, crying to their leaders to turn and hasten thither.

Forgetting their disappointment and murmurings, and glad that they had not departed, Jahziel and his followers at the color pools. Casting aside their burdens and stooping low, they scooped up the water in their psims and sucked it into their mouths like the dry and parched earth draws in the rain when it falls upon it. But what alls the people? With wry faces they spit the water out more quickly even than they had drank it in, and a howl is raised which spreads and grows as others of the multitude crowd up to the edge of the pool and rink also of the "water. But so parched are the people and so eager for a drink that again they essay to drink, but again they spit the water out as before, and again the cry of disappointment and protest rings forth.

Other's Dust.

Wawona, Cal.—Five Yosemite valley stages were held up by a lone highwayman who obtained a considerable amount of money and fewelry. The conveyances were halted in rapid succession at a curve in the road near Ahwanee at the identical spot where a lone bandit operating a year ago relieved several weathly tourists of their valuables. The stages were traveling sufficiently far apart to avoid each other's dust, and when the drat vehicle reached the turn in the road the highwayman, whose features were completely hidden by a duster thrown over his head, stepped out, pointed a gun at the driver and commanded him to halt. Some of the women passengers screamed, but others began wildly to secrete their valuables. The highwayman directed all passengers to throw out their money and jewelry, and when the order met with compliance directed the driver to move on. The second stage arrived, within a few minutes after the first, and the driver and passengers suffered a similar experience. The process was repeated until all five had been haited and robbed, when the bandit disappeared in the brush.

THE FIRST PARAGRAPH.

Augmentation of the Lands of the Peasants By Expropriation.

St. Petersburg.—The first paragraph of the proposed agrarian law, viz., the augmentation of the lands of the pensants by the expropriation of sil state and crown domains and church and monastery lands, has been accepted by the commission of the lower house with practical unalimity.—The commissioners have now locked hors over the mode of expropriation and the method of disposal of private estates and the end is not yet in sight.

The Pain Family

You know them; they are numerous, and make their presence felt everywhere. The names of the family are Headache, Toothache, Earache, Backache, Stomach ache, Neuralgia, etc. They are sentinels that warn you of any derangement of your system. When the brain nerves become exhausted or irritated, Headache makes you miserable; if the stomach nerves are weak, indigestion results, and you double up with pain, and if the more prominent nerves are affected, Neuralgia simply makes life unendurable. The way to stop pain is to soothe and strengthen the nerves. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do this. The whole Pain family yield totheir influence. Harmless if taken as directed.

"I find Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills an excellent remedy for overcoming head-ache, neuralgia and distressing pains of all sorts. I have used them for the past seven years in this depacity with the best of results."

There is not a more honorable profession or business than that of journalism. The newspaper is the mirror of its city or town, and its editors and reporters are truly representative of the people, and almost invariably of a grade higher than their constituents.

There are wolves in editorial clothing, and there are blackless on the newspaper staff the world over, but the men who make the newspaper, including the terms of the profession, and as it is, is a peor two ahead of its support. While I have no respect for the yellow journal, or for its sidiors and others connected with it, id onto believe, as many do, that the limmoral newspaper is always better than its readers. The reader, more than the editor, is responsible for journalistic degradation. The newspaper is always better than its readers. The reader, more than the editor, is responsible for journalistic degradation. The newspaper is a limit the editor, is responsible for journalistic degradation. The newspaper is a limit to the service of the public puise, the profit of the public puise, they important work. Needs Natural Ability.

The journalist, or newspaper man, is a professionalist, not a man of business. The profession of journalism has the peculiarties and conditions always accompanying a profession; and therefore the newspaper writer greatly needs natural ability for anything like full success. The ordinary man never become a first-class newspaper writer, and the man of business ability alone is entirely unfitted for the profession.

fore the newspaper writer greatly needs natural ability for, anything like full success. The ordinary man can never become a first-class newspaper writer, and the man of business ability alone is entirely unfitted for the profession.

The editor-in-chief occupies the highest editorial postition. He is supposed to have compiler control of every department of his newspaper, except the business one. It is for him to decide the polley and to maintain it, to engage and discharge the members of the editorial staff, and to be responsible for everything that appears in this paper outside of the advertisements. The theoretical power of fee editor-in-chief is absolute. Practically, however, only a small proportion of so-called editors-in-chief control the right of policy of their appers, as this is established by the owners, the editor-in-chief being virtually only an employe. Years ago, great editors were known by name. To-day, editors of fully as much ability as then, and with nuch broader experience, are seldom recognized outside of their own circle. They are the important parts of a great machine; in fact, they are the spring of the journalistic watch, and, like the spring, make the watch go as the maker designed that it should.

Country Journalism.

The influence of the country press, in its aggregate, is the greatest power for good which the past has ever even, which the present has ever experienced, and the future has ever dared to suggest. The country newspaper has done more for progress, and has pushed icilization farther to the front, than have all other influences for good combined, save that of religion. The life of a country editor is as close to the ideal of civilization has yet permitted. His average income is from $1,000 to $1,500 a year. The maximum income of a country editor and proprietor dees not exceed $6,000 to $7,000, except in very exceptional cases, and comparatively few receive beyond the $3,000 mark, but guite a number get from $2,000 to $3,000 anually, usually with the assistance of the printing office connected with the newspaper.

Most country enguspers beine edited cless than those pain to the entors-in-cheft.

Editorial writers are those who do the bulk of the editorial work of the paper, and who write all the editorials except those furnished by the editorin-chigh limself. A large city newspapper employs anywhere from two to a dozen such writers, who are graded according to their capacity and responsibility. The head editorial writer composes the leaders not written by the editor-in-chief, and the other writers prepare the rest. Some editorial writers do their work at home, giving only a part of their time to the newspaper. These are paid by a salary, or or the column.

It is quite common nowadays for a great daily newspaper to have a number of editors at large, each one a specialist in some one department. These writers are usually paid by the plece, athough some of them craw salaries. When p matter of any special importance, requiring expert opinion, comes ap, the editor familiar with that kind of work is ordered to prepare an editorial, which he does in the time al-editors are almost invariably owners of the whole or a part of the paper, of the whole or a part of the paper, and therefore are not salaried men. Many daily newspapers outside of the largest cities are energially portiable, and the largest cities are energially portiable, and the largest cities are energially portiable, and the which has at least 100.000 inhabitants, is likely to be one of the richest men of the lown. The life of these daily newspaper editors is similar to that of men on the large city cities, but not so strenuous.

Some of our greatest editors and most capable editorial writers are not found in the larger cities, but confine the control of the sampler cities, and the sampler cities, and the sampler cities are not found in the larger cities, but confine they undoubtedly have more opportunity and certainly live much happier lives. Any bright boy with large cities are not control to the sampler cities and the sampler cities are not control of the states to the country, is pretty sure to arrive at the position of country editor or proprietor, and may hope some day to have an income sufficient to support him in confort, with enough over 10 build up a competency.

The city boy, of the nc-ressary ability, may feel reasonably sure of earning his livelihood on a great daily, but he chances are that his country cousin will be gaining more in the aggregate and have a much happler il. a than is possible under the great city eavironment. A good position in society and a comfortable living are almost certain for the country boy of ability, who is satisfied with country journalism.

In the city, on the great newspaper, there is a higher goal to strive for, with very little chance of reaching it; first, because only those of the greates the highest honors; and second, because there are altogether too many contestants in the race.

Educational Needs.

There are many schools of Journaltam, some of them financially successful, but I very much doubt if any school can properly impart the know school can properly impart the know ledge necessary for the making of an editor or reporter. A classical college education may or may not be essential to journalisile success, but the follege-bred man has abetter chance than has the man of only comomn school education. Generally speaking, the more broadly educated a man is, the better equipped he is. The would-be journalist inceds all the education-he can obtain. If he expects to rise from the ranks, and to be other than an ordinary reporter, he must have, a mindifiled with general knowledge, he must know both the world of books and the world outside of books, and he cannot know too much about men and things. A liberal education is the best preparation for journalistic life. It filts one to make better use of the practical things of life.

The country editor should be a print-The country entitor should be a pint-er, not a theoretical one, but a practi-cal printer, familiar with the whole art and practice of type and press. Nearly all country newspapers, even those issuing dailies, maintain print-ing establishments, and comparatively few could exist without the printing

The city journalist need not necessarily understand typesetting and printing, but a knowledge of the "art creative of all arts" will not come amiss, and he is better off if equipped with it. He would better begin by writing reports of local events, and by attempting to produce descriptive articles of things which he thinks will interest the public.

Boy That Succeeds.

Boy That Succeeds.

The boy most likely to make a good journalist possesses, among other, things, great chunks of old-fashloned horse sense. He is naturally observant, and can readily put his thoughts upon paper. Quite likely he inclines toward the printing office, even at an early age, and likes to see the printers of type and a printing press of his own. So iar as I know, there has never been a successful journalist who did not, at an early age, instinctively turn in this direction, and involuntarily show a preference for type, ink and paper. Unless the youth shows these characteristics, the chances are that he will make a poor journalist, and pares, but he will make a poor journalist, and pares, but he will make a poor journalist, and pares, but he will make a poor journalist, and paress should not attempt to push there is no new spaperward unless they discover in him unmistakable inclination and reporters to talk with him. If the boy has the spark of the journalist chance is sufficient to draw him back to the newspaper of fice, that he may again watch the activity and talk with the men.

Most country editors are proprietors few country newspapers being edited by salaried men.

Country the Best.

Upon general principles, I advise the country boy, who wishes to become an editor, to remain in the country, to begin on a country newspaper, either daily or weekly, and to attok to the country. Later it may be advisable for him to move to a larger town, and even to a small city, but in 99 cases out of 100 he will be better off in the end if he gives the smaller place the preference, provided it is large and prosperous enough for a reasonable amount of growth. "Upon—the—same general principles I would advise the city boy who wishes to become a journalist to begin in the city, but after he has heen in the city a year, and has discovered that he is fitted for his work, I would suggest that he seriously consider moving to some smaller city or country center.

In no other profession would I so strongly advise the boy to give the country and the country-city the preference, and I would apply this advice to the city-bred boy as well as to the country-grown boy." by salaried men.

Small Daily Papers.

There is no sharp line drawn between the country weekly newspaper editor and reporter, as they do similar work, the editor doing more editing than reporting, and the reporter more reporting than editing. During the last 15 years the country daily newspaper has been very much in evidence, and the many localities has supplanted the weekly paper, but most of these dailles also run weekly editions. There are persons who maintain that it is idle to attempt to show a connection between Republican politics—or policies—and the disgraceful records of current events, including such matters as the revelations concerning the Chicago packing houses, and the "graft" shown in relations between Pennsylvania railroad officials can coar mine owners. Indeed, there are those who assert that such attempt would not only be fruitless, but would be nothing more dignified than a display of malicious political prejudice.

However, it is certain that such concempt would not only be fruitless, but would be nothing more dignified than a display of malicious political prejudice.

However, it is certain that such connection exists, and can be shown. It may be denied, but it is nevertheless a fact, that the conditions productive of the results mentioned could not exist if it were not for the enormous combinations of capital, creating exclusive monopolies of various forms of trade, specially fostered by a Republican tariff and carefully shielded by Republican agents at Washington. One marked effect of such combinations of capital is to develop the radical evils of moncroly. As the Journal of Commerce says:

"The power acquired over the market for raw material may be oppressively used upon the producers of the material." It may also be used as an instrument of corection over transportation companies to extort discriminating rates and preferential treatment, so that competition may be crushed out an smaller independent butchering and packing concerns may be ruined. The same influence may be oppressively and ruinously exerted in the other direction in distributing and wrong, and may result not in lower prices but in arrogating all the advantage of increased efficiency and economy, where these are actually realized, to the organized capitalists who have built up this power and who wield it for their own profit regardless of consequences to anytody else or to the community. It is almost inertiable that they should come to use it selfishly, greedily and, if necessary to their purposes, corruptly and tyrannicality. This is a tendency and these are consequences to anytody else or to the community. Conspirators Rebuked.

In the final debate on the statehood bill, June 14, Marcus A. Smith, the delegate from Arizona, called attention to the history of the Hamilton bill—a bit of history whitch is now extremety distateful to the Republican base of the house, who had agreed to force that bill through for the president, if the president would, in return, use his influence with congress to prevent tarrif revision at this session. Having referred to this inlaultous deal, Mr. Smith said: "There is a law in Arizona and that if one legislator trades with another on the legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation before that body he is guilty of a very high misdemence legislation by promises of veto of the very high misdemence legislation by promises of veto of the very high mi

The Republican managers profess to be vastly worried over the Tillman bill, which passed the senate, profinditing corporations from contributing to political campaign funds. It is not very encouraging that the bill passed the senate without a word of debate, and it is either intended to put the senators on record as being the radical body and thus make the house swallow it or defeat it, or it shows that the Republican corporation senators feel sure of the usual campaign contributions from some hidden source. If the bill is reported to the house by the committee to whom it has been referred, it will undoubtedly pass, for even Speaker Cannon and the other Republican corporation leaders will not dare to oppose the thouse are the contributions of the house are the house are the house are the contributions of the house are the house ar cannon and the other Republican corporation leaders will not dare to oppose the The Republican members of the house are in hot water anyway, for they must vote for reform, or their constituents, who are sitting up and taking notice this year, will down them, and on the other hand they must have campaign funds, or be defeated. With the corporations prohibited from furnishing the usual large amount, the campaign war chest will be only replenished by the individuals who are tariff beneficiaries, or corporation of ficials in their individual capacity.

The poor harassed Republican congressman is damned if he does vote for such a bill and condemmed if he does not vote for it and so he cusses Senator Tillman.

As the Democrats learned in 1896 and have become accustomed in subsequent years how to get along with hardly enough money to pay their printing bills and postage, they will welcome the passage of a measure that will aid in preventing Republican corruption and which will put them or more even terms with their heretofore highly subsidized opponents. And if the Republicans refuse to pass the bill, that fact will make another good reason for turning the rascals out.

It is almost inevitable that they should come to use it self-lishly, greedily and, if necessary to their purpose, corruptly and tyrannically. This is a tendency and these are consequences that have made monopoles contrary to public polley and caused them to be feared and detested.

These monopolistic tendencies are the same, in purport and result, whether displayed by the beef trust, or any like combine. The result is always the same—increased wealth for the monopoly and increased cost to the consumer.

When competition is healthy and legitimate, when business is distributed among concerns of manageable proportions, there will always be found a motive on the part of each to exect in the quality of product, and to seek patronage by real superiority rather than by the employment of glaring advertisements which are usually false and misleading, from the unwarranted label izon a can to the immense sign erected upon the mountain side.

But when there is no competition, when it has been eliminated by "favorable"—and that generally means "bought"—legislation. So that the business is conducted on a scale so enormous that details are concealed, methods may not be observed nor real quality judged, then the motive to excel by reason of real worth and as periority no longer exists. The public pays the penalty and whatever—price the monopoly is pleased to charge.

Every spring, on the great day when the procession starts, the housetops along the street are crowded with a gayly clothed throng, showering blessings on the pilgrims, walling loudly, perhaps, for those who will never return; laughing one minute and crying the next, after the ephemeral manner of the last—all in all a curlous sight for the occidental. A thousand piles that it should pass! For even if Abmed Bey tells the truth, and the road—be never completed to Mecca, yet the picturesque start of the pilgrimage must soon become a thing of the past. A pmfing railway train is less decorative than a rug-laden camel, and the stuffy amoking compartment of a third-classy carrige does and tend itself especially to romance. The difficulties which Demosthenes surmounted before he became a great, crator are tolerably, familiar to moet readers, but it is not so well known that many of our modern great orators did not reel off their speeches as fuentiy as they appear in print.

Henry Clay never was at a loss for a word, or "boggled" while speaking. With Mr. Webster it was different, and he often would hesitate and then rub his nose with the bent knuckle of his right thumb.

Mr. Calhoun, when at a loss for a word, would give a petulant twist at his large turned-over shirt collar, and then run his bony finger through his long, gray hair until it stood up like the hair on an electric toly.

Mr. Benton would sink his woice and mumble something that no one could understand, and Gen. Cass would "Awt wit" in the English style, passing his hand beneath the lower edge of his capacious white waistcoat.

Mr. Webster was almost invariably "stuck" when he attempted to use a Latin quotation, and when Mr. Everett was in the senate he used invariably to appeal to him.

Burgeon-Made Man.

It is probable that most persons will prefer to go through life with a whole skin in spite of the reassuring comment of a Pbiladelphia surgeon so a recent operation in Rochester, Minn, that "it makes little difference if a man does lose a few inches of his infectines." There is plenty of scientific authority on his side, remarks the, New York World, Prof. Elle Metchil-koff, of the Pasteur institute, in Paris, even holds that civilized man would be even holds that civilized man would b

In Loe Angeles surgeons report with pride that they have just taken out a man's beart, washed it, replaced it, and promise that he will recover, Numbers of men under stress of circumstances and without mortal inconvenience have parted with a lobe of, the lungs of liver or brains, to the immense gratification of the surgeons, but no one does it voluntarily or pureyly out of a desire of self-perfection. Man is perverse eaough to want to remain as he is and to put off surgical improvements as a forlorn hope. It may be that there are too many parts of him for present needs, but the coming race will have to outgrow them as best it can or put up with them, as its ancestors did.

ing race will have to outgrow them as best it can or put up with them, as its ancestors did.

Uniformity of American Life.

The crudities of American Life have been fruitful topics for foreign critics from the earliest colonial times, and may eminent British writers, including Dickens, have unbottled the viais of their saream at our expense. But either we have improved or men of fairer judgment are expressing opinions, Mr. Nabuco, the Brazilian minister at Washington, has returned from an extended tour of the United States, and, speaking of what he saw, said to a' newspaper interviewer: 'I' tried very hard indeed to find the 'west,' about which I had heard so much, but I came to the conclusion that it is a myth. There is no difference between the people of your various states that I could perceive. The one thing about Americans which must impress visitors more than anything 'sles' is the absence of any so-called lower strata in your society. In this country there are no men and women of the sort always referred to in Europe as the 'spoople.' Men and women here never admit that they are at the foot of the social ladder, and if they are there they don't look it; they appear to be at the top. I looked in vain for some place that would look provincial. In Europe, if one stops at a small station, even on the principal lines of travel, one may find bimself in a place where every essential of refined life is wanting; but in this country, where all is change and interchange, railways, electric light, telephones, lifts and all modern improvements are everywhere. This uniformity of your life from sea to sea is amazing.'

A Chleago school of domestic science has recently turned out a group of sweet girl graduates whose diplomas certify that they are able to keep a house on ten dollars a week. While this movement may not settle the bousehold problem, remarks the Minneapolis Journal, it is gratifying that it is being considered and that there are young women who, are making the effort to restore the art of housekeeping in this country. Ten dollars a effort to restore the art of housekeep-ing in this country. Ten dollars a week may not be the right figure but it seems a safe starting point. No man who cannot earn ten dollars a week has much of a license to mar-ry. And the man who can earn that amount is entitled to know in ad-vance that if he does marry he is not being run up against a $20 wife.

OUTDOOR LIFE Will Not Offset the Ill Effects of Coffee When One Cannot Digest It,

When One Cannot Digest It.

A farmer-says:

"It was not from Ilquor or tobacco that for ten years or more I suffered from dyspepsia and stomach trouble, they were caused by the use of coffee until I got so bad I had to give up, coffee entirely and almost give up eating. There were times when I could eat only boiled milk and bread and when I went to the field to work I had to take some bread and butter along to give me strength.

"I doctored, with doctors and took almost everything I could get for my atomach in the way of medicine, but if I got any better it only lasted a little while until I was almost a walking skeleton.

"One day I read an ad for Postum and told my wife I would try it, and as to the following facis I will make affidavit before any judge:
"I quit coffee entirely and used Postum in its place. I have regained my health entirely and can est anything that is cooked to est. I have increased fin weight until now I weigh more than I ever did; I have not taken any medicine for my stomach since I began using Postum. Wby, I believe Postum will almost digest an Iron wedge.

He could not produce witnesses, he said, because they feared making confessions might place them in danger of prosecution.

The verdict of guilty made it possible for the judge to fix a maximum fine of $40,000 each, or $120,000.

Judge Landis, however, has taken into consideration alleged lack of any criminal intent. The judge wished to determine whether the arrangement of rebatting one dollar on each car to the Schwarzschild & Suizberger company was known to all other roads and its officials was precipitated by the investigation of the packing industries. The indictment followed. It was announced that other roads will be prosecuted.

NO. 40, flocal news.

Resolutions adopted by the Ladies' Mits Society, Burlington, Kentucky. Whereas, Our Heavenly Father has called to rest our beloved friend and the second from us our society, lost one of its most faithful members, her influence ever remained with us, therefore be it. Resolved, First, That by the death of Sister Hoover each member has lost a true friend. Second, That her life has been one of christian self-denial. Third, That our loss is her gain, for we know she is with her beloved Sewiour.

Saviouri, That we each shall take Fonrile, as an example of christian love, and consecrate ourselves more fully to the Master's service.

Fitth, That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to her loved ones in their sad bereavement.

Committee—Susan E. Clutterbuck Elia L. Duncan.

Medest Ciaims Often Carry the Most Coeviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun investor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise, instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufactures of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the neers make the statements. What they do claim, is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentory, the control of the control

About a dosen colored men went from Burlington to Anderson Ferry, last Sinday, and on their return trip Anderson Johnson got too boisterous to suit Henry Fry, owner of the wag-on and team, and in his endeavor to quiet Johnson they came very near getting into an altercation. Johnson got out of the wagon and picked up a rock, which he threw at Fry, hitting him in the eye, hurting him quite badly. The trouble occurred on the pike about a mille east of Hebrou.

The trustees of the common school in this district have removed that dump on the side of the pike and on the school house property, and want it distinctly understood that no more rabbish of any kind will be suffered to the school house lot. Those who have been using the dump should bear this warning in mind.

Along the streets and in the allies of the town is a great deal of rank vegetation, which, if it is suffered to mature, fall down and decay where it falls, is liable to breed disease-especially fevers. To protect, then all means, have the streets and allies cleared of this rank vegetation.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and and Diarrhose Remedy.

This is a perfectly reliable medicine for bowel complaints, and one that has never been known to fail even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For eale by every reliable dealer in State of Kentucky.

Dr. W. O. Rouse "rid" the third degree goat in Burlington Masonic Lodge, last Saturday night. Several of the members of Hebron lodge were present and assisted greatly in the work. A lunch was served at the conclusion of the work.

There is considerable complaint of the uneavenness of the growing to-bacco. It can not be accounted for Fine, large, thrifty plants and small, slow growing plants stand side by side in the row, with no apparent cause for the great disparity in size.

One of the finest rains of the season was that which fell here last Friday afternoon. It caught considerable grass down, it having been cut during the forenoon.

All this had made the people content to remain, and in the joy and satisfaction of the present ease and comfort they had ceased to think of the Fromised Land toward which they were journey. They had rejoiced with kearts overflowing, with gratitude for the leading of the Lord which had brought them thither. They whre sure now the Lord had been directing their journey. They quite forgot the hardships and trials of the way over which hey had come, and wondered how it could have been that they had ever doubted him or murmer against him. For while they rested there at beautiful Ellim it was easy to be joy-ful and to trust God.

But at last when one morning the Cloud lifted and the trumpets blew, and the orders were given for the breaking of the camp, the people looked out disconsolately upon the stretch of sand and rocks lyring hare before them. Again the heat and the fatigue of the journey and the parching thirst which was poorly slaked by the lepid water from the water bottles, brought to them discomfort of body and irritation of spirit, and doubts and questionings began again to creep into such trying journey, when Elim, the place of refreshing, was just behind them, and where they might abide yet many days? Thus did the people quickly forget the goodness of the Lord, and doubt. his wisdom—a he faithuly led them forward towards a better country and a larger life.

But as though the disbomfort of the journey was not enough to try them and make them murmur, when the people had settled down in camp that night after the long march, they discovered that the provisions were running low. While at Ellim they had not been conscious of the lack, but now shut in on every side by the wilderness of barren sands, and with none of the fresh dates to take away the tyness of their unleavened cakes, they suddenly awakened to a realization that little was left of that which they had brought with them from

SEE BEES AT THEIR WORK

Easy to Arrange Aquarium in Which Busy Insects Can Be Studied to Advantage.

Everybody is curious to see bees actually at work. By following the example of a writer in Suburban Life this curiosity may be gratified.

Take a rectangular glass aquarium and place it on a window still, elevated silightly at the side nearest the window, so that when the latter is raised an inch the bees may pass in and out. If desired, the bees may pass in and out. If desired, the bees may be kept for some time in confinement, by raising the aquarium an inch on blocks and using a strip of wire screen cloth to prevent the bees from escaping.

When confined, the bees should be fed a syrup of equal parts of sugar and water. A frame or two of bees may be purchased for a trifling sum.

Put within this glass aquarium some rustic supports to represent projecting, undecayed portions of the inside of the hollow trunk. Keep all covered by an opaque cloth when not observing what is going on within this glass bee home. Then the bees will be free to work, and to adapt themselves to the environment. They can suit their own fancy about attaching combs to the sticks; they may build diagonally or in any other form that they may prefer and they may attach the comb to seldes or ends just when and where they think it is necessary.

In the artificial hives the combs are attached only at the edges, but in natural conditions within the bee crown in its counterpart, as represented by the old-fashioned box hive with opaque sides and in our transparent inverted aquarium, the bees can build combs and attach them in any way that, they see fit.

One of the most interesting objects for ma long comb. They seem to believe that they are really within a hollow tree and that it is likely to be swayed by the gales. Of course, when so swayed long combs laden with honey or with young bees would be toomuch for the unyleiding rigidity of the upper part of the combs. These, if they have no side stays, would bend, crack and be crashed against each other.

The bees have learned this and give the combs a firm support whenever it

The bees have learned this and give the combs a firm support whenever it is necessary. They do this, it is true, to a certain extent, in the regular eight or ten frame hive, but not with the naturalness with which they do it in a large, unobstructed space.

Not long ago a veteran bee keeper took a colony of bees from an attic, where they had been for many years, "Well," said he, "you should have seen the funny forms of those combs"—most interesting thing I ever saw. There was one pillar almost round—as old center right up and several feet long—and then combs around that; the most fantastic shapes you ever saw."

Shoring Snails.

Karl Soffel, of Parls, the well-known naturalist, has discovered that snalis sore.

He was experimenting with several specimens, which he had placed in a glass jar in his library, and one evening while writing he noticed a peculiar noise issuing therefrom. It sounded like a person snoring in the next room. M. Soffel approached and found that the snalls were sleeping soundly and snoring peacefully, the loudest snorer of them all being the one that had lived among grape vines.

This was a triumph of the transcontinental railroads as well as a triumph of Roosevelt. A lock canal at Panama will not interfere very much with Harriman, Hill or Morgan. These men, at least, owe a great debt of gratitude to Roosevelt for his legislative work.

The proposition to subsidize ships built in this country by the protected interests was one of the president's pet measures. It passed the senate under his lash; but it lodged in the house, where it will rest until the next session. Roosevelt will triumph in this case, if the people will reclect his heachmen to congress next fall. Congress passed the Aldrich resolution, authorizing and directing the president to purchase, materials and equipment for the construction of the Panama canal from the tariff-protected trusts of this country, notwith-standing lower bids for such articles from European bidders. This was a frumph for Roosevelt and the stand-patters.

For years the labor unions have, advocated a law making common carriers liable for injuries to their employes acting under orders. This bill was passed, and Roosevelt sets the credit due to the labor organizations. He did nothing to push this bill.

The senate confirmed the appointment of Barnes, Roosevelt as assistant private secretary, whose brutal treatment of Mrs. Minor Morris an aged and respectable woman, disgusted the people of Washington and the entire country. This and the traveling expenses steal were his greatest triumphs.

The total crop of all grains this year promises to be 4,291,444,000 bushels, using the July condition as a basis of calculations. This is about 8,000,000 bushels, using the condition as a basis of calculations. This is about 8,000,000 bushels bove the indication at this time last year, but 217,000,-000 below the final figures. The weather in all the great grain producing states, however, since July 1 has been all that could be desired, and the prospects are that the final figures will be as much, if not more, above the July promise this year as they were last.

been saucy to him. It says: "The Evening Post speaks always of Mr. Bryan with great respect. To that respect he is entitled, because of his personal character as well as because of his political leadership."

The last reports from London stated that Col. Bryan and Congressman Ollie M. James had met. Some think Mr. Bryan will assist Mr. James had met. Some think Mr. Bryan will assist Mr. James had met. Some think Mr. Bryan will assist Mr. James in arriving at a conclusion in regard as to twhether or not he will be a candidate for Governor. The Recogner of the concentration of the concentrati

The glad tidings come, from what is said to be inside information that Judge "Jeems" Hargis, "the notorious," is to fired bodily from the Democratic State Central Committee. Vest, at Walton.

In the proper place will be found, this week, the announcement of Congressman Joseph L. Rhinock as a candidate for renomination as the Democratic candidate for Congress in this claim for reelection on his record during the last session of Congress and the further-fact that-it has been customary to give a Congressman a second term. Mr. Rhinock makes an industrious public servant, and it looks now like the Democratic custom will be observed in his case, even with opposition, should any develop.

For that Dandruff.

There is one thing that will cure it—Ayer's Hair Vigor. It is a regular scalp-medicine. It quickly destroys the germs which cause this disease. The unhealthy scalp becomes healthy. The dandruff disappears, had to disappear. A healthy scalp means a great deal to you—healthy hair, no dan-druff, no pimples, no eruptions. A Window Box Mission, e hundred window boxe r size to fit the average A Window Box Mission.

Five hundred window boxes, of proper size to fit the average tenement house window, are being manufactured in New York this year. Equipped with the required acrews and wires and filled with plants sturdy enough to grow even without much encouragement, these boxes are to be distributed among the denizens of the city's crowded tenements. This charming enterprise is conducted by the Flower Guild. Guild visit-ors, calling wherever boxes have been given, explain how flowers should be tended. Facts related by some of last year's visitors speak more convincingly than mere statistics can of the barrenness of many lives. One woman who received a box was afraid to water it lest the water injure the flowers and spoil the box. Other recipients were reluctant to pick off faded, yellow leaves. "How do I know," asked one, 'hat these, being of such a color, are not really flowers?" One poor soul, relates the Youth's Companion, hesitated about taking a box, fearing that if the flowers should die she might die, too. Reluctantly accepting one, she was one day filled with terror to find that neighbors, living above, had been throwing their coffee grounds on the plants. But brotherly love, it appears, exists even in the tenements. Her neighbors promply stopped their practice when they were told that it might cauge the woman's death. The boxes distributed last year were fully appreciated. In several cases it was the man of the family who cared for the flowers. One man was inspired to add a soap box in a second window, and plant peas. The flowers were used by many to, deck graves of loved ones. One more was inspired to add a soap box in a second window, and plant peas. The flowers were used by many to, deck graves of loved ones. One poor woman carried her heavy box to her child's grave. Prizes are awarded for the boxes that show the best care. Last year the three prizes awarded went to a little colored girl, to a confirmed invalid, and to a small trace could an acception of the family who cared for the flowers. awarded for the boxes that show the best care. The World's Coal Supply.

German statisticians are patient, thorough workers, and the assurance of a leading German technical journal that the world's coal is sufficient for reasonable future demands is backed by elaborate tables that inspire confidence. Germany's deposits are estimated at 280,000,000,000 tons, or enough, allowing for increased demand, to last until the year 3000. Great Britain and Ireland are not so well off, but their 133,000,000,000 tons, with twice the German consumption, will hold out 400 years. Other European countries have a less extensive outlook. Belgium's coal deposits are estimated at 23,000,000,000 tons, or pean countries have a less extensive outlook. Belgium's coal deposits are estimated at 32,000,000,000 tons, of France at 19,000,000,000. Austria 17,000,000,000 and Russia 4,000,000,000. North America is credited by this authority with 68,1000,000 tons, or about the same as all Europe. But Asia and Siberia are believed to have even a greater store of coal as yet undeveloped. But calculations of future Jemands upon the wealth of nature Sometimes break down in practice. The lumber supply of the United States was once supposed to be adequate for several hundred. tice. The lumber supply of the United States was once supposed to be adequate for several hundred years, but the growing prices of the commodity show that already trouble is in-sight. The immense increase in the use of steel and cement proves that substitutes for wood are sought. Forestry principles, remarks the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, will conserve the timber supply, but it will take time to apply them, and the country will be fortunate II they become effective before the havor reaches the form of desert places.

With great unanimity the preachers of baccalaureates to young men gradnates this year have warned them away from the pursuit of wealth. This is a wide departure from what has been dinned into American ears as "auccess" for three-quarters of a century. The Chicago Chronicle calis attention to the fact that nobody, unless it be President Butler, of Columbia university, has hinted that this is only a new extreme quite as victous as the old—that weatth still retains and probably always will retain its power in the world for good and its and that the vital things for man's welfare are, first, how he acquires it; and, secondly, what uses he makes of it. With these points wholesomely guarded the rest will be plain sailing.

An eastern paper says a man was recently cured of rheumatism by getting 100 bees to sting him. It is a wise provision of Providence that bees can't understand English. It bees can't understand English. If the man a service they would have probably flown away, refusing to sting.

Mr. Sullivan's Statement.

Mr. Sullivan's Statement.

"On Monday Attorney General Moody and myself met in the United States attorney's office in New York city and reviewed the evidence brought before the present grand inry relative to alleged violations of the federal law by the Standard Oil company, in connection with the transportation and storage of its products by the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway company. We came to the conclusion that the aforesald testimony fixed the legal jurisdiction for indictment and prosecution elsewhere than in the jurisdiction of the northern district of Ohlo, and Special Counsel Oliver E. Pagin confirms our joint opinion in this respect. This confined the inquiry before the present grand jury to an investigation of all alleged violations of law, as they might be the subject of prosecution in other jurisdictions. "Evidence valuable to the government in any prosecution which may be commenced elsewhere has been adduced before the grand jury, and will probably at once be put into force and effect in the proper jurisdiction, probably chicago, by the attorney general.

force and effect in the proper jurisdiction, probably Chicago, by the attorney general.

Court Lacks Jurisdiction.

"It appearing under this statement that, under the facts as they now appear, there is no lawful jurisdiction in this particular judicial district, the grand jury did not vote upon the question of indictments at all, but the sitting of that body at the present time was very important in not only developing where the prosecution of the alleged offenses should be had, but also brought out important testimony that can be effectively used all along the line, according to the programme adopted by the attorney general in his earnest and vigorous campaign against corporate and individual violators of the Elikins law and the act to regulate commerce among the states."

Chicago Gets Cases.

Chicago. District Attorney Morrison has received a transcript of the evidence taken before the Cleveland grand jury in the Standard Oil inquiry and he is going over it with Oilver E. Pagin, special attorney degated by Attorney General Mondy thave supervision of the prosecution with the Standard Oil company. Messra Morrison and Pagin returned from Cleveland Wednesday. A special grand jury will be called to hear the oil trust cases in ten days.

The prosecution will be directed against the Standard Oil company only, and not against the Lake Shore road, as in Cleveland, at the beginning of the session there. Should the raliroad company be indicted the officials are safe, owing to the immunity baths they have received.

TO ENFORCE 8-HOUR DAY

Favor of Labor—Prosecution for Violators. **

Washington.—Action of the greatest importance in labor circles is contemplated in a direction given by the president to officers in charge of public works at the instance of Secretary Tast. This is to employ the government's own officers to direct and punish violations of the law of 1902, providing except that in case of emergency, work upon government britiangs, ships and other properties shall be limited to eight hours each day for each workman.

An effort was made by the forces of organised labor during the last session of congress to secure legislation to this end, but so effective was the opposition of the great contracting firms that adjournment was had without any action upon the pending bill, though the house committee on labor consumed many hours in listening to powerful arguments on either side of the question.

Heretofore it has been the practice of executive officers, when complaint was made by labor unions that the eight-hour law was being violated by contractors building slips, constructing public buildings, engaged in river and harbor works and other public enterprises, to reply that it was not their business; that the law was binding upon the contractors and that it he labor unions felt aggrieved and knew of violations of the law they should proceed themselves legally against the offenders.

Shelter Tents. There is a probability There is a probability of the Australian military authorities encouraging the manufacture or importation of shelter tents, as used in Japan during the late war. The tent consists of a waterproof sheet with hooks and eyelets, the weight being trifling. Each Japanese soldler carries one of these sheets in his kit, and any number of them can be lared together, the custom being for four men to form a bivouse. Arms are piled in the usual way, and the sheets are spread over the pile weapons, affording shelter from both hear and rain. They can be utilized in many ways for sheltering the soldlers.

BACK TO PULPIT.

What Food Did for a Clergyman.

A minister of Elizabethiuwn tells how Grape-Nuts food brought him back to his pulpit: "Some 5 years ago I had an attack of what seemed to be La Grippe which left me in a complete state of collapse and I suffered for some time with nervous prostration. My appetite failed, I lost flesh till I was a mere skeleton, life was a burden to me, I lost interest in everything and almost in everybody save my preclous wife.

"Then on the recommendation of some friends I began to use Grape-Nuts food. At that time I was a miserable skeleton, without appetite and hardly able to walk across the room; had ugly dreams at night, no disposition to entertain or be entertained, and began to shun society.

"I finally gave up the regular ministry, ladeed I could not collect my thoughts on any subject, and became almost a bernit. After I had been sing the Grape-Nuts food for a short time I discovered that I was taking on new life and my appetite began to sing the Grape-Nuts food for a short on external proved; I began to sleep better and my weight increased steadily; I had lost some 60 pounds, but under the new food regime I have regained almost my former weight have regained almost my former weight and have greatly improved in every way.

THE SKILLED MECHANIC

to Become One, and What It Means to Succed

By NATH'L C. FOWLER. J. of "The Boy-How to Heip Him Succeed," "Building Business," "Fowler's Cyclopedis of Publicity and Frinting," "Fractical Publicity," "Dollars and Sense," "Cumpilon," Exp.

The terms skilled or skillful may be so broadly defined as to cover all hand work requiring more than the exercise of automatic action, and it may be so aarrowed as to eliminate any work save that of extraordinary, or, at least, of more than ordinary mechanical abil-save that of extraordinary, or, at least, of more than ordinary mechanical ability.

For the sake of convenience, i propose to consider in this article all hand-workers whose employment demands the use of their brain at the same time that they exercise their muscles. Such men may be classified as brain-and-hand-workers; in the one case the brain doing more than the hand; and in the other, the hand accomplishing more than half of the work.

The expert worker is commercially one grade above the skilled mechanic; by the combination of ability and experience, he does rome particular kind of work better than it can be executed by the so-called skilled workman. Neither the skilled mechanic, nor the expert workman, nor anyone who employs both brain and hands, can be classed as a laborer, or as a mechanic in a purely mechanical sense. While by the faise ethics of an artificial society the skilled mechanic and the majority of expert workmen are not considered the social equals of successful workers in some other callings, they are recognized at their full worth by the representatives of civilized society. And this recognition is advancing in mighty strides, and sooner or later the combination of brain rank hand work will rank so high that society will darefle no exceptions to it.

The formation of gigantic monopolates, the consolidations of capital, and the fearful increase of business upon paper, cannot but produce a reaction which will apprize work at work's value, and render unto intelligent workmen the appreciation of high progress. The stilled workman is a product of civilization, and progress in osmail measure depends upon the work of his brain and of his hand. He is a builder of something, a maker of the tangible. The institute of technology and the trechnical school are to-day more viscorously pushing progress than are many of our classical institutions which tead hess of the necessities than the rechifics of life.

Chances to Rise.

Chances to Rise.

The bright, capable workman, with a fair education, does not permanently remain at a standstill in any department of mechanics, unless, in spite of his mechanical ingenuity and capacity, he completely lacks-ambition, a condition which too often exists. Sooner or later, he may become a foreman or superintendent, and possibly a manufacturer.

The boy without pronounced business or professional capacity stands a better chance of success, both in the present and for the future, by entering some trade which allows his hand to do his hand's best, than by taking chances with what he is probably unfitted for. If the bulk of his work is something which encourages and develops his handicraft, he is reasonably certain of rising from the ranks and of earning a comfortable livelihood. The workman is aimost certain of permanent living wages.

If his mind takes little thought of what his hand is doing, an ordinary mechanic he will remain; but if the work of his hand comes under the intelligent direction of his brain, then he will rise as high as his combination of brain and hand will allow; which may be only a few sieps above the ordinary or to any height, even to that of manufacturer and proprietor.

The ordinary mechanic, above the laborer grade and beyond the apprendicts of the control of

The man at the top, no matter what his calling may be, is a man of mark. The best shoemaker in town is not often cut of work. The best black-mith has about all he can do. The well-informed and reliable engineer works on full time. He knows something, and if that something be a commodity, he is likely to be busy year in and year out, and his earnings will give him all of the necessities and many of the comforts of life.

Electriclanas as a class are well paid, because where expertners is required good electriclans must not only be first-class mechanics, but must understand the principles of electricity. To an extent, at least, they are expert machinist, but he is classed above the ordinary mechanic. He is a man of nerve, of character, of presence of mind, of discretton, and able to meet emergencies. Without an abundance of qualities beyond those of mechanics ability, he would not be able to successfully hold the throttle of a freight locomotive.

Ability in Demand.

While shrewdness in business pays better than skill in mechanics, and while this business quality unduubted-ly/wins a greater money return than does any work of hand or of intellect, yet the skilled workman is not without opportunity for rapid advancement. He is in no sense a se yond factor in civilization. As a matter of fact, he has a right to be really prouder of his attainment than has the man whose weath consists only of money. When civilization advances another peg, the skilled mechanic, the man of brain and hand-action, will have the same social recognition as does the rank and lie of our business and professional men. The quality of skilled labor is rapidly growing better, and is progressing by such gigantic strides that its only a question of time when the intelligent work of the hand will be considered upon the same plane as is the work of the brain, and there will be no such thing as despised labor. There will be little labor that involves muscle alone.

Comparatively few educational cu-thorities, or those who have given educational ways and means intelligent thought, are in favor of a classical college education for those who propose to enter a mechanical trade; but the educational opinion is almost unanimous in advising, for anyone who intends to be more than a common laborer, a course in the technical school of institute of technology, or, at least, a course in manual training. The boy wao enters a trade without, at least, a partial technical education, is liable to stay near the bottom, or to less every slowly, while the technical study in a good trade school or institute of technology will pay better in the end than can any amount of workting. Experience is level in the work is success. A thorough town these.

Experience without technical education is worth something. The combination of the two wins success. A thorough town these.

Technical Training.

Technical Training.

No boy should begin to learn a trade, makes powerty requires it, until he has received a good common school education; and, if possible, he should enter the some technical school to be scientifically trained for his work. Time appent in a technical school is not, wasted. It pays. Perhaps not during the first year of active work, but during the first year of active work, but during the first year of active work, but during the school worker is sure to outstrip the untrained workman. It is a fact that few well-educated and well-trained mechanics remain in the rearest either front-rank workmen, or are promoted to command.

It is not the stake two boys of equal capacity and of equal trade opportunity. One appends, say three years, in the technical school, and the other enter steel shop immediately after graduation from the common school. The latter boy has three years trade-start of the other. At the end of three years, the first boy, educated and school-trained for his work, enters the same shop. In disposition, and the superior, but at the end of three, years the boy especially trained, for his work, enters the same shop. In the superior, but at the end of three, years the boy especially trained, for his work, enters the same shop. In the superior will trained and unskilled boy may be his superior; but at the end of three years the boy especially trained, for his work, enters the same shop. In the proportion of the same shop is the superior will be the proportion of the same shop in the superior will be the proportion of the same shop in the superior will be the proportion of the same shop in the superior will be the superior will be superior which abound preceds actual experience. The first few years of technics school training give a foundation which the actual work is the abolt cannot afford. Experience needs well catton for its sconomical descripment. The acientific or technical school disciplines the boy's mind, and gives him in the nost exponential way, the broat principles of mechanics—the principles which experience teaches more slowly. Too much cannot be said to impress the would-be skilled mechanic with the enormous advantage of a technica education, to be obtained in some high grade institution, where the principle of mechanics are broadly taught. This graduate of the polytechnic institute, or other technical school, will find this diploma the key to a position.

It should be clearly understood the education, in itself, will not product the skilled workman or expert hand worker. Education, to be of any usemust have something to work uponsome ratural ability in the first placa Without this basic material, the "mos liberal education is worthless, and cer tainly has no commercial value."

Aids to Success.

The scientific or technical school disciplines the boys mind, and gives him in the noise economical way, the broat which experience teaches more slowly which experience teaches more slowly and the economical way, the broat which experience teaches more slowly and the economical way to be even the experience the skilled works and expert hand to expert hand

Finding a Level.

Finding a Level.

I am not unfamiliar with the criticism, which is sometimes merited, that the technical school-taught boy leaves the fustitute with a head out of proportion to his body, and considers himself superior to manual labor. Undoubtedly this is the case in altogether too mouy instances, but if the boy hust her right stuff in him this big-headedness is only a transient affliction, and will do but temporary harm. The technical school never made a wise manuit of a fool, never made a wise manuit of a fool, never made a mechanical genius-out-of-a boy-who-could-not-saw a board straight, and never will. It simply gives the boy of parts a better opportunity to use what is in him. That is all it can do, and that is all it should do. It is the boy's business to do the rest. The more thorough thy reparation, the greater the chance or success.

The randd increase in manual train.

With the imperial ukase dissolving parliament, which was promulgated early in the morning, the curtain rose on possibly the last act in the great drama of the Russian revolution. The people and the government now stand face to face and upon the army depends the immediate issue.

Even should the government succeed in restraining an outbreak of the people the victory probably will only be temporary and will simply confine the steam for the fianl explosion. No one doubts the severity of the storm which will rise in the country in response to the emperor's dispersal of the men whom he welcomed two months ago in the winter palace as the "best men in Russia," but the die is cast.

A Live

Wire

Every nerve is a live wire connecting some part of the body with the brain. If hey are so numerous that if you penetrate the skin with the point of a needle you will touch a nerve and receive a shock—pain it is called. Aches and pains come from a pressure, strain or injury to a nerve; the more prominent the nerve the greater the pain. When the pain comes from a large nerve it is called Neuralgia whether it be the facial nerves, or the heart, stomach, sciatic or other prominent nerve branch. To stop pain, then, you must relieve the strain or pressure upon the nerves. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do this.

Slang in Society.

Is society giving up using the slipshod clipped jargon which was talked a few years ago, and which was open to imitation? The affirmative is mainto initation? The affirmative is maintained in a society paper, but with regard to this point the London Mail writes: "I cannot say that slang is going out among the smart set, but it is constantly changing, so that only the initiated—that is the chosen few who are constantly meeting—can tell which words are in vogue. Wee bettled any outsider who, trusting to what he or she knows of ordigary slang tries to join in and do likewise! "For what a certain exclusive sec-what he or she knows of ordigary slang tries to join in and do likewise! "For what a certain exclusive section of society indulges in is not slang as the world in general understands the term. It is rather a freemasoury in language, a kind of secret code known only to themselves—in fact, if you will, their own particular slang, distinct from any other. This little language, was invented by one of themselves in a moment of inspiration many years ago, and it has lasted with modification to the present moment. "To the outsider who is interested one may say that it consists wholly of abbreviations, and is therefore as laboreaving an invention as the type—writer. Thus in the words of the smart set 'neury' stands for neural-las. 'champey' for champiagne, 'divey' for divide, 'umbey' for mubrella, 'kensey' for Kensington, and so on. "It is almost too foolish to print, but it is a phrase of modern life and so may command an instant's attention. No, the jargon of cliques and set will never alle."

tion. No, the jargon of cliques and sets will never die."

The Conscientious Villain.

No paradox is it, but demonstrable fact, that, in a highly articulate society, the gravest harms are inficted, not by the worst men, but by those with virtues enough to boost them into some coign of vantage. E. A. Ross, in an article in the Atlantic Monthly, points out that the boss who sells out the town and delivers the poor over to filth, disease, and the powers that prey, owes his chance to his engaging good-fellowship and big-heartedness. Some of the most dazzling careers of fraud have behind them long and ressuring records of probity, which have served to bait the trap of villainy. Not that these decoy-virtues are counterfeit. They are, in fact, so genuine that often the stalwart sinner perseveres in the virtue that has lifted him into the bigh place be abuses. The legislator conscientiously returns the boodle when he finds he cannot "deliver the goods." The boss stands by his friends to his own hurt. The lobbying lawyer is faithful to his client. The corrupting corporation-president is loyal to bis stockholders. The boughten editor never quite overcomes his craft-ininstinct to print "all the news there is." In a word, the big and formidable sinners are gray of soul, but not black, so that chastisement according to their deeds lets them off far too casy.

Opposition to the endless flood of im-migrants is usually based either upon the feat that they will destroy the market for native labor or the belief that they will lower the standard of that they will lower the standard of citizenship and morality. In either case, says Youth's Companion, the fear is directed against the immigrant himself. At the recent convention, in New York, of the American Social Science association, a danger less often considered was pointed out: that which comes from the second generation. The foreign-born population, according to figures which were given, furnishes more than twice its normal proportion of inmates of penal, insane and charitable institutions; but the children of ns; but the children or immigrants are three times as criminal the children of the native-born, and twice as criminal as the immigrants

However much one may need money, ne seldom likes to hold a soiled bill in one seldom likes to hold a solled bill in one's hands. Retail merchants in various parts of the country have frequently attempted to use only new money in making change. But the supply is not sufficient, and most of them have to give it up after a while. One such merchant has taken to cleaning every bill and every coin taken at his store before he gives it out in change. The demand for clean money is now finding expression in Washington, where the treasurer of the United States has lately been urging congress to provide for een urging congress to provide for inting worn bills more frequently, reform would be appreciated.

JOHN DIETZ DEFIES SHERIFF

MANY SHOTS ARE FIRED

Son of Notorious Wisconsin Man and One of Soldiers Wounded— Women Aid in Fight—More Trouble Expected.

Nilwaukee.—John Diets, the home-steader who has held the Cameron dam on Thornappie river in Saw-yer county against the combined power of the Mississippi Logging com-pany and the state and federal gov-ernment for the last two years, has been victor in another pitched battle. The stories are conflicting, but all agree that a sharp fight took place Thursday at the Dietz home between Dietz and his family on the one side and Sheriff Gylland and a posse of half a dozen militiamen, sent by the government from Milwaukee, on the other.

One of the sheriff's men was shot three times and seriously though not fatally wounded, and Clarence Dietx, a son of the doup'tty homesteader, was shot through the head. Another battle is expected.

Battle Lasts Over Hour.
One account of the battle is that as soon as the sheriff and posse came in sight of the Dietx cabin Dietx, his wife, two sons and one daughter came out armed with rifles. After the first volley from the Diets alde one of the militiamen fell wounded, bullets having struck him in the ankle, hip and neck. The fuslillade was returned by the militiamen, and when the smoke had cleared away it was seen that Clarence Dietx had fallen. Then the posse retired behind stumps and trees, and for over an hour the battle lasted. Fully 150 shots were fired. Dietx's son was dragged into the house under fire and the place barleaded.

Official Withdraws Men.

When it was seen that Dietx's son was dragged into the house under fire and the place barleaded.

Official Withdraws Men.

When it was seen that Dietx's son determined not to give up, Sheriff dylland and his posse retired to the Mississippl Logging company's camp at Cameron Dam, half a mile from Dietx's eabin. Doctors have been sent from Ladysmith to care for the wounded.

Dietz has stopped all lumbering on the Thornapple river for the last two years. He held that the logging company had no right to run logs through his farm unless they paid for the privilege. He demanded $10,000 and the company laughed at him. It proceeded with the usual drive and brought down 20,000,000 feet of logs to Cameron Dam. There the men found Dietz's for devices have been tried, but on deer ears. Sheriffs have tried to get him, United States marshals have tried to serve papers on him all sorts of devices have been tried, but no service has been made nor has he been taken.

Text—of-Resolutions Adopted by Delegates at London.

London.—The conference of the interparliamentary union, after a prolonged debate Wednesday, adopted the following resolution:

"The interparliamentary union, now assembled in London, expresses the view that the second Hague conference should:

"I. By treaty define contraband of war as being restricted to arms, munitions of war and explosives.

"2. Reassert and confirm the principle that neither a ship carrying contraband of war nor other goods aboard such ship not being contraband of war may be destroyed.

"3. Affirm that even between beligerents private property should be as immune at sea as it is on landon the ship to the ship contraband of war may be destroyed.

"The conference also adopted a resolution in favor of the discussion by The Hague conference of means—to cut down the "Intolerable expenditure on armsments." Another resolution provides that such national group shall apply to its own government to grant funds to aid future conferences of the interparliamentary union.

The decision as to the time and place of the next conference was left in the hands of the international council. It is expected that it will be held in Berlin in 1908. THE CAMERA FIEND.

Man Was Not Satisfied with Ordinary Amusement Like Taking Pictures.

A well-known criminal lawyer one day sauntered into a police court just as a case was called. It appeared that the defendant had no attorney, and the judge glanced about the room to see whom he might assign to the case. "I'll take it, judge," the late comer and, wishing to pass away the time. "By the way, what is the man charged with?" the attorney presently asked. "He's a camera flend of the worst sort, Mr. Brown," to judge said with a slight smile. "I expect to send him to the workhouse for about three months."

"What!" Your bonor must be joking. Send a man to the rock pile for three months or a little harmless amusement like taking pictures;"

"Well," the judge said, mildly, "he don't take pictures much—i's , the cameras he takes."

Of 12 persons aboard the Alvin B, Capt. Burch, but one is known to have been drowned.

The known dead are: Fred Fisher, Manayunk, body recovered; Walter Snyder, Philadelphia, body recovered! Jerry Donohue, Philadelphia; unknown body recovered; Herbert Hummel, Landsdale, Pa., body recovered! William Griffiths, Philadelphia; John Fogarty, Hartford, Pa.; Samuel Lod. er, Woodbury, N. J.; John Starkey, Philadelphia.

It was while returning from the fishing banks that the Nora was capsized, and the luckless passengers caught in a tangled mass of cordage and sails, and, imprisoned under the overturned yacht, had but half a chance for their lives.

Just as the bar was reached a heavy gust of wind that had been blowing struck the Nora. Capt. Shivers threw the boat's head up to meet it, but before she could fully right herself from the gust and accompanying wave she was struck by the following sea and turned.

The Chinese woman has a calling substitute called a carde de visite. It is feally a sort of social information bureau, as it conveys to the recipient the name of the caller, her address and the day on which she is to be found in her own house beyond question. If I should call on Monday, when her "card" read "Thursday," she would send "down word by the maid, who would report to the housekeeper, generally a negre that she was "not at home." You will remember how the missionaries impressed rhon us that "truth" was the corner stone of Christianity. But I digress.

Impressed ripon us that "truth" was the corner stone of Chiffstianity. But I digress

Now these "calling cards" could be malled or sent by a servant just as well, for the visiting lajf does not go in. Shè rides up to the house in state, the footman opens the door, receives a card delivers it to the servant, and they proceed to the next house on the list, which the driver carries. Now the curlous part of this ceremony is that the party called upon does not knoff that the lady called in person, and there is consequently no objection to the caller putting herself to the trouble, but it is the "fashion."—Metropolitan Magraine.

"That Rock was Christ."—

1 Cor. 10:4.

We all come to Rephidim as so, we time or other. On the manwaro side Rephidim stands for the place of dire, need; of murmuring and unbelief; of the limitation of God's power; nay, more, of utter forgetfulness of all his past mercies and blessings, and fcilure to turn to him for help.

On the Godward side, it is the place of the Rock-the Rock which Paul occlaved prefigured the character and office work of the Dlessed Christ. "That Rock was Christ;" that is, it typifies the Christ.

was Christ;" that is, it typifies the Christ.

1. In the value of the bless-ing which gushed forth from it.

2. In the method employed to secure that blessing. The Rock was smitten, even as the Christ was smitten, even as the Christ was smitten.

3. In the unlikelihood of the source of help, for the babe in the manger, the son of the carpenter, the man or sorrows, the malefactor on the cross became the Saviour of the world, even as the cold, hard, forbidding rock of the desert became under the touch of God a fountain of life-giving water to thirsty israel.

ilfe-giving water to thirsty israei.

And more, that sparkling water at Rephidim is typical of the brightness of the Gospei, foreach drop-reflects the glory of the Gospei in its refreshment, in its abundance and in the perennial freshmens of its flow.
Let us jearn the lessons of Rephidim, and rejoice in the full revelation of the Christ, toward whom the rock of Rephidim pointed.

had esseed. But as they had again taken up the march and were forced because of the apreading masses of rock at the base to make a wide detour fresh complaint burst forth.

Was it not enough that they had no water to drink? Why should such obstructions come across their pathway? Of what use was that great pile of jagged stone, anyway?

Such were some of the ill-natured questions which broke forth, and as is always the case where one is in the fault-finding mood, they had no eyes to see anything but the disagreeable and discouraging features. So it was that they had found in the rock only another opportunity for complaining. And when Moses had striven to pacify them, recalling past blessings and the deliverances God had wrought, they cried out in the bitterness and hardness of their hearts that God had forgotten them, and that if he Moses would prove his right to leadership he must then and there satisfy their thirst.

"Didat thou not sweeten the waters at Marah?" they cried. "Why then canst-thou not give us water here? Where is thy rod with which thou didst divide the waters of the Red sea? Show what thou canst do with that same rod here in the wilderness?"

And when he rebuked them sharply, reminding them that it was God, and not he who had done these wonders, they cried out the more vehemently, declaring that it was for this purpose that he had brought them into the wilderness that they might perish of thirst with their little ones and their cattle. It was useless for him to point to the Cloud and to remind them that God was in their midst. They would not listen and at last in despair he had gone apart by himself and cried unto God, saying:

"Ot Lord, what shall I do unto this people? They be almost ready to stone me. They will not Irsen unto my voice. They will not remember all that thon hast done for them."

And then out of the stillness which had zellowed when Moses had ceased speaking came the voice of God, say-ling:

And then out of the stillness wnich and tailowed when Moses had ceased speaking came the voice of God, saying:

"Go out before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Israel; and thy rod wherewith thou smotast the river, take in thine hand and go. Behold! I will stand before thee upon the rock in Horeb; and thou shalt smite the rock, and there shall come water out of it, that the people may drink."

And in the face of the derision and the angry complaining of the people, Moses had gathered the elders together and went forth with them to the rock. There it had stood rugged and forbidding. How was it that the hard, dry, cold rock could pour forth its flood of waters? But in the face of the opposition and the doubt of those with him, Moses had gone bravely and bold ylorward and when they had come to the rock he had bowed his head reverently. Then was it that a strange thing happened, for the Cloud, which up to this time had rested over the camp, came and stood upon the brow of the great rock, and as he lifted his eyes Moses knew that the Lord was there to show forth his marvelous grace and power.

Behind him was a people perishing for water. Shut in the wilderness there was no escape. No human hand could succor. They could not go back. To go forward meant death on the burning sands. But before him there on the rock was the glory of God's presence.

In that moment a new turill of gladness had sitrred his heart, and while the elders gathered about him had watched expectantly, he had reached forth his hand and with the rock.

Down from the overshadowing Cloud had-flashed the flaming-finger of God-cleaving the mighty rock in twaln,

COMB-HONEY SHIPPING CASE Arrangement by Which the Glass Fronts to the Sections Are Eliminated, were inclined to consider that all comb honey in shipping cases with glass front was in glass, and, consequently, the freight rate, was pushed up one notch; but after considerable explanation we showed that, evidently, such classification referred to honey in bottles; that comb honey in a shipping case with, glass fronts ought to go as second class because the percentage of glass was very small to the amount of wood. All the railroads, I think, now accept shipping cases with glass fronts as second class. But the bee keeper must not make the mistake of having such homey hilled "in glass" or sise it will go at first class rates.

The Aspinwall case is a very unique nor; and if the discrimination sgainst glass fronts had continued the allwood case with the lettering would have been the solution.

The all-wood case can be made carsiderably cheaper, and I-do not know why it would not be just as good. If this kind.

The arrangement of the no-drip cleats in mortises or slots in the ends of the case is very unique. It could not, however, be very well applied to a glass-front case showing four sections six deep. But where the cases are two-row, like the sample here shown, there will he no trouble about mortising for the cleats.

when fowls need a tonic, there are some who put a few drops of tincture of iron into their drinking troughs.

Tobacco stems covered with straw are an excellent preventative of insect breeding, especially when the hens are setting.

Feed the fowls ahout to be shipped nothing but hard grain the day previous. They will carry better and arrive in a better condition.

So long as good-prices can be obtained for brollers it will nearly always be found best to sell at this age, or either to feed to maturity and sell in the fall or winter.

Pouttry keeping can be made an auxiliary to other pursuits without infringing upon the time of the keeper and will bring in a handsome return for the food and care given them.

Reping Down the Mites.
Poultry droppings seem to be the favorites conditions for breeding mites. Coops and houses that are cleaned often are not much troubled with them. But it is a good plan not to depend too much upon anything. Carrell examination needs to be made frequently, so as to be sure that they are not getting a start.

IMPROVED POULTRY HOUSE.

sary, for Flonty of Room for Fowls Is Essential.

In order to have hens do well, they wint commodious quarters. Especial yis this true during the winter and, if they are probleted running at large throughout the year. Owing to their love for that freedom which allows them to move about at will and, work as they please, they soon get tired if confined in a small closed pen, and stand around and mope, as it were, until they became fat and lary and lose their appetits, whereupon they are a detriment rather than, a good, to the owner.

What they need is an open scratchlag shed, where they can exercise in the open sir, going in and out as they wish. They will then be always ready to eat or work, and this, in turn, givlag them health and strength, will enable them to lay a large number of good, fertile eggs.

Fortunately, it is not necessary to build an elaborato, costly structure to bring about these results. A simple scratching-shed house, like that shown in the accompanying illustration, will suffice just as well and, oftentimes, much better.

This affords the great advantage of suffice just as well and, oftentimes, much better.

This affords the great advantage of having a "living room" adjoining the sleeping apartment, so that on sunny days a complete change of air and scene can be enjoyed by the fowls without exposing them to plercing or driving storms. It also permits of the ventilation being adapted to the weather and temperature conditions at the discretion of the owner.

When the imprisonment of the birds in a single apartment is taken into consideration, the importance of this is at once apparent, says Prairie Farmer, for if limited to one atmosphere and one temperature inghit and day, throughout the cold, stormy months of winter, they cannot help but be-income listless, debilitated and "out of condition," and what few eggs they do lay he incapable of hatching strong, robust chicks that will live and grow. Best of all, however, by using a house with a scratching-shed, as many again hirds can be kept as compared with the closed pen. Hence, the cost of the scratching-shed does not add anything in the way of expense, as far as having buildings to accommodate a certain number of fowls is-cenerned. On the other hand, there is everything to commend it—the hetter health of the birds, the greater production and higher fertility of their eggs, and, owing to the natural warmth from the bodies of so many of them, the elimination of supplying artificial heat in the roosting room at night. Moreover, by adopting the arrangement illustrated, it is possible to duplicate the construction and have a succession of closed rooms and open sheds, extending, if the ground is sufficiently level to allow it, almost any length desired.

The shed part should be 10x10 feet, the roosting room 10x8 feet. The sills, which should be laid at least a foot above the surface of the ground, may rest on stone or brick foundations, or posts set into the ground below the usual roost line; these "plers" should be leasted at a distance of ahout five feet from one another. For the slils, as well as plates, rafters and corner strois, 2x4 scantling will do; the intervised in the rear opens of the surface of the ground, may rest on stone or brick foundations, or posts set into the ground below the usual roost line; these "plers" should be leasted at a distance of ahout five feet from one another. For the slils, as well as a plates, rafters and corner strois, 2x4 scantling will do; the intervised at the surface of the ground, may be used. The house, of one of the slils, the plates, the will give a fairly good plitch to the root, on which any first rate rootin

With the curtain fastened down at night, it is not necessary to close the door between the roosting room and scratching-shed unless the weather is severely cold, and unless it is way below zero, the small opening at the right of this door should never be closed. It will otherwise he warm enough—that is, if the walls are celled on the inside and the space between packed with straw or swale hay, as it should be. By opening the window in warm weather, and partially on very warm winter days, excellent ventilation at all seasons of the year can be obtained.

Convincing Theory as to Their Construction,

A Brooklyn engineer of note, whe spent several years in Egyptian exploration, is eye opinion that the mys exploration, is eye opinion that the mys the says the New Yorks has been solved asys the New Yorks has been solved asys the New Yorks has been solved extraordinary pictures showing 200, 000 men hauling on a rope to raise a 200,000-pound atone into its proper inche near the pinnaele of old Cheops is familiar to all of us. Theories as to the nucle of construction are legion. But all the engineering logic and experience of to-day and for the last 100 years have failed to cast more than a shadow over the mystery. Plazi Smith thought he knew all about it, but nothing of a practical nature has come of his researches. It is singular that our wise men did not think of examining with critical eye the tools found in the catacombs. The old saw—a workman is known by his tools are not those of rock masons, nor mere plasterers' implements for filling the cracks between stones, but are plainly the crude Egyptian plant of operatives engaged in mixing and laying cement. What a splendid patch of sand they had as a foundation for their cement?

Cement is the coming building material. Railroads are renewing their steel, iron and stone plers, abutments, culverts, etc., with it, and it is expected to last forever. No great skill is required in manipulating it. There are no chiseling, hammering, dowel-ing, no heavy litting with derricks, no misitis. The industry has already grown to enormous proportions. Drop a sack of dry cement to the bottom of a river, and in a few minutes you have a solid stone that will never wear away. Drop 1,000 sacks on top of it and round it and presently you will have a foundation that will sustain for all time a 1,000,000-ton bridge.

with us, Nancy, Elisabeth Greene and Burton. These are the four youngest except that Levi was younger than Nancy. All these 13 had children of their own, and there are children of all of them now living. It would have been a great delight to have with us to day representatives of all the families, but some live too far away. A great part of the descendants have remained in Boone. County, Kentucky, though some have gone into Indiana, and Ohio, and into many of the states west of us. They are now living in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas, and probably other states.

The families range in size from 2 to 13. Jonathan and Levi had two children each, James 3, Nancy and John 4. Benjamin and Elizabeth 5, Mary and Burton 6, William 8, Samuel 9, Thos. 12, and Greene 13. The thirteen had 79 children, of whom 58 are living, and 21 dead. Complete statistics have been furnished of all the families. These statistics show a total, including the 13 children, of 540—416 living, and 124 dead.

The largest family is that of Samuel with a total of 84, the smallest is that of Levi with only 10. Our people have lived quiet lives engaged in civil pursuits. Only two were in the civil war, Samuel, and his son Lillard. Three of the grandsons of Samuel are now in the U. S. Army, John and Charley Johnson, sons of Lillard are in Alaska, while Nat the son of James, is in the Phillippines. These five are all of the entire connection who have ever enlisted in the army. The writer of this sketch is the only one of the family that has entered, what is called, professional life. Others have been farmers, mechanics, merchanics, teachers, bankers, and real estate dealers. They have lived hour ase in which one of the family has been convicted for crime. They have been respected, and have exerted an influence in favor of the best things.

Great Relief

During that trying period in which women so often suffer from nervousness, backache, sick headache, or other pains, there is nothing that can equal Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They stop the pains, soothe the nerves, and give to women the relief so much desired. If taken on first indication of pain or misery, they will allay, the irritable condition of the nerves, and save you further, suffering. Those who use them at regular intervals have ceased to dread these periods. They contain no harmful drugs, and leave no effect upon the heart or stomach if taken as directed. They give prompt relief.
